Some of these were little damaged, others were washed away altogether, and in all of them more or less destruction has been wrought. Probably the packing companies will, after the rallway companies, be the heaviest individual losers, although they have been able to do more than most to protect their property. At the beginning of the week they each estimated their loss at $250,000, but now these figures are being gradually increased as more definite information is obtained. Jack Cudahy, for example, told a friend yesterday that his
