Martin Duer, a farmer boy who has been employed as stable boy at the Merchants Express barn, is alleged to have stolen $38.80 from the company. The boy was arrested in Fritz Wirth's place last evening by Detectives Donahue and Heitfeld. The menty alleged to have been stolen was the day's collections from one of the package delivery wagon drivers, and the boy was told to eare for it until morning. It is claimed he mailed $50 to his father, who is a farmer at Staplehurst, Neb., and blew in $8. He wrote his father another letter, saying he wished he would send him back the $50, plus $10, as the money was stolen and he wanted to make it up. He seems unable to realize the predicament he is in and has the appearance of being somewhat off mentality.

ONE STRIKE THAT WON OUT at Wise Memorial Hospital is Narrowly Averted.

A small sized strike, which for the moment promised to be serious, was narrowly averted at the Wise Memorial hospital Monday. The demand of the union, which in this case confidted solely of Miss Rose, the new head nurse recently brought from Chicago, was not for the abolition of piecework, nor for shorter hours nor bigger pay, but for the use of the room that had been set apart for the head nurse when the hospital moved into its present quarters and which had been occupied by Miss Rose's predecessor. When Miss Rose reported for duty she found that the head nurse's room had been rented out to a private patient while she was relegated to a back cubbyhole. Her remonstrances seemed to have Heafy & Heafy on North Twenty-fourth in from the pay tenant until her patience no weight alongside of the revenue coming was well-nigh exhausted.

"I'll give you until 4 o'clock to place my room at my disposal. If this is not done by that time I will quit and go back to Chicago," was the ultimatum served on the women who act as directors of the hospital.

About 3:45 this answer came to the head

"You shall have the room as soon as it is vacated by its present occupant." And the operations scheduled are going on as usual.

We can take care of the situation and things are rapidly resuming normal conditions in a business way, just as far as possible. The criminal element is under excellent control and crime and lawlessness has had small opportunity. The whole police force is on duty by day and the Third regiment covers the city by night. They have a way here of doing things up in short order and losing no time when an emergency arises, so when the flood became alarming the chiefs and mayors of both cities at once closed up all saloons tight as a drum and arrested a few reluctant saloon keepers. They also gave orders to police and soldiers that any one found robbing houses, firebugs, thieves, footpads and "water rats," when caught were to be shot without any parleying in case any resistance to arrest was put up. This latter instruction, I think, has done much to reduce crime. The fear of the law, when backed up by army men with pienty of ammunition, does much. The police system has been admirable.

The loss of life has been comparatively bribe from John S. Finkenbiner, who is now a member of the June grand jury. much. The police system has been admirable.

The loss of life has been comparatively small. It is estimated as high as 250, but I question if it actually runs over fifty or perhaps seventy-five in this community. I presume that one-third or one-half of those drowned here lost their lives in attempting to save property. Such accidents have been numerous. The unselfish spirit shown has been remarkable and every one is "willing to lend a hand." I never knew a time when people sacrificed so willingly and gave so generously and put up with inconvenience so uncomplainingly. Ultimately the disaster will be of untold benefit to Kansas City. The attitude of the country generally seems to be "Watch Kansas City recover from the blow." It will be to Kansas City what the fire was to Chicago.
