Nothing but Weddings Talked About by Omaha's Gossipy Set.

SOME TIPS FOR THE DEAR YOUNG THINGS

Wise Old Person Offers a Few Suggestions as to How to Keep the Honeymoon Glimmering for a Long Time.

Unromantic. A rose of white she'll wear tonight. If she decides to wear white...

These are a set of don'ts laid down by an experienced writer in one of the illustrated weeklies for the guidance of women who may be wedding...

Don't make the evening repeat a confession for household troubles. He has troubles of his own. You may be one of them.

Don't put him on the fire escape to smoke. Suppose the draperies do get full of fumes. Some day you may hunger for the smell of them.

Don't wear a chip on your shoulder. An ounce of forgiveness is worth a pound of pride. Give in. You can have your way when he is not looking.

Don't antagonize his men friends. They may be better than they look. They may be better than they look.

Don't travel wide apart or the chains will cut. The only way not to feel them is to keep close together.

Don't cook unless you know how. When his digestion goes, reform administration is dead.

Don't ask him for money. Make him offer it. You know the way you do not, you should.

Be prudent, and as thrifty as you can. Men are attracted by ethereal means, but held by material methods. Wise economy, however, requires great tact.

Don't listen to outside criticism, whether of friends or relatives-in-law. Don't attach too much importance to those little trifles which they look at with outside worries or indignation.

Don't complain these rules the first time they fall. They are good. The only question is, are we to keep them, or to persevere with them until we get results?

People with discerning eyes say they see a whole flock of stocks circling over the homes of selected members of Omaha's younger married set.

Much talk is in circulation about the alleged disruption of the engagement of an estimable young man, with a society record in Omaha now wearing Uncle Sam's uniform and shoulder straps, and a rich young Chicago widow who also lived in Omaha in her girlhood days...

The heroine of one of our June weddings was the recipient of eighteen pairs of stockings at a hostess shower.

Evelyn Dear: After all these long months it's such a comfort to write things to somebody, for there are things that one simply can't tell to one's self.

It's not nice to gossip about people one knows, but there is nothing else to talk about just now, there is so much going on, weddings and things, and I have to get something married or engaged and there is something about weddings that inspires one to notice and recall things.

And that's the worst of it, especially for one who has been as long as I have for half the engagements that were suspected or expected last fall didn't turn out at all and it's awfully awkward to ask a person about someone whom you have reason to suppose she knows a lot about and get a cold stare in reply. That's what happened to me, Evelyn. You see, we were at a linen shower the other day and of course everybody was talking about the brides and incidentally the men, when seeing a new diamond ring on Margaret's hand and remembering how Cuffy she and B. B. were about each other last fall, I said to Harriet, "How perfectly dear of B. B. to get Margaret that stunning ring, when everybody knows that he allowed Julia to keep the lovely engagement solitaire he gave her." I had half finished another comment, when I noticed that she was glaring at me and before I really came to she had gathered up her needles and hurried across the room to another chair. If you will believe me, Evelyn, the very next thing I heard was that Harriet and B. B. are going to be married this very month. And that reminds me, Evelyn dear, there have been half a dozen slips.
