President Roosevelt, accompanied by Mrs.
Roosevelt and a party of about thirty, left Sagamore Hill pier shortly after 2 on board the naval yacht Sylph.

On his arrival the president was saluted by the yacht Bellmore, which carried the Oyster Bay board of trade, with twentyone guns.

As the president landed he was greeted by Joseph Irwin, chairman of the reception committee, and he and his party were escorted to the town, two miles away. The harbor presented a beautiful sight, being filive with pleasure craft of all sorts, including a dozen large steam yachts, all in holiday dress.

Why were we able to join together in troducing to you Tom Johnson of the United The subject of Mr. Johnson was local self-government. His speech was devoted almost entirely to his work in Ohio. This, as he explained, was not because he had no interest in national questions. On the contrary he regarded the principles of the Declaration of Independence as of universal application, from the smallest local government to the widest scope of national government. Equal Rights for All.

To this broad national application of those principles Mr. Johnson gave a few minutes, in his opinion the Jeffersonian doctrine of equal rights for all and special priviliges for none being his keynote. Applying this principle then to municipal affairs, he referred to his own city of Cleveland as a congrete instance. In that city he and his friends, supported by a majority of the people there, were striving to secure to all the people of the municipality equal rights.

This was the kind of practical work, at the present time. For if our municipalities, our villages, towns and cities are governed in accordance with the principles of the Declaration of Independence, all MAGIC TAPS GIRDLE GLOBE our governments will be beneficially affected, even up to the highest. President Roosevelt Sends Greetings Clear In other words, the whole problem of democratic government in general is to be solved through local self-government. This fact, he observed, is coming to be AMERICAN PACIFIC CABLE FORMALLY OPEN recognised.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

True Unit of Government.

The true unit of government is the municipality. Let there be no special privileges at all. It was with this fooling that he had entered into the politics of Cleveland two years ago. It had been an uphill fight from the beginning. It is an uphill fight still. It will be an uphill fight in the future. Whoever supposes that Great gains have been made. The pluteeracy of Cleveland, which, like plutocracy everywhere, "stands pat" for special privileges for a few and equal rights for none, has been beaten at some points and is on the defensive at all points.

OYSTER BAY, July 4.—To Governor Taft, Manila: I open the American Pacific cable with greetings to you and the people of the Philippines. Public Service Corporations. Mr. Johnson then told in some detail of the struggle with the public service corporations of Cleveland, of the establishment At 11:19 the following reply was received from Manila:

MANILA, July 4.—To the President: The Filipino people and the Americans resident in these islands are glad to present their respectful greetings and congratulations to the president of the United States conveyed over the cable with which American enterprise has girdled the Pacific, thereby rendering greatly easier and more frequent communication between the two countries. It will certainly lead to a closer union and a better mutual understanding of each other's aims and sympathies and to their common interests in the prosperity of the Philippines and the aducation and development of the Filipinos

It is not inappropriate to incorporate in this, the first message across the Pacific from the Philippines to America, an earnest plea for the reduction of the tariff on Filipino products in accordance with the broad and liberal spirit which the American people desire to manifest toward the Philippines and of which you have been an earnest exponent.

President Roosevelt then sent the folof the water service on a merit system basis, of the attempt to secure low fares on the street cars and municipal ownership, of the efforts for just taxation and of the unremitting opposition through the courts in the legislature. So far had this opposition gone, said Mayor Johnson, that in order to balk the movement for equal rights in Cleveland, the leaders of the republican party organization there had disorganized every municipal government in the state.

This carrying of the municipal fight into the legislature made it plain that municipalities cannot be governed by the principles of the Declaration of Independence so long as beneficiaries of local special priviliges can frustrate local movements by appealing to the legislature. Although local self-government can be secure, there can be no local self-government of the people, by the people and for the people so long as legislatures are controlled by political bosses and for corporations.

The public meeting was immediately under the shade of the great trees on the northeast lawn of the White House. Admiral Dewey opened the exercises by introducing Barry Bulkley of this city, who read the Declaration of Independence.

Secretary Moody then made an address in behalf of the National government. He extended a cordial welcome to the French ambassador and reminded his hearers that without the co-operation of the French fleet under De Grasse the victory over Cornwallis at Yorktown, which virtually determined the independence of the colonies, would never have been won.

Pride of the People.

Briefly the secretary dwelt upon the circumstances of the history which appealed to our pride as a people, but in this connection, he said, it is sometimes wise to preach as well as to give praise. If we would keep what we have won, if we would maintain and strengthen our position among the nations, he said, we should purify the French Ambassador Speaks, He was followed by Ambassador Jusserand, whose speech contained an eloquent tribute to the Americans of the early days. Briefly he referred to the meeting of 127 years ago in Independence hall in Philadel-phia. He continued: "What took place? What words were exchanged? We should like to know them to the minutest detail. But one thing we know, and that is The men who came were inenough: surgents; the men who left were freemen. He then referred to the help which France rendered the new republic in its struggle for freedom. Congress had decided that an appeal should be made to the foreign nations for an alliance. He concluded as follows:

The nation whose life began 127 years ago has become an immense one, and eyes are more and more fixed on her. On the day we now commemorate (in a ceremony to which I am beyond words proud to be associated) your ancestors bestowed upon you gitts, and framed for you duties, equally splendid. They bestowed upon you that peerless gift, liberty; they left for you rules of life, obligations and responsibilities which will become more and more binding as you become more powerful. These duties we have in common with you. Endowed with institutions similar to yours, pursuing similar aims, we intend to vie with you, no longer on the battlefield, in view of a liberty which has been won forever, but in constant attempts to improve the condition of the many, to spread the spirit of brotherhood between men and between dations; to remain, in a word, true to the principles proclaimed in your revolution and in ours.

Revolution in Traditions. Revolution in Traditions.

The tendencies that, under the party in power, have led to a repudiation of the Declaration of independence and to a partial imperialisation of the constitution have naturally produced corresponding revolutions in the traditions of the government. The corruption discovered in our colonial administration, had as it was, has been completely overshadowed by the recent revelations of systematic and confederated fraud in the Postoffice department, which has astounded the country and arraigned the administration at the har of public opinion. It is the natural result of long continued treseponsible power.

We are at the parting of the ways. The American people must choose and choose sooth, whether to absurden the traditions of a century and a quarter to enter upon the sof-triodien to their doom by so many hations that have gone before us, or to make a rededication of this government to the sublime principles of its founders.
