who were present granted the pope the special indulgence which they have the privilege of conferring. Then came the touching prayers for a passing soul and part of the gospel, the Lord's passion. As the last words died away all fell or their knees. The pontiff, raising his almost tra separent fingers with a feeble effort, pronounced in scarcely audible words his benediction on the sacred college and on all present and sank back on the pillows. There was scarcely a tearless eye in the whole assemblage, the sobs of the pope's relatives being plainly heard. Deep silence fell, only broken now and again by a murmured prayer or a pious ejacula-

Massonal Admits Fears.

Dr. Mazzonni admitted this afternoon or his return from consultation at Pope Leo's bedside that the situation this time is certainly grave, in view of the great age of the patient, and his state of extreme weakness. However, the case is not yet desperate, especially with a man having such an unexpected reserve of energy and vitality, which at the age of 93 is indeed astonish-

The exact definition of the pope's illness is senile adynamic pneumonia, but his holiness has not the least idea that he is attacked by any organic disease. In fact, he was not in bed when I went to the vatican, but was seated in his usual armchair, where I am accustomed to see him every time I visit the palace. He believes the oppression on his chest and the accompanying difficulty of breathing are merely the results of extreme weakness.

As soon as he saw me, his holiness repeatedly requested me to turn my attention to the best means of restoring his strength which he said was all he required, except a little fresh air. Now and then the pope has recourse to his habit of snuff-taking. saving he finds it most refreshing.

His weak pulse and his short and irregu lar breathing,, gradually approaching to gasping, are the only external symptoms of any sectous nature; but as I said before. the pope this morning was full of spirit, and would not take a grave view of him own case. When I left him his holiness

Come again soon. I will try to give you a better reception."

His condition at 10 tonight though grave, is not so serious as late this afterno Dr. Laponni administered camphor-caffeine through the mouth as one experiment of injection did not prove successful, Pope Leo saying he could not bear it.

Dr. Mazzoni and Dr. Laponni now think the danger of a catastrophe occurring during the night has been averted. Indeed, they hope that unless the heart fails they will be able to keep their august patient alive for a few days longer, especially if he will only consent to follow their pre-

It is stated that owing to the serious filness of the pope the proposed visit of King Victor Emanuel has been postponed

The gravest indication of the serious condition of the pope is that Dr. Laponni, on going home after having spent night at the Vatican, informed his family that he would not again return home until the disease had resulted one way or the other, and that on his return the doctor took with him his evening dress, which, according to etiquette, he will have to put on immediately after the death of the pope, should his filness ferminate fatally. Cardinal Oregita Di Santo Stefano first sent his secretary this morning to inquire and look for the apartment which he, in his capacity as Camerlingo, will occupy after the demise of the pope, when he will take the reins of the pontifical power during the interregoum. ## DEDICATE THE NEW CHAPEL

Governor Mickey Makes an Extended Address to the Convicts.

CHANCELLOR ANDREWS ALSO TALKS

Music is Provided for the Occasion and a Large Number of Officials and Visitors Attend the Services.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, July & -(Special.)-The new chapel at the state penitentiary was formally dedicated with religious services this morning, some 250 visitors participating in the exercises, in addition to the 200 convicts. Warden Beemer was, of course, master of ceremonies, while the services were directed by Dr. George W. Martin, chaplain of the institution. Governor Mickey made a brief address and Chancellor Andrews delivered the dedicatory address and performed the dedication.

The new chapel is fifty feet in width and 210 feet long. II is comfortably furnished with common movable chairs, a platform with pulpit, and suitable leather upthe officials at the Vatican as well as the holstered high-backed chairs and a plano. Palms were disposed about the room to augment its cheerful aspect and a number of rugs placed about the pulpit, and the plane gave a touch of elegance to the surroundings.

Only those who arrived prior to 10 a. m. were permitted to enter, as the doors were closed promptly at that hour, much to the chagrin and disappointment of about 100 people who were telated and who peered through the barred doors during the two ensuing hours with remarkable patience and determination.

The program opened with a march by Pope Leo's illness take a still more serious tion. Miss Luree Beemer, preceding the invocagovernor, followed with a plane solo, and Prof. F. A. Stuff conducted the scripture lesson. Mrs. Lillian Bobbs Helms sang a vocal selection, and after her there was a song by the choir improvised for the occasion. Prayer by Prof. Stuff was followed by another piano selection by Miss Mickey. Governor Mickey spoke on the subject of Character Building," taking as his text the scriptural quotation, "Mark the perfect man. Behold the upright."

The foundation of one's character, said the governor, is laid in the soul. The thoughts that we think and the deeds that we do are the stones with which we build. As the thoughts are, so will the structure be. If they are high and noble, the building will stand firm and soild, but if low and sensual it will soon totter and fall. There are three laws to which I wish to call your attention:

attention:

1. The blood follows the thought. For example, take a volumometer, fill it with water and place the hand therein. Now concentrate the mind upon that hand and gradually the sensitive scale records the flow of blood that forces its way into the hand. hand.

2 Action determines atructure. Suppose that I strike the keys of a plane for fitteen minutes each day for six months. What is the result? Simply this; the finger becomes larger and the muscle stronger, and not only is this finger affected, but the whole hand gains in strength by the repeated action of this one finger. Other examples are pientiful, such as the farmer, the puglist and the blacksmith, showing that the actions we perform determine the structure of our bodies.

3. Structure determines action. The time comes eventually but surely when the structure.

comes eventually but surely when the struc-tures that we have built, the habits we have formed, become master of the situa-tion. The structure controls our thoughts, our actions and our destinies.

As we have trained the muscles of our bodies so will they require certain lines of work.

As we have cultivated the different senses of the body, so will they now carry on their working for weeks to insure the success of the coming convention, and plans have been made to care for $500 visitors, though hardly so many are expected.

Fifteen acres of ground near the city park have been set aside as a convention camp, where the general meetings will be held in a large tent christened "Tent Endeavor," which will give seating from for 10,000 people. The big tent is surrounded by smaller tents and the entire grounds will be brilliantly lighted with electricity. Seventeen churches will be thrown open to the Endeavorers as the state headquarters during the convention.

The opening session will be held on Thursday afternoon, following a meeting of the trustees, at which officers for the ensuing two years will be elected.

Someone has said that to raise a child right you should begin 100 years before it is born. There is much truth in the statement. The importance of hereditary influences cannot be overestimated. While these influences are susceptible of correction where they are wrong, and of perversion where they are right, still the law of heredity as a general thing holds good, and you can get a very satisfactory index of the character of most people by studying the character of their ancestors. The old saying is that "As the twig is bent the tree's inclined," and so it is that inherited tendencies very largely shape the destinies of the world.

It is a serious thought that right now all of us, young and old, are building character which will be a dominant force 100 years or more in the future. The fact should make us more careful in the details of our own lives, more circumspect in all our acts, more desirous of doing the Master's will and following in his steps, the only correct lifts which has ever been placed before man for his guidance. SKY CASTS FLOOD ON JOYOUS CROWD

Dam, Gates, Street Car and Watting Room Borne Away Before Viclently Rushing Torrent in Pennsylvania Town.

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 5 .- A waterspout of immense proportions, striking in he vicinity of Oakford Park this afternoon, created a flood that caused a great loss of life and property. It is known that at least twenty lives were lost, and rumors place the number at more than 100.

Rain Falls in Torrents.

At 3 this afternoon rain began to fall in torrents and spread over a territory covering probably ten miles. An hour later the cloudburst occurred, crushing umbrellas carried by the crowds like eggahells. The water in the lake north of Oakford Park began to swell, and Manager James McGrath, believing that there was danger of a final break in the great walls of the dam, hurried among the crowds of pleasure-seekers who had gathered under the roofs of the eating stands, the theater, the pavilion and other buildings in line of the water, and warned them to run to the hills.

On both sides of the grounds there are high hills, the park being located in a ravine about a fourth of a mile wide and a mile long. Those protected from the rain did not want to go and only when Mr. Mca few days previous to the Fourth, the Grath and his assistants entered each building in turn and simply drove the crowd out into the rain did they realize he was in earnest.

Half an hour later the waters mounted the walls of the dam and within five min utes water to the depth of five feet was flowing over the entire length of the 400 feet of wall. The laughing gallery and other places of amusement were twisted about and all but the dancing pavilion and large lunch stand were knocked from their foundations. The rain continued to fall struck, no doubt rendering her unconscious the dam gave way with a crash. The flood tore down the ravine with a roar that was heard for two miles.

Half a mile down, at the junction of the Greensburg and Jeannette and the park car lines, the car barns are located. The entrace gates to the park were lifted and with the force of a piledriver the mammoth posts were hurled by the waters against the barn. Beyond were located the small waiting rooms and on the tracks was standing a car laden with people on their way from Greensburg and Jeannette. The electric storm had rendered the power south of here useless and the motorman was unable to move the car.

Waiting Room Carried Away. The flood struck the waiting room, containing probably a dozen people. A number of them struggled to safety, but in the excitement it is not certain how many were lost. The street car was caught and swept into the creek and whirled and tumbled about. Many of those in the car jumped off and there are conflicting stories about the number lost.

Among those swept away was C. M. Mc-Clain of Greensburg, and Misses Keefer and Crum. Young McClain is an expert swimmer and has exceptional courage. The pass an eight-hour law is given by the cries for help from the two women brought him to their side as they were struggling in the water, and grapbing both about the waist he kept their heads above water as they were carried down toward by the raging tide. The brave lad held the two women for more than a mile and then, exhausted and ready to sink, he released his hold and the women sank. was with the greatest difficulty that he managed to get ashore. The Floyd Briggs Stock company at Lake The park is patronised by the people of this town and Jeannette, and when the fact was announced that the dam had given way and rumor said from 200 to 300 people were drowned, excitement knew no bounds. The shutting down of the power house by an electric holt rendered the cars on the Pittsburg. McKeesport & Greensburg raffroad helpless, and the fact that all the lines to the park were flooded made it impossible to drive to the acene. There was but one way to get there for the thousands who had friends spending the afternbon at the park, and that was to walk over a circultous route covering fully seven

Hundreds of people who at nightfall missed members of their families at supper hastened with lanterns over the hills in search of their loved ones. Many of them were overjoyed to meet their relatives on the way home. At 11 tonight anxious fathers and mothers who succeeded in reaching the scene by carriages and other conveyances after the waters had receded lined along the flooded district anxiously searching and waiting for someone to announce the finding of a body. The army of searchers is headed by Manager Mc-Grath, who is doing everything to allay the suffering of the anxious friends.

Three Bridges Go Down. IRWIN, Pa., July 5.-The sudden rising of Brush creek this evening caused by the cloudburst at Oakford caused damage in this vicinity of several hundred thousand dollars and probably loss of life. So sudden was the rise in the stream that the people living along the banks had barely time to run to the hills. Many buildings were swept away.

The water is still rising and at 9 the freight station was washed from its foundations and carried down the stream, taking with it the Irwin bridge, the steel bridge of the Youghiogheny branch and the iron bridge to the freight yards. Five loaded coal cars on the bridges were swept down the stream. There is still a big volume of water held back by debris at Manor, and this may break at any moment.
