PRISONER HEARS THE NEWS IN SILENCE

Labor Commissioner Complains That County Clerks Are Negligent in Sending in Reports of Crop Acreage.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 6 -(Special.) -William Rhea, alias Klein; condemned to hang on Friday next within the walls of Yesterday Rhea received a visit from Governor Mickey. The chief executive found it a duty most unpleasant, but he dld not shirk it. Rheals friends had brought strong influences to bear to perman was deserving of clemency, but these pleas were of no avail-the governor gave had passed on Rhea's case according to the law; that the law was supreme and require testimony not adduced at the trial in Dodge county tending to lend a measure of extenuation, and if no such evidence was forthcoming there could be no interference by himself with the mandate of evidenced by the mission which took him to Rhea's prison.

Rhea received the governor graciously and heard the final words from the lips of the executive which sealed his doom. The governor told the unfortunate prisoner that interference with the judgment of the law was out of the question, and he advised Rhea to make haste to prepare for his fate. Rhea listened with blanched face, and although he had grown talkative during the past few weeks, the decision by the only man to whom he could look for hope left him suddenly speechless and cowering in his cell. An hour later Rhea was led by his guards to the scene of the ceremonies commemorating the dedication of the new prison cell house. Governor Mickey was one of the speakers, and Rhea listened attentively to the address, exhibiting unusual composure and self-control,

With the prisoner confined in the county where he is tried and convicted, the sympathies of the governor would not be so easily aroused and the likelihood of elemency being exless remote.

Rhea was previously sentenced to hang last year, but former Governor Savage to act as a board of electrical experts in Rhea's behalf and the responsibility was shouldered onto Savage's successor by the issue of a respite for a year. In this connection the fact is recalled that Savage himself assisted in the discovery of a plot by which Rhea was planning to escape from the prison hospital, where he was confined. A part of the wall had been almost entirely burrowed through, and an iron bludgeon was found concealed in Rhea's bedding. With the heavy weapon Rhea evidently planned to knock down one of the guards, take the keys from the helpless man, knock a hole through the weakened wall and then flee into the prison yard, from which he hoped to escape by caling the wall under cover of darkness. Governor Savage took an active part in exposing this plot, but still he lacked the The forthcoming volume will be a compre stamina to resist the pleadings in Rhea's chalf and he finally granted the respite which gave the prisoner another year's

The sanction of Lincoln citizens to the protest against the law is inspired by a feeling of revulsion against making the city noted as a penitentiary city, rather than a state capital and a center of edu-With each succeeding execution the city's name is heralded all over the country through the medlum of the newspaper dispatches and the notoriety thus derived is a detriment, in the estimation of many of its interested citizens . Because of this opposition and the reasons for it there is good justification for the prediction that an attempt will be made to repeal the law at the next legislative session. The movement evidently will not lack for supporters-the legislators from other counties favoring repeal because they think their constituents and the courts competent to administer justice without inviting interference from a sentimental governor, while Lincoln and Lancaster county may be expected to line up on the same side of the controversy because they don't want the
