POLICE JUDGE HAS BUSY DAY

Fourth of July and Sunday Send in Big

Grist for Justice Mill.

EIGHTY-SIX CASES ON THE DOCA T Young Woman of Considerable Imaginary Wealth Succeeds in Explaining Away Farmer's Charge of Pettt Larceny.

It was a long and battered line of faces that confronted Judge Berks in police court yesterday. The rigor of the Fourth of July celebration in the tenderloin had test marks, some of which will be eradicated by time, but others will leave indelible scars. Undue hilarity found the vent it always does and there were eighty-six individuals who responded to the notations on the docket. A few cases went over, but the majority were disposed of with a precision and terseness resultant from a two-days' vacation. Maud Long, a comely damsel in black silk, who is said by her attorney to be worth $20,000, was up to explain away a charge of petit larceny. Notwithstanding Maud's reputed wealth she is following a very undignified means of livelihood in a Capitol avenue resort. J. C. Scott, who said he was a farmer from Polk county. and who looked it, told the court he was certain that Maud had appropriated $30 of his June wages. Scott, however, was very confused as to his facts, while Miss Long was very positive. She was discharged.

Was No. "Cheap Man." W. H. Banescoter, a Council Bluffs man, in a way-down-east shirtwaist, bemoaned the mysterious disappearance of $15. One of his experiences on the Fourth was a meeting with Daisy Dean at 910 Capitol avenue. After a brief companionship Miss Dean reproached him for not investing in beer. whereupon the gallant Banescoter tossed his wallet in Daisy's lap and affirmed loudly that he was no "cheap man." But he couldn't prove that Daisy had the lucre, so she got off with a tax of $7 and costs. Arthur Baker, who had told Banescoter he would stand good for the amount, was fined $5 and costs for not minding his
