Freight Strike Certain

Chicagoans Look for Repetition of Last Summer's Serious Labor War.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Indications tonight are that tomorrow will see the commencement of another conflict between the freight handlers and the employers similar to that experienced last summer when the union was defeated. ...

The difficulty this time is not over wages, but is brought about by a controversy between the teamsters' union and the Kellogg Switching and Electrical company, where the employees went on strike two months ago because the firm refused to discharge ten nonunion employees. ...

When goods were unloaded onto the railroad platforms the freight handlers, under orders of their president, refused to handle the freight and were discharged. A company was then formed between the union teamsters and other unions involved in the Kellogg strike and President Curran of the Freight Handlers' union agreed to call a strike of the freight handlers employed on the railroads in Chicago if any more efforts were made to deliver goods without nonunion teamsters. ...

Preparations were made by the Kellogg company today to deliver to the railroads by nonunion teamsters seven carloads of freight. President Curran of the freight handlers said that if the Kelloggs persisted he would order a general strike. ...

The Wager

A Short Story

It was a dark night in autumn. The old banker paced his cabinet from corner to corner thinking of the evening party he had given just fifteen years ago. Many clever people were gathered together that evening, and various interesting subjects were discussed. ...

"I do not agree with you," said the host. "I think capital punishment is more moral and humane than imprisonment for life. Capital punishment does away with life instantaneously, while imprisonment does the same thing slowly. ...

"One is just as immoral as the other," remarked one of the guests, "because each has the same aim—to kill. A government is not God. A government has no right to take away that which it cannot give. If it wished to—"

"If you are in earnest," replied the jurist, "then I take up your wager. I'll stay there not five years, but fifteen years." "Gentlemen, I put up two millions."

"What is the use of this wager? What is the use of the fact that the lawyer has lost fifteen years of his life, and I have to throw away two millions? Can this prove to the world that capital punishment is worse or better than imprisonment for life? No, it cannot! It is nonsense, it is absurd. ...

"Then he recalled all that happened after that evening, described it. Was decided that the lawyer should be imprisoned in one of the wings of a banker's house. In the garden. It was agreed that for fifteen years he had no right to cross the threshold of the wing, to see anybody, to hear human voices, or to receive letters or newspapers. ...

"To show you that I really despise all that which you refuse to accept of the two millions of which I have dreamed as of paradise, and which I despise now. To forfeit my right to the money, I will leave this cell five hours before my time has expired, and when the bank is closed, I will read a letter, he put it down on the table, kissed the sleeping man on the head, burst into tears and walked out of the room. ...

"In the morning of the next day the frightened guards informed him that they saw the prisoner climb through the window of the garden—and then he ran out of the gates and disappeared. In order to prevent any undesirable rumors, the banker looked the letter of renunciation in his fire-proof safe—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Slays on Operating Table

Isate Father-in-Law First Wounds and Then Kill Daughter's Husband.

BLUFFTON, Ind., July 12.—John Terrell, a farmer near Petroleum, today killed his son-in-law, Melvin Wolfe, by firing both barrels of a shotgun into Wolfe's head, as he lay on an operating table to have a leg amputated. The operation was the result of a gunshot wound inflicted by Terrell a short time before. ...

Four years ago Wolfe married Terrell's daughter, and it is said, afterward deserted his wife and baby. It is asserted that Wolfe had driven past the Terrell home twice shouting insulting remarks and shaking his fist at Terrell. The third time the drive past Terrell jumped from some bushes along the roadside and fired at him. ...

Wolfe was hurried to the office of Dr. Saunders at Petroleum and placed on an operating table to have his leg amputated. While a crowd stood around watching the doctor, Terrell came up from his home in a buggy, broke in the door of the doctor's office, drove out the crowd at the point of his gun, and with the remark: "I am after him and I am going to get him yet," fired both barrels into his son-in-law's head. ...

After the shooting Terrell entered his buggy with his shotgun reloaded, and pointing it at the crowd that had hastily gathered, held it at bay and drove to the sheriff's residence. He is in jail.
