STARTS ON EQUALIZATION

First Kick Comes from Counties on the Valuation of Lands.

TROUBLESOME TIME IS ANTICIPATED

Deputy Oil Inspector Burns on the Curpet for Failure to Obey Instructions Regarding Method of Inspection.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, July E.-The State Board Equalization is at it again and the board does not know how long it will be at its work, as protests are coming in from many counties, and the returns from these same counties are so widely different that it will take hard work to do the equalizing.

Parties were here today and spoke for a lower assessment in Otoe, Cass, Furnas, Sarpy and other counties. The valuations made by the assessors in these counties were so high, said the speakers, that unless the levy was lowered in proportion that an injustice would be done the taxpayers. Another thing that he objected to was the fact that Gage county, though much larger, had returned 00 cattle less than was returned by the Pawnee county assessor. From remarks of hoard members, however, it is likely that the board will not go behind the returns of the assessors and if all the cattle were not returned the board will not look them up. victim of his own innocence and a little scheme on the part of his enemies. He said that when he got to West Point a man met him at the train and handed him the bottle, with the remark that the Standard Oil agent was out of town and had sent him the oil to be tested. Burns took the oil and left the town. Burns told Church that he was taken by surprise and when the oil was offered him took it and did not think he was doing wrong. Burns said he believed he would be able to get an affidavit from the man that had been hired to do that, and, as he has left the city, it is believed that he has gone after it. However, the fact that someone worked a game on Burns was no excuse for him violating his instructions relating to the testing of oil, and he was given to understand that in the future he would be expected to get his oil from the tank and not take it out of a bottle.
