The moment the flaring torches, which still led the cortege, entered St. Peter's the choir commented to sing in sorrowful cadence "Libera me Domine." Monsignor Carcani, the canon of St. Peter's, solemnly sprinkled hely water over Leo's body and pronounced absolution. As it was borne across the threshold the cathedral choir, still singing, took the lead of the now lengthy procession. The intense silence was broken only by mournful chants which echoed and re-echoed from the huge dome and deserted aisles of the chapels as the body was borne down the nave to the Chapel of the Sacrament. There candles burned brightly. In this chapelle ardente the body was reverently stretched behind the iron gates and two members of the noble guard took up their positions on either side of the bler.

The procession then reformed and returned to the Vatican, leaving the body of Leo XIII. in the greatest church in the world, alone, except for the faithful guard and the still praving penitentiaries

Tonight the body of the dead pope rests on the high catafalque, while his slippered feet protrude from the gates, to be kissed by the faithful tomorrow and the two following days.

Break Down Crypt Door.

While this ceremonial was being carried out the private ceremony of depositing the urn containing the pope's viscera in the Church of Saints Vincent and Anastasius was taking place. A curious hitch occurred when the solemn procession arrived at the door of the special depository in the crypt and found that no key had been provided. The attendants hunted high and low and were finally obliged to break down the door. The depository had not been opened since 1846, as, contrary to custom, the viscera of Pius IX. are at St. Peter's.

At this morning's session of the congregation Cardinal Creglia asked if the conclave should be held in Rome and Cardinals Martenelli and Steinhuber objected on the ground of possible influence by the Italian government. Cardinal Oregila, who, himself, at the time of the death of Plus IX. favored a proposition to hold the conclave outside of Italy today declared that interference by the Italian government was impossible and the proposition to hold the enclave in Rome was carried unanimously.

The congregation also decided that all participating in the conclave should be shut party on the occasion of the funeral his holiness. JOHN REDMOND. off from all communication with the ou In 1878 Cardinal Hohenlohe was world. permitted to have his meals sent from
