CHURCHMEN OF EXPERIENCE AND ABILITY

Most Likely to Succeed Pope Leo XIII as Pontiff.

LEADING CANDIDATES FOR THE SUC-CESSION-Cardinals, Vannutelli, S. Rampolla. Oregin. SECONDARY CANDIDATES FOR THE SUCCESSION-Cardinals.

Capecelatro, Vannutelli, Hicnelmy, Ferrari; Colesia. cenni. V Sarto. Who will succeed Leo XII on the thron of St. Peter? This question is now asked in every corner of the civilized world. Every member of the Roman Catholic church, from the humblest layman to prelates and cardinal princes, is interested in the answer, and sovereigns, ministers and cabinets of the earth's great nations delve into international politics in striving to shape the an-

Six cardinals, as given in the first group named above, stand out as the most prominent candidates for succession to the papal throne and the fisherman's ring. Since the first suggestion several years ago that Leo's light might be near its end their names have been forward in speculation as to the succession.

In the event of a crisis or a deadlock in the choosing of a successor to Leo XIII which would preclude the selection of any one of the five chief candidates, the election would probably fall to one of the eight secondary candidates.

Cardinal Scrafino Vannutelli, bishop of Porto Santa Rufina, one of two brothers in the sucred college and a strong candidate for the triple crown, represents the extreme "moderns." He is the diplomat, the poltshed man of the world, rather than the typical ecclesiastic of ascetic tendenciesthe "first gentleman" of the Vatican court. Politically he is at the head of the reconciliationists, who favor acceptance of present conditions and compromise of differruces with the Italian government for the Cardinal Antonelli, Pius IX nominated of Italy, although he has never gone to to the post of secretary of the Oriental sourt, and is supposed to be in high favor department of the propaganda fide, and with the triple alliance.
