MILLINERY FOR THE HORSES Paris Has at Last Caught the Pad of Protecting Horses from Heat.

(Copyright, 1908, by Press Publishing Co.) PARIS, Aug. 1 .- (New York World Cablegram-Special Telegram.)-Paris horses, through the instrumentality of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals have adopted the fashion of wearing straw devices have been tried, even little parasols attached to the harness, to keep the glare from the herses' eyes, but the latest agony is the ornamental hat. Some are trimmed as if intended for a coquettiah miss, in red, blue or yellow bows or other gay decorations, for when it comes to millinery the French capital demands that even four-footed wearers must be chic.
