STORE AND MEAT MARKET ARE VISITED

Crimes Are Charged Up to a Gang of Tramps Who Escaped to Railroad Yards and Has Not Been Located.

Robbers held up and robbed the grocery store of Samuel Graves, 1822 High street, and the meat market of J. A. Kirk at the corner of High street and Graham avenue, about 9 o'clock last night. The Kirk robbery occurred fifteen minutes after the holdup at Graves' place. It is thought that the robbers are a gang of tramps, as they made for the rallroad yards. At Graves' store two men entered while one remained on guard outside. The fellows were both armed with revolvers and wore slouch hats drawn down over their eyes, but no further disguise. Graves and two customers who were in the store were lined up against the wall while one of the robbers went through their pockets and the other stood with his revolver at their heads. From Graves they secured $5 in cash, and from George W. Catterlin, a railroad man, a gold watch and chain. After cautioning the three men to stay quiet, the two robbers backed to the door, joined their companion on guard and ran towards the Milwaukee yards, where they were soon lost sight of. At the Kirk meat market two men stayed outside while the third entered the shop and ordered 15 cents worth of round steak Mrs. Kirk was in the shop alone and when she turned to go to the icebox for the meat the fellow presented his revolver and told her she need not bother atout getting the meat. Keeping the gun pointed at the frightened woman, the robber made his way back of the counter to the till, which he opened and emptied, securing about $4 in small change. While the robbers at the two places were evidently different persons, the police believe they belonged to the same gang of tramps, and after the holdups reunited in the railroad yards.
