Mighty Throng Gathers at the Citadel Under His Edict.

ELEVEN HUNDRED AND MORE KNIGHTS

Rell of Retainers of Ak-Sar-Ben VIII Has Reached Goodly Number, but Greater Activity is Urged on Knights.

And when Phoebus Apollo had driven his steeds far beyond the western limit of the world, and the artificers and traffickers in wares and goods had withdrawn from the market place, behold there was a sound of great mirth and revelry at the citadel of the imperial city. For therein had gathered of the chosen citizens a goodly throng, whose hearts were merry with a great gladness, and who did homage before the mighty and imperial master of the world. And their rejoicing was not confined, but was the more great and uplifting because the legions had returned to the imperial city with their arms bound in laurels and their shields wreathed with bays. And with them they brought captive a horde of barbarians who had vainly resisted the pulssant and masterful decree of the great Samson, whose name is honored above all others but the king, Ak-Sar-Ben VIII-may his name ever be blessed-and whose voice is the voice of the mighty and resistless monarch of the realm. And with these captives were those who had reviled and contumaciously retested the edict. These fellows, whose thoughts are of evil and whose hearts turn to destruction, were safely confined that they might grace a Roman holiday. And with one acclaim did the multitude lift up its voice when the decree of the noble Samson was made known, that the malcontents should be put to the test. So it came to pass that in the arena they were given to feel of the power of the imperial one whose will they had in their ignorance so boldly defied. Nor did they lack in valor, but showed such mettle that with admiration were they who survived received to knighthood and citizenship. And all of them wrought well and nobly in the arena, but did not never so well as him who is Knight Pritchett and who proved he is a doughty knight and one well endowed by the gods with those qualities of mind and graces of body that denote one who does not willingly let go when he has a good thing within his grasp.

Prosperity Blesseth the Realm.

City Council Listens to Reports from City Attorney on Litigation.

GENERAL DEMAND FOR CROSSWALKS

Councilmen Come to Meeting Londed with Resolutions, All of Which Are Referred to Committee

Without Debate.

While the session of the city council last night was of short duration, several communications of importance were read and referred to committees. On the two claims for damages on account of the grading of Q street from Twenty-third street to Twenty-fourth street, City Attorney Murdock reported that in his opinion there was no ase and the report was placed on file. City Attorney Murdock reported that he now had twenty-two cases pending in the supreme court. H. L. Cohn, assistant city attorney, through Mr. Murdock reported the cases he had disposed of in the police court and in other courts. Crosswalks seemed to be the order of the evening. Councilman Mike Smith put in a bid for about three dozen crosswalks in the southern part of the city. The motion was referred to the street and alley committee. Then came Queenan, O'Connor and Broderick with motions for crosswalks When the clerk finished reading all these papers the mayor remarked that it would take more than one lumber yard to supply the material, to say nothing of the cost of laying the walks.

Broderick demanded that watchmen be placed at railroad crossings, and as this s considered important the city clerk was directed to notify all railroads passing through South Omaha to maintain watchmen at grade crossings.

A week ago a communication was referred to City Attorney Murdock regarding the drafting of an ordinance for the laying of a two-plank walk on the north side of U street between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets. In this connection the attorney called the attention of the council to provisions in the charter which prohibit the laying of wooden sidewalks on streets which have been graded. He further say sthat U street is incorporated in grading district No. 19, and therefore he declines to draw the ordinance as directed, Only permanent sidewalks can be laid in this district.

A demand is to be made of the street-car company to have two cars run on the Qstreet line west of Twenty-seventh street. The absence of restraint, he said, is the sole cause of the feud. The mountaineers of Appalachian America are the descendants of colonials, not to be confused with poor whites. They were somberners who owned land, but not slaves, and who were

The case in Breathitt county is a political ne, an authreak unusual and not to be classed with ordinary feuds. As the death of Hamilton was the occasion of a great sermon by Dr. Knott, which practically ended the duel in America, so we may hope the storm of opposition aroused by the death of Marcum may bring us near the end of political assassinations in Kentucky. It can be said that there is no definite foundation for the story. The president since the first intimation, many months ago, of Secretary Root's retirement has hoped and still hopes he will remain in the cabinet for a long time yet. Perspiration-"sweat" is what the Bible and we common people call it-is a way nature has of driving out of the body refuse that has no business there. We sweat more in summer, because, in the overheated bowels, undigested food ferments more quickly than in winter and produces irritating acids and gases. The bowels, overworked, try to relieve themselves by violent convulsions, causing terrible gripes and colics, and diarrhoeal discharges so acid as to make you sore, and leaving the intestines weak and worn out. Nature assists body-cleaning by sending the filth out through the pores of the skin. It is not safe to stop perspiring altogether but most of the impure matter should be sent out by natural movements of the bowels, and the offensive, ill-smelling, linen-staining sweat done away with. Keep your bowels strong all summer with the pleasant, candy cathartic CASCARETS, that clean the system and don't allow the excrement to be sweated out through the pores. Take a tablet every night, before going to bed. They work while you sleep and make you feel fine and cool all day. Best for the Boweis. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c. Never sold in bulk. The senuine tablet stamped C. C. C. Quaranteed to cure or your money back. Sample and booklet free. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.
