

WOMAN'S PLACE IN WORLD

Elle Darling McKillop Adds Another Chapter to the Debate.

HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED

If the Wife is Guided by Common Sense Her Wedded Life Will Not Be a Failure.

BEAUMONT, Neb., Aug. 14.—To the editor of The Bee: The Literary Digest of August 1, under the title of "A Woman's Indictment of Present Day Marital Relations," reviews and article by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, in which the writer concludes that marriage is a failure, for women at least, as long as it is maintained on its present basis, for the reason that this relation is so one-sided. A woman's husband, children and home are expected to be her world, while the man has his wife, children, home and the world as well.

Mrs. Gilman suggests a case of a woman, with satisfactory domestic relations, a kind husband and nice children, an extensive house and means to gratify her tastes in its adornment, but she has uneasy longings, unsatisfied ambitions, and cravings for companionship which she cannot get from her relations of life to satisfy, and consequently marriage is a failure, and it will only come to be such when both sexes realize they have far wider duties and desires than those of the domestic relations.

It seems strange that a publication like the Literary Digest should give space to the review of such a bit of a woman. If marriage was a failure in the case above cited, it was because the woman was a soulful female, devoid of common sense, who with everything necessary for happiness, refused to enjoy life because she had not a job on the railroad, or was not otherwise mixed up in the world like her husband.

Man's Side and Woman's Side.

If marriage is one-sided, as the woman asserts, the woman has the easy side of it, for she is provided for, protected, humored, loved, and petted, unless she becomes so disagreeable or commonplace that it is impossible to love her. Thousands of women expect love and devotion from their husbands, and all the fortunate gifts of life as their rightful due when they have neither wit, beauty, brains, agreeability, or scarcely common sense and really ought to be thankful that their husbands tolerate them, and their acquaintances refrain from throwing things at them.

"In ourselves, not in our state, that we are underlings" and we generally get it we pay for in life.

In married life the man holds the heavy end of the lever. He has to provide a home and plunge in to the struggle for existence to keep it going. That is his world, and it is no sin when he sees men as capable as himself constantly going to the wall, and their families to want.

Responsibility of the Wife.

Any woman who has a home and the comforts of life and a husband who does not get drunk or beat her has no business to allow marriage to be a failure, for men are what the women make them, generally, and while some of our fair artisans do not exactly rank with Phidias or Praxiteles in their human sculpturing, yet upon the whole they turn out pretty fair. Always a woman can make or mar most any man, and in nine cases out of ten where marriage is a failure it is woman's fault, for the home is her special realm, and the love and attention a woman gives her husband is the only incentive that always pays 100 per cent, and it is her duty to make her home the most desirable place on earth for husband, children and friends. And if she fails, the fault is not in marriage maintained on its present basis, as millions of happy homes all over our broad land can testify, but in her own lack of tact.

Many a good housekeeper is a miserable home maker, and is about as interesting to her husband as a chair, a table or any other piece of household furniture. And other people often complain that marriage is a failure because their husbands do not love them. Well, perhaps they can't. Because we ought to love a person is no reason in the world for our doing so, and taking into consideration the natural coarseness of human nature, it is a very good reason for our not doing so; and there is no reason why a man should love his wife, because she does her duty and is a good housekeeper, if she is not agreeable and attractive enough to compel his affection, than there is for a woman to love her husband just because he earns the living and keeps his barn clean. Love is not governed by the will.

What some women need is more common sense and love. They do not seem to realize that a man cannot always keep at that high pressure of love and enthusiasm that made him want to jump over the moon, that he cannot always be ripping the universe to tatters and vowing by the eternal stars how he adores her. He has caught his car, and there are times when he can see, for him to keep jumping on and chasing it every little while, just to make things interesting for his wife. And it is her business to make his journey pleasant by cultivating a sympathy, a congeniality of tastes and a jolly camaraderie that is far more comfortable to us than the reformation than love's herculean.

When Marriages Never Fail.

We never hear anything about marriage being a failure in those countries where woman is held in more consideration than a chattel, but in America, where woman's condition is ideal for I would rather be an American woman with her freedom, intelligence, social and civic rights, with the courtesy, deference, respect and love that is given her than to reign a queen on any foreign throne.

It is the failures that attract our attention, for it is only when a couple has troubles that they are worth talking about. Divorces are only 1 per cent of the marriages, statistics say, and in business where the failures are only 1 per cent would be regarded as a very safe investment.

I have no sympathy for Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman's soulful woman, who sighs for a sphere and look upon the home as a secondary consideration.

The home is above every other interest in the wide world, for the apex of civilization, the same of existence, is a happy home, and should be the aim of every woman who is fortunate enough to have family ties. Her best energies, her best talents, in short the best of everything should be given to the home first. Then if she has any energy or talent left over, more than is needed for home consumption, she can pass it out to the community, but she should keep the choice fruits of life for husband and children. Prunes and dried apples are good enough for the world.

THROWS BLAME ON COMPANY

Paris Motorman Says Defective Motor Was Responsible for Accident.

(Copyright, 1903, by Press Publishing Co.) PARIS, Aug. 15.—(New York World Telegram)—The Metropolitan subway company does not hesitate to throw all the blame for the subway disaster on Chauvin, the motorman of train No. 4, whose passengers were all killed. Chauvin, on the other hand, makes a vigorous statement, putting the management in a bad light. He declares that his motor had been in bad shape a long time, and that he had taken it to the repair shop twice within the twenty-four hours before the accident occurred, and that all the motorman made daily reports of the defective condition of his motor, but that the officials ignored their complaints, saying that the motor was good enough, and that the traffic was too heavy to admit of repairs. Chauvin says he wanted to sidetrack his train at Belleville, and was astonished to find that the train was run by the station, with the evident intention of going as far as Place de la Nation. He avers that he whistled to stop the train, but that the motorman behind did not hear the signal.

The officials of the road belittle Chauvin's statement, saying that the only repair the motor needed was in the brakes, and that its condition was no wise responsible for the accident. Financially, the catastrophe was a serious blow. Metropolitan shares have already dropped off more than 50 points and the number of passengers fell from 280,000, on the day before the accident, to about 100,000 on the following day. It is expected that the municipality will require additional ventilators and exits. That will necessitate the expenditure of millions by the company. Then the damage to be paid for loss of life will be heavy.

MAY RATIFY THROUGH FEAR

Colombian Senate, Afraid of Annexation, May Accept Canal Treaty.

PANAMA, Aug. 15.—Letters received from Bogota say that up to August 1 the Panama canal committee had only held one meeting on account of the disgust of the members with the conduct of Senator Perez, who insisted on recalling the treaty at the first meeting. Senator Obaldia, a warm supporter of the treaty, has had several conferences with President Marroquin and United States Minister Beaudry, but notwithstanding their efforts the committee could not be induced to report in favor of the treaty.

Both the house of representatives and the senate are deeply impressed with the persistent rumors which reach Bogota of the possibility of a movement for the secession of the isthmus in case the treaty is not ratified. The fear that such an eventuality might follow failure to ratify the treaty appears to constitute the only chance for favorable action.

MAKE WAR ON SHIP TRUST

Onward and White Star Both Start Mediterranean Service from Boston.

BIG FIGHT FOR SEA FREIGHTS IS FORESEEN

Dominican South Europe Service Transferred to Combine's Line Preparatory to Struggle Impending with British Company.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Word was received from England today by the White Star line that the Mediterranean service of the Dominion line, running from Boston, had been turned over to the White Star. Commenting on this, the World tomorrow will say:

There is to be a struggle lasting indefinitely between the International Mercantile Marine company, as is evinced by the statement by the latter that the available Canadian tonnage a Mediterranean service from Boston, and the counter-statement from the White Star that it too would have a similar service from the same port.

For two years the Dominion line, which is a part of the "steamship combine," has operated a line to Mediterranean ports and the Dominion field to itself. The White Star now says it will take over the Dominion line, improve it and bring it to so high a standard that the available Canadian ships may be outclassed. An official of the White Star line said today that it is a "friendly competition."

PRINTERS COMPLETE LABORS

Forty-Ninth Annual Session of the International Union Comes to a Close.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The forty-ninth annual session of the International Typographical union closed today. Before adjournment a vast amount of business was rushed through, including the committee reports on labels, allied unions and eight-hour day.

The last-named committee noted the progress made during the last year on the eight-hour movement and favorably reported the following resolution, which was adopted by the convention:

Resolved, That the committee on eight-hour day be and it do hereby notify the unions which have not already obtained the eight-hour day of made their effort on the part of its provisional institution, that it is the sense of the International Typographical union that they make effort on January 1, 1906, to obtain the eight-hour day, according to plans deemed most expedient by each local union, in their several localities.

J. Bracken was elected fourth vice president and C. F. Nuremberger delegate to the American Federation of Labor.

A resolution providing for the appointment of a committee, whose duties it shall be to inquire into the relation of taxation to wages and the advisability of nationalizing the trusts and monopolies and report its findings in the Typographical Journal, was adopted.

The action of the convention regarding the Cummings memorial provides that if sufficient funds can be raised for the purpose within a year a library building will be added to the printers' home, to be known as the Cummings Memorial library, instead of erecting a monument.

The Electrotypers' and Stereotypers' union held the last of its series of meetings today. President Freid declined to present before a board, Dillard, who is an ex-roughrider, was drunk, and was shouting down a proposition to establish a journal to be devoted to its interests, but a motion to adopt an official button prevailed.

BUILDING MEN CHANGE RULE

Denver Convention Restricts Strike Assessments to Members of Council.

DENVER, Aug. 15.—The Building Trades convention today made an important change in the constitution affecting per capita assessments for strike and lock-out benefits. Heretofore assessments were levied on the total membership of all national and international locals affiliated with the council. Now it will be limited to unions which are affiliated with the local councils that are members of the National Building Trades council.

The constitution committee reported back the referendum resolution and recommended that action on the matter be held in abeyance.

The organization committee recommended the adoption of the resolution in favor of the union of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America to affiliate with the council. The report was concurred in, a delegate representing the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners dissenting.

The recommendation of the constitution committee that the jurisdiction of the lathers should be amended so as to give all the sheeting work to the carpenters' trade was concurred in by 112 to 10.

THREATS OF INSANE MAN

Sends Woman in Pittsburgh Pieces of Clothing Soaked in Blood.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 15.—Officers were present at West Liberty and Union station today watching for the coming of Prof. Edwin T. Osboldeston from New York, for whom a warrant has been issued on a charge of threatening the life of Mrs. Flanagan, but he did not arrive.

Osboldeston formerly lived here and was very attentive to Mrs. Flanagan, who was then unmarried. Eighteen months ago she left for Germany. Osboldeston followed soon afterward and found her in the company of a man, and it is alleged, shot and killed him. He was arrested, but adjudged insane and committed to the asylum. When returned to Pittsburgh and married F. Flanagan, superintendent of a chemical company. Yesterday Mrs. Flanagan received a letter inclosing pieces of blood-soaked clothing, through which bullet holes scorched with powder, were visible. I send you some of the life's blood of my last victim." Mrs. Flanagan's house is guarded by officers.

HAYDEN BROS.

TWO IN DANGER OF THE MOB

Brace of Murderers, at Lander, Wyo., Likely to be Victims of Lynching.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 15.—Advised from Lander at 2 o'clock this morning indicated that that town would probably be the scene of a double lynching and that James Keffer and James Dillard would be the victims. A large crowd of excited men gathered about the Lander jail late last night and for a time it looked as though the battle would be stormed at once.

The mob was armed with rifles and revolvers and two or three men carried ropes. After a brief consultation among the leaders, however, the crowd apparently dispersed, but an attack is expected at any moment.

Dillard killed Frank Bryant in a saloon Wednesday, after having beaten Ross Stringer, with a board. Dillard, who is an ex-roughrider, was drunk, and was shooting up the town at the time.

James Keffer was convicted of murdering William Warren, a stage tender, on the Lander-Rawlins line two years ago and was sentenced to be hanged, but was granted a stay of execution pending an appeal to the supreme court. The regular guard is at the jail, but that is small.

Up to 10 o'clock today no lynching had occurred at Lander, but the sentiment in favor of one appeared to be very strong, and it is feared an attempt will be made tonight, if not before, to take both Dillard and Keffer from jail and hang them.

Today two brothers and two half brothers of James Dillard, accompanied by several friends, arrived from about a dozen, arrived, well armed. It is reported that the Dillards have sworn to save Jim Dillard from the mob and also that they plan to attack the jail and rescue the alleged murderer.

THE COLLEGE BOY HARVESTER

His Adventure with the Hardy, Freed-Handed Milkmaid Fashioned in Kansas.

One of the college boys who went to the western Kansas harvest fields writes to a friend an account of his experiences, saying:

"Well, this isn't what it is cracked up to be and Harold would have confessed himself all in and come home to mamma inside of two days after the starting if he hadn't been worse afraid of the joshing of you devils than of blistered paws. Speaking of blistered paws, it's no joke. Before night the first day I had puffs all over my hands and that night the fat dame of this household stuck needles into 'em and tapped me until I ran water like a hydrant. But the old boy was good to me and for two days he kept me at choring around, hauling water, helping the fat dame cook and playing the baby generally. Then I tackled the header boxes again for ten straight days and I really got to liking it. But say, Willie, don't you believe that story about a shortage in the world's crop. I know better, for I pitched enough of the blasted stuff to make two crops of world's breadstuff."

"And Willie, there is another thing you can disabuse your feasting intellect of. It seems to be the idea out here that you don't spoon with these country girls with the joyous freedom that you read about. We have a roll-poly girl here who doesn't wear corsets and who don't care how much sock she displays when she kicks at the cat. I kissed her the other night. I won't do it any more. If I want exercise of a rapid kind I will go out and ground an electric light wire through my handsome person. She whacked me on the side of the head with a fat like a ham, and don't you doubt it, Willie, she meant every word of it."

"I get it a day and 'found,' 'found' means that the old man comes to your doorway each at 3 o'clock in the morning and, finding
