

Labor Troubles in Missouri Mines Bear Possible Relation to Omaha Market. DEALERS EAGERLY WATCH THE FIGHT

W. E. Cooper Says Raise in Prices Not Commensurate with Extra Cost of Production-Operators Cannot Control Supply.

Omaha coal dealers are regarding with a great deal of interest the dispatches from the Novinger, (Mo.) district, in which there is a contest between the authority of President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America and James Mooney, the district leader. Omaha receives only a trouble is speedily settled.

in the past few years. And still, at the increased price the demand from the rallroads, packing houses and all other kinds of concerns using steam is greater than the supply. In the territory in which we furnish a considerable part of the supply there are industries being established today which will require twenty ions of steam coal per day. And that is the way it has been going all over the country, and without any increase in the amount of steam coal produced. The domestic coal market ts not so had, but no one can predict conditions in the coal business at this time." APPROACH TO BRIDGE DOWN desire to spend a few days here.

On Thursday night of the carnival there will be a grand ball at the temple and the queen of the carnival will be announced. The queen, with one of the prominent members of the Workmen, will lead the grand march. There will be some little ceremony in crowning the queen before the ball commences, but the details have not been arranged yet.

The program for the event, which opens September 21 and continues until the 28th. opens on the evening of the 21st with a parade. Jacob Jaskalek, grand master workman, and grand lodge officers, will dedicate the temple. Then the carnival will be declared open. It is the Intention of the Workmen to keep the carnival open from noon each day until midnight. Numerous attractions have been arranged for and it is expected that the carnival will draw quite a large number of visitors from out in the state. Committees have been appointed to meet trains and escort all visiting delegations to the temple. Arrangements are also being made to secure adequate hotel accommodations for those who the walls, now is extra and paid for extra Another added expense, and a very material one to the operators, is the decreased production. We have facilities, for example, for mining 20,000 tons of coal per day and have a demand for it, but during August our production did not exceed 12,000 tons per day. Yet the pay of the men at the mine engaged on 'dead work,' who are paid by the day of eight hours, was just the same, and office and all other expenses were just the same as though the production had been up to the limit.

"No, the operators cannot control the supply as conditions exist today, and they cannot even tell what their production will be for a day or a week in advance. We may have rush orders for 200 cars of coal and not 100 cars on hand, but if the miners choose to leave off work at noon we cannot tell them we need more coal and to go back into the mines. He cautioned the Jews against the grow ing tendencies, especially in this country, to lay aside religion for the accumulation of vast wealth and pointed out a path of duty to the Master more worthy of emulation by those of his faith, than to take as their example the scions of wealth. He referred to the fall of nations and individuals in the following manner: "Paradoxical as it may seem, the fall of nations and the downfall of man may be traced directly to too much prosperity." His paradox had been proven time and again, as asserted, and elinched his argument by repeating the old but trite saying that 'the individual is the index of the race.' Rabbi Simon announced from the pulpit, at the close of Mr. Bernstein's discourse that Julian Miller; a student of the Cincinnati college, also of Omaha, would occupy his pulpit on next Friday night.
