State Superintendent Fowler Sends Circular of Instructions to Teachers and School Officers.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Sept. 6.- (Special.)-This was a busy day at the State fair grounds. Hammers and saws and knockers and sightseers made it so. The wind did its instruction, has removed from the county little stunt and small boys reaped a harvest sitting on the lower edges of the tents to keep them from blowing away. The last finishing touches were put on the buildings and those who have concessions for lunch counters and other things were hard at work getting them in shape for to make the race. It is a conceded fact the great crowd that is sure to be there that the republican ticket this year is an tomorrow. Already many visitors have come to town and a number of these spent in the majority the gentlemen referred to the day at the grounds.

The formal opening of the fair is tomorrow, at which time labor organizations will hold the boards. W. J. Bryan, Congreasman Burkett and others will do the peaking. The parade will march around the city, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. This will be reviewed by Governor Mickey from the veranda of the Lincoln hotel, in company with other prominent citizens. Tuesday will be Creaceus day and that is expected to be the biggest day of the fair. Bleachers have been erected for the acmodation of 1,000 people. Wednesday is Fraternal day and every lodge in the state is expected to be here in force.

Advises School Officers

State Superintendent Fowler today will mail to the county superintendents and principals of schools his annual letter advising them regarding their conduct of schools, their relations to the home and school board, and outlining to some extent the work of the school. The superintendent in his opening paragraph congratulated the teachers on the auspicious condition of school affairs now prevailing in the state. He tells the superintendents that more teachers have taken professional training in the summer just passed than ever before. These teachers, he said, had returned to their schools at increased salaries. He referred to the school of superintendence held at Omaha as an epoch in school supervision and predicts that the ensuing school year will be the most suc-

cemaful in the history of the state. Superintendent Fowler advised the teachers to speak well of their predecessors or not at all and to be evolutionists instead of revolutionists, making changes gradually from the rules of predecessors. He tells the teachers that the Boards of Education are as a rule composed of reasonable men and if approached in a frank and reasonable way will usually meet the teacher more than half way and will stand by the teachers when it comes to the test. He advised principals to stand by their teachers and if the teachers' work is not satisfactory to be brave enough to ask for resignations respect for fair, unwavering discipline. It would avoid much trouble and irrita-tion if the schools would consult with the home more than it does on questions of disciplines, home study, attendance, punc-tuality, party going and party giving, etc. A regulation harmless and proper in itself might be enforced in such a way as to render it exceedingly obnoxious and al-most unendurable to parents and pupils. Reason with the parents if they are reas-onable, and parents usually are when the facts are fairly stated and they see that some action is necessary for the good of their own children. The school should not be arbitrary or dictatorial. Parents have rights and are and should be the proper guardians of their children and responsible for their acts in school and out. Many parents would prefer to punish their chilguardians of their children and responsible for their acts in school and out. Many parents would prefer to punish their chil-dren themselves for misconduct in school and would do so more severely than the teacher, if applied to in the proper spirit. How to secure the proper co-operation of the home is a problem, the solution of which demands the best efforts of the sup-erintendent or principal and his teachers. Lincoln by Gaslight.

Speaking of the relations to pupils and the co-operation of the home, Mr. Fowler said:

Lincoln is now trying the experiment of gas lights on the streets. Last night the Cleveland Vapor Light company turned on 194 of them and furnished carriages the members of the city council to ride over the city and look at them. The globes for the lights in that part of the city north of O street have not yet arrived and these lights will not be installed before next week. It is intended to use 220 lights in all.

The gas lights are supposed to be 100candle power, and under the worst possible circumstances are supposed to give out 85-candle power light. It is said the electric lights, which are supposed to be 2,000candle power, give out about 660-candle power light.

The installing of gas lights is the end for the present of a bitter fight waged by the city against the Lincoln Electric Light and Gas company. It comes apparently as a punishment of the people for daring the attempt to throw off the corporation yoke. On two occasions the people have approved by their ballots the issue of bonds for the erection of an electric lighting plant, but both occasions the corporations were able to prove the ordinance under which in hovels; to weave beautiful garments war come. Our soldier is the peer of any the bonds were to be issued defective. After the second round the council voted to put in gas lights. A Cleveland firm. got the contract to install the lights and the Lincoln Gas company furnishes the gas.

Mrs. Marian H. Dunham, president

Mrs. Dunham said: "The labor question resolves itself into the proposition as to who shall have the product of labor; whether it shall be the laborer who produces wealth, or the capitalist, who takes It is spoken of by the socialists as a class struggle, the struggle between the laborer and the man who profits by the work of the laborer.

I said before, all this is changed. What we need now is the hardening process not only for the regulars, but for the National Guard.
