BRITISH NATIONAL PHYSIQUE Unfitness of a Large Proportion of Men Seeking Service in the

The physical unfitness of a large proportion of the men offering themrelves as recruits for the army in England is strikingly brought out by the recent report of the director general, Army Medical service, which was published by the War office in the form of a parliamentary paper.

remarks in his report: "Were all classes of the community able to provide their offspring with ample food and air space a healthy race would be produced and the proper material to flil the ranks of the army would probably soon be obtained."

The new scheme of army organization for the British army requires 50,000 recruits a year, but the director general's report shows that only 68,000 are examined annually, and of these about 23,500 are reected, giving a deficiency of 5,500 per annum, which England hopes to make up by colonial assistance.-New York Sun.

Oil Well Shooter Starts & Few Pelces of Nitroglycerin and Survives the Shock.

The statement of oil well shooters, who have said that they never had but one accident, and did not live to discuss it, has been accepted as correct until the present time. but Leroy Hyer, a shooter for the St. Mary's Torpedo company, has experienced his accident, but lives to tell it. Hyer was shooting an oil well in Van Buren township, Indiana, Saturday evening.
He had previously lowered several hundred quarts of nitroglycerin into the well, and was sending down a tube containing twenty quarts of the high explosive, while twenty quarts remained in his wagon, standing near the well. The tube which was eing lowered is thought to have been leaking, and the friction on the side of the drive pipe is supposed to have caused an explosion.

When the tube containing twenty quarts was about fifteen feet below the surface, instantly the derrick, engine house, boiler

No One Able to Tell Whether Convention

John O. Yeiser Exhibits a Spirit of Indifference as to Judicial Nominations-Two More Repub-Henn Candidates,

Whether there will be a populist judicial convention, or a mass meeting of populists, times the cost per pound of a thoroughly or any other kind of a meeting at Washfor the wonders, because the grocery men ington hall this afternoon or tonight is do not know they are in town and pass by the question now being discussed by mem-

Spirit of Indifference.

John O. Yeiser declares that he has taken little interest in the matter, and that so far as he knows little interest has been or is being taken in it by other populists. "The only thing for the populists to do when they get together is to endorse candidates already nominated," Mr. Yeiser so and are now selling at $2 in lots. Some says, "as no good could be accomplished by putting up more candidates." P. L. Forgan, who is credited with being a very "straight" populist, says that in the present case the only thing for the populists to do is to select the best men on the two tickets and endorse them. Doing this, Mr. Forgan admits, may not be an easy task, as he has found that fellow populists do not agree with him as to who are the best men on the republican and democratic tickets.

"I do not believe in simply endorsing the bar ticket," said Mr. Forgan. "Lawyers in my opinion are taking entirely too active a part in all affairs; the people are just as able to select judges as are the lawyers, and in some ways are letter able to do so, as they are not influenced or prejudiced as are the lawyers." Chairman Thomas of the populist committee was not at his office and the dispute as to what hour the adjournment was taken to on August 22 remains unsettled. It was 2 p. m. according to some and 8 p. m. according to others. On the ground that probably a larger attendance can be secured in the evening the meeting probably will be held at the latter hour.

PLANS FOR BATTLESHIPS LIVED TO TELL ABOUT IT Upward of 1,200 Drawings Must Be Made and Approved by the Government.

> When Uncle Sam desires to build a warship there must be something over 1,200 plans drawn and approved by the government before the vessel can be constructed. These plans alone, in the case of a first class battleship such as Vermont, the contract for which has been recently awarded to the Fore River Ship and Engine company, near Boston, cost the builders about $75,000. For the steel plates of the hull, to take a single large item, 500 distinct and separate plans are necessary. The 800 or 900 plans necessary for a hull as a whole range from a small a quarter wide; and each plan must be duplicated in at least a dozen blue prints to facilitate the work of the shops and save the original drawings from being worn out by constant handling.

At a rough estimate this means that over 18,600 square feet of paper will be LONDON, Sopt. 7.—The money market was easy today. Discounts were steady. On the stock exchange business was quiet, but the tone was good. The celebration of Labor day at New York had the effect of checking business. Consors were in better demand. Americans were almost stagnant, but were quietly cheerful. There were a few advances in these stocks on New York bank statement Saturday was not regarded favorably, but did not induce much selling. The market for Americans closed firm Kaffirs had a firm uniertons.

The amount of builton taken into the Bank of England on balance today was E15.000.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Prizes on the boerse separate drawings will be necessary before the battleship has been accurately made on paper.

These hundreds of plans do not consist, as one might at first imagine, in plan after plan of the vessel until Uncle Sam smiles approval and says 'Go shead, that suits me exactly." As a matter of fact Uncle Sam has a very complete notion of what is going to suit him exactly before the St. 55-56-56. Receipts. 4.855 head; steady to 5c. HOGS—Receipts. 4.855 head; s

American markets were closed because of Labor day.

POPS SEEM TO BE AT SEA these first plans, although they represent the labor of three government departments, the Bureau of Construction and Repair, the Bureau of Equipment and the Bureau of Ordnance, are simply a statement of the kind of vessel wanted and are supplemented by a bound volume of specifications that covers between 200 and 200 pages. It is this interesting volume that the management of the shipbuilding establishments has to reduce to terms of profit and cost before it decides upon the minimum price for which it can build the vessel, pay about four years' wages to 1,000 workmen and put a little something in the bank on its own account. In the case of Vermont the final cost per pound is estimated at 15 cents, or three modern steel schooner. No object, either on land or sea, could be more carefully specified in its every detail than a modern war vessel. When the government orders a canvas gun cover. same time that as there were only an making of the cover may choose to count the company. This small example is an customers who came in sight, there was yet a noticeable quietude. The market nominations by mass meetings is again rismean as they apply to a war vessel.—

Sartorial Penalties Imposed on Rotund People for the Good of the Lean.

The proposal of the union tailors at Chicase to enforce discriminating charges oncumed by their garments, can only be looked upon with misgiving and aversion. It is impossible to regard the matter as a mere sporadic outbreak, for it has all the earmarks of a concerted movement of organized labor looking to a pitiless crusade upon stout persons to the advantage of the thin. It is obvious that if fat men can be made to pay more for their clothes than they do now, lean men will, in accordance with the well known laws of compensation, averages, etc., soon come to pay

If this victous principle is once established in the tailoring trade, it will be but a short time until it is taken up by other unions and discrimination is enforced against the fat all along the line. The street cars will begin to carry passengers by weight, and underwear will be listed at so much a size and half size, like carpet tacks or step-ladders. Shoes, even, will be sold by the square feet of leather they contain, and theater seats will be charged for according to breadth of beam. The next thing in order would be boycotts directed at all merchants who fail to discriminate sharply against embonpoint, and half the fat men in town would be declared unfair. There is nothing that we know of in the theory and practice of organized labor that is inconsistent with this discreditable and melancholy program. The Darwinian law of natural selection shows us but too plainly what the end of such a tendeacy, once set in operation in the human species, must be. At once a percentage of ease in survival accrues to the lean individuals, and a corresponding disadvantage in the struggle for life inheres in all fat individuals. As time goes on, the fat individuals must find subsistence increasingly difficult and the lean individuals will find it increasingly easier. Fewer of the fat will survive, more of the lean. And the influence of natural selecdidacy for the county clerkship and says tion will be inescapably and tremendously for their mates, and the enterprise and renot geometrical ratio. Fat bables will grow few and eventually cease to be born, sloners are nominated by the district, they while the lean and hugry individuals will

When the bard of Avon put the cada verous Cassius on an immortal pedestal, he did so knowing full well how necesand then his drooping spirits were revived sary for humanity was the antithetical and gladdened by the assurance that he ideal hinted at in "fat men, who sleep o' nights." Thus the consequences of a dastardly scheme in the ranks of Chicago's journeymen tailors, are seen to reach far into the future of the race for weal or woe. Nine tallors, if they are good ones, can make a man, it is said, but a tailor's union, if you give it rope enough, will unmake the entire human family .- Portland Oregonian.

> HONEYMOON IN THE ARCTIC Chlifornia Young People, with Time to Spare, Will Hunt Foxes in the Polar Regions. The strangest and probably the wildest honeymoon on record was begun in Los Angeles a few days ago. Two young German people are the participants of this unique and hazardous trip. John Drast, the bridegroom, came to America about five months ago with the avowed purpose of journeying to the frozen north in search sheet of paper twelve inches square to a tinent he met the girl who is now his big sheet eleven feet long by two feet and bride. He told her of his plans, and rather than wait until his return before marrying she suggested that he take her along and that the trip be made their honeymoon Drast is 21 and his wife 22 years of age. The boat that carries them, Alert although worn with age, is looked upon by those familiar with its gear as a good craft for almost any kind of weather. It is too small, however, to attempt a trip over so vast and rough a body of water. Alert is a sloop-rigged craft measuring about thirty-three feet over all, with a twelve-foot beam. It was purchased from a San Pedro fisherman for $300. The couple cafried with them about $250 worth of provisions, which are expected to last the voyagers until they reach their destination.
