read: OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The pas-sags of the national irrigation law was one of the greatest steps, not only in the forward progress of the states, but to an achievement so great that we besitate to predict the outcome, but it was only the beginning. Now that the law is an accom-plished fact, that law must be given effect. To that end the reclamation service organ-ized under the national irrigation law of June 17. 1802, has been pushing its surveys and examination of possible irrigation projects energetically in each of the thir-teen states and three territories named in the act.  Mr. Fred J. Kiesel, Chairman Executive Committee, the National Irrigation Com-gress, Ogden, Utah.-My Dear Bir: Permit ime to express through you to the irriga-tion congress my hearty congratulations upon what has been accomplished in the year that has just passed, especially be-cause I regard this as opening a new era in the treatment of irrigation from the na-tional standpoint. Nose of our internal policies will be more consequent to the future of the country during the next few decades than this matter of irrigation. It is of vital consequence to the intermoun-tain states and to the entire semi-arid re-gion, and what is of vital consequence to one portion of our country is of vital con-sequence to the whole country. Each Point Must Be Studied.

Each Point Must be Studied. It should be borne in mind that a broad survey of all possible projects gives the conception of their relative value, and that a work of prime importance to one group of men may seem leas desirable in the light of wider knowledge. Nor is it wise in large affairs to begin construction first and elaborate details afterwards. Each important point must be carefully studied approved before work can begin. Yet if we proceed both cautionaly and persistently under this beneficient haw, we may confi-dently expect the largest possible develop-ment of our arid lands and their settlement by Industrious, properous, seti-respecting positions.

ment of our arid lands and their settlement by industrious, prosperous, self-respecting men and women, who will exchange the products of irrigated agriculture for the products of the milis and factories through-out the United States. Communities flourishing in what is now the desert will finally take their places among the strongest pillars of our common-wealth. The irrigation development of the arid west cannot stand alone. Forestry is the companion and support of irrigation. Without forestry irrigation must fall.

Marches Into the Jall. Last night while the 12 o'clock police detail was drilling in front of police head-quarters. Pat Doyle, an old soldier stag-gered down the street. Doyle imagined he was back in the army when he heard the orders given and saw, the men going through the movements. He had been a drill sergeant and hegan giving orders, which resulted in the hopeless entangle-ment of the men, as they could not dis-tinguish between the voices of the two commanders. Sergeant Hayes called Doyle to order and told him to fall into the ranks, which he did. After the drill was finished the men marched into the jail with Doyle bringing up the rear.
