"Colonization of the West," and during his talk he devoted some time to a discussion of the character of Brigham Young. Major Carson, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, also spoke briefly. Governor George C. Pardee of California then delivered an address on "The Relation of Colonization to firigation."

Irrigation and Colonization.

In the course of his remarks Commander Booth Tucker of the Salvation Army said:

To irrigate is to populate, to populate is to colonize. This congress cannot, I believe, too strongly emphasize the fact that trigation is dependent for its success upon population. Colonization may be defined as the populating of hitherto unoccupied tracts of land. Systematic, scientific colonization is to the prairie schooner, or what irrigation is to the mountain torrent, or what the real Indian tepes is to the modern city hall, or what the galley of Columbus is to the Atlantic liner.

The lack of systematic colonization has caused the fallure of not a few excellent and thorougally practicable irrigation and colonization, is made as much an imperative and practical question of the nation's pathway the deadweight of poverty and congress of our national progress, created internecine struggless between capital and labor, and threatened and driven away by the heavy longth and and again and again. The delegates gave him of the strong and calonization and gazin and again. The delegates gave him of the strong and calonization to the was applicated and again and again. caused the failure of not a few excellent and thoroughly practicable irrigation schemes. The reason for this is not far to seek A canal which will irrigate say 100,000 acress of land is necessarily a costly enterprise. The interest and upkeep can easily be met if the whole tract be quickly occupied. But if a small portion only be settled, either the colonists will be disheartened and driven away by the heavy charges made in the effort to meet expenses and pay dividends, or the investors will become discouraged at the long delay and nonrevelpt of a fair return for their investment. In either case the enterprise will be killed in its initial stage.

Scientific colonization can secure the rapid and immediate enjoyment of the fruits of irrigation. Each is a necessity to the other. An ill-digested and haphazard scheme of irrigation will rayer in the seed in the seed of the colonization will retard (as it has already done) and frequently ruin the best laid and most feasible plans for irrigation.

Scientific colonization will not wait for irrigation.

Scientific colonization will not wait for the farmer with capital, any more than manufacture will wait for the laborer with capital. Imagine the captain of industry who would employ no laborer who did not possess a few thousand dollars! And yet this is the course which colonization has

Private Capital Limited.

The most that the capitalist, or land The most that the capitalist, or land owner, or irrigationist, has been willing to do in the past has been to bring the water to the land, and accept time payments, for the latter from the settler. Further than this, they have been unwilling to yenture. And hence the colonization of irrigated lands has been aimost entirely limited to farmers possessing

This has had several serious disadvantages.

1. Irrigation lends itself much more read-ily to the small intensive farm than to the large ranch from which such settlers

2. The small farmer who is not too high-of ed to cultivate the land himself will Gived where the "gentleman" farmer who employs hired labor and sends his hildren to college will fall, even though who employs hired labor and sends his children to college will fall, even thought the latter may control ten times as much land. All other lands as the former, and possess a few thousand delars. Give the former a chance, select him with eare and back him will say 5000 cash for a start, and he will suiceed better than the latter every time. With ample funds for irrigation new in lashs, and with some of our brainlest engineers working out extensive plans, what our "arid west" calls for is not the nonresident gentleman farmer with his start of cowboys, but the resident twenty-acre helphy funded son of the soil, who does not consider it beneath his own or his children's dignity to drive the plow milk the cow and earn an honest living by his sweat of brain and brow. The old-time governor of Virginia was right when he told King George that he would rather have a dozen such than a shiploud of the ladies and gentlemen whom the latter was proposing to send out.

But granted that such settlers are destrable, why should there be any difficulty about obtaining them?

Now gelentific colonization uses the worthy family that has no cash. It says in brief, "Place this waste labor upon the waste land by means of waste capital, and thereby conyert this trinity of waste into a unity of production." It has been argued on the ather hand that, first they would not tay, third they would not work, and last, but by no means issast, they would not pay. We set to work some six years ago to put out theories into practice and are now able to say positively after more than five years' experience that they have gone and stayed, they have worked and paid. Even the comparatively new failures we have encountered have been a valuable education to use, and we are now in a position to handle the inricest schemes with self-sacrificing and expert managers to direct the wine, and with a practical code of resultations to guard us from the rocks on which, so many similar enterprises have been wrecked.

Three Army Colonies.

1 Three Army Colonies.

Our three colonies are located in Colorado, California and Ohio, and comprise nearly 2,000 acres of land on which about 400 men, women and children have been settled. On the first two colonies every family is entirely self-supporting, and the repayments have amounted to considerably more than $20,000.

On the California colony last year the settlers sversged a cash income of $50 per family, each twenty-acre farm being worth with its improvements, about $2,000. The Colorado farms are worth from $2,000 to $5,000, according to their location and im-

ert Land Act."

The agitation for the repeal of the desert land law, the timber and stone act and the commutation clause of the homestead act will receive scant support in the public land states.

Under the desert land law more land has been reclaimed from the desert and made fruitful than under all other laws, and its repeal would greatly retard future irrigation development. The repeal of the timber and stone act would deprive the ranchman and farmer of an opportunity to secure a timber lot, would establish a government timber monopoly, persicious and contrary to the spirit of our institutions. The repeal of the commutation clause of the homestead law would discourage and retard settlement and development, by reason of the menace to the homestead settler of loss of homestead right, labor and improvements, should sickness death, low prices or shortage of crops render it impossible for him to maintain continuous residence.

The laws in question have furnished Damage at Atlantic City. ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 16 -- The tropical storm which struck the New Jersey coast early this morning was one of soverest experienced for a long time The wind blew with hurricane force and while it lasted kept up a speed of seventy miles an hour. The storm was terrific to degree, but the damage was not as great as was at first believed. A conservative estimate places the entire damage at $35,000 or $30,000. The telegraph and telephone lines leading out of the city are down and the fact that the city was cut off from connection with the outside world started wild rumors that the great resort had been entirely awept away. The first train in from Philadelphia and other points brought credit of the irrigation fund, and their re-peal would amount to a repeal of the na-tional irrigation law.

The people of the public land states are excited relatives and friends who were anxious after the welfare of their loved ones, and found them well and happy and

The storm's flercest attack was made on the McClay apartment building at Pacific and South Carolina avenues. The roof was more than half torn off. When the roof blew off the fifty or more families were thrown into a panic. They were quickly pacified, however, and all left the building. One sick lad, suffering from fever, was hurried to a hospital.

An elderly woman approached him crying out pitifully. The president inquired about the representatives of three great powers have case and learned that the woman had been detained at the prison since July 20. On that date she, with her husband and four children, arrived from Russia.

Asks Woman's Freedom.

The husband and one child had come over as second cabin passengers, probably because they knew they were afflicted with a disease which would bar their admission to this country from the steerage, while the woman and the other three children were steerage passengers. The husband and one child escaped from the ship. Although the evidence showed that the woman had a son in this country engaged in a profitable business she and her three children were held up. After the facts had been developed the president announced that there could be no possible reason for detaining the woman longer, as it was quite evident she and her children were financially able to care for themselves The case is, however, pending on appeal before Secretary Cortelyou of the Department of Commerce and Labor and he doubtless will release the woman in accordance with the judgment of the president.

At 7 o'clock the president, accompanied by Secretary Loeb and his personal attendants, went aboard Sylph for dinner. At 10 o'clock they left for Jersey City on the tug Chamberlain, where they boarded the train for Antietam Wants New Light.

Rev. S. K. McNeil of Hirst Memorial church, at Thirty-fourth and Larimore avenues, and a host of his parishioners have asked the council to place an electric light on the corner instead of the gasoline lamp that now does duty there. The pastor told the council that there are rough characters in the neighborhood who frequently make a disturbance in front of the church. He believes that a good light will be as efficient as a policeman in warding off trouble. Councilman Evans has been directed to draw up a resolution authorizing the light.

Whisky Severs Friends.

Charles Hennelly and Harry Thompson, who have no special place of abode, drifted into town yesterday. They were the best of friends until a few drinks of whisky served to sever the relations. An altercation arose between them, which was fast leading in the direction of open warfare, when a polleeman stepped in as arbiter. They were locked up on the charge of being drunk and disorderly.
