

THE OMAHA SUNDAY BEE

E. ROSEWATER, EDITOR. PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION. Daily Bee (without Sunday), One Year, $4.00. Daily Bee and Sunday, One Year, $6.00.

DELIVERED BY CARRIER. Daily Bee (without Sunday), per copy, 3c. Daily Bee (including Sunday), per copy, 5c.

STATEMENT OF CIRCULATION. State of Nebraska, Douglas County, ss.: I, George B. Tschuck, secretary of The Bee Publishing Company, do hereby certify that the actual number of full and complete copies of The Daily Morning, Evening and Sunday Bee printed during the month of August, 1903, was as follows:

Table with columns for copies sold and returned, and total circulation figures for various months.

Net total sales, $85,970. Net average sales, $8,993.

GEORGE B. TSCHUCK, Secretary of The Bee Publishing Company.

M. B. BUNGATE, Notary Public.

PARTIES LEAVING THE CITY. Parties leaving the city at any time may have The Bee sent to them regularly by notifying The Bee Business office, in person or by mail.

For a centennial Chicago appears to be very robust.

What is Omaha going to do about celebrating its semi-centennial jubilee next year?

In spite of railroad mergers the country is threatened with another freight congestion.

No ex-convict ever tried to play even with ex-Governor Savage for refusing to issue a pardon.

Kidnaping the governor's kid involves no greater penalty than kidnaping any kid of plebeian lineage.

In tackling the cabinet problem at a weight of 228 pounds, King Edward intimates that he needs the exercise.

Between Chicago water and Kansas City water, St. Louis has a busy time keeping the microbes out of its system.

At the rate the slaughter is going on in the Balkans there will be few people left to kill when war is formally declared.

Possibly King Edward may have to invite some American statesman out of a job to cross the Atlantic and take a place in his cabinet.

It does begin to look dismal for the Douglas County Democracy. Republicans of all factions and shades of opinion are pledged to harmony.

At the rate the Steel company's securities are sliding toward the bottom it is possible that Andrew Carnegie may yet realize the folly of dying rich.

Stock jobbers who are holding back with their investments should possess their souls in patience. The bargain counter in Wall street has not yet been closed.

By importing Indians to give an aboriginal tone to its centennial celebration Chicago furnished abundant cause for the war talk and ghost dancing on the local reservation.

Pisciculturists of Massachusetts and neighboring states are making heroic efforts to save the lobster from extermination. New Englanders are determined to preserve their salad days at any cost.

Chicago was the marvel of the nineteenth century and will continue to be the most stupendous monument in iron, stone, brick and mortar to the pluck, daring, energy and public spirit of the empire-building west.

Should the Hungarian uprising under the leadership of the son of Louis Kosuth, to upset the rickety old throne of the Hapsburgs, as foreshadowed by cable dispatches, succeed, few people in America will wear crepe.

Cardinal Gibbons brings from Rome assurances that another American cardinal will be chosen soon. Although the report comes from a reliable source, Archbishop Ireland is wise enough to defer painting his library a cardinal tint.

The failure of the Panama canal treaty may not be such a streak of ill luck after all. It will enable Secretary Shaw to distribute the twenty millions that were to be paid over to the pig-headed Columbians among the adventures of this country and avert the Niagara scandal.

HOW THE PEOPLE RULE.

Great stress was laid by several of the champions of the complex primary election system upon the advantages that are to be derived from giving the people the opportunity to rule themselves.

Conceding that the convention system has been responsible for many flagrant abuses, and granting that a system that would enable every voter to participate directly in the nomination of every candidate is desirable, it still remains an open question whether the mode prescribed by the new rules affords the best opportunity for arriving at a popular choice.

The chief executive of the nation is not voted for by the people, but by presidential electors, and they in turn are not selected by the people, but by political conventions.

It has frequently been argued that direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

States having a naval force, under the circumstances, in Turkish waters, when there is no longer any real reason or justification, growing out of danger to American interests, for keeping warships there.

It is unfortunate that any friction should have occurred thus soon under the operation of the new army general staff system, but such appears to be the fact, though possibly it will not be of a serious character, or affect to any extent the working of the policy of reorganization that has been established.

This is not at all surprising, for while great care and deliberation were taken in drawing up the bill creating a general staff and in this respect effecting a radical reorganization of our military establishment, it is quite conceivable that there should be some flaws and defects that experience with the operation of the new system would be necessary to disclose.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

Chicago, where a 16-year-old girl was arranged last Thursday before the juvenile court for staying out late at a dance.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

Chicago, where a 16-year-old girl was arranged last Thursday before the juvenile court for staying out late at a dance.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

WHY WALL STREET IS BLUE.

Mr. Fish seems to overlook the fact that the Wall street point of view and the commercial point of view are not identical.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

SECULAR SHOTS AT THE PULPIT.

Mr. Fish seems to overlook the fact that the Wall street point of view and the commercial point of view are not identical.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

It is suggested by several writers that a system of direct elections for president would be more desirable and come nearer to the spirit of the constitution than the indirect vote for presidential electors.

Dewey & Stone Furniture Co., 1115-1117 Farnam Street.