Losses of money while in transit through the mails have been of frequent occurrance lately and for several days the postoffice authorities have been investigating. Just how much money Diefendorf has taken and for how long he has been keeping up the practice no one knows.

Alarm Gong Works.

The burgiar alarm just installed in the vault of the state treasury demonstrated fts afficiency last night by ringing for two hours, while fanitors, residents of that part of the city and messenger boys were searching the town for Deputy Treasurer Babcock and the expert who put in the alarm to stop it. It might have been an attempt rob the vault that started the business, but it wasn't. Janitor Bullard was showing a mece through the building and turned a key in the cabinet of the vault, not knowing that the wires had been connected up.

The result was what the agents of the company and predicted, that alarm began to ring, and it kept on ringing. The janitor rushed wildly to the doors of the state Youse, closed them, shut down the windows in all the offices that full been left open. piled rugs up in front of the vault door to deaden the sound, and still the gong rang. Residents for blocks around who had heard of the new alarm, imaging a robbery was being committed, rushed to the state house, gathered on the outside, crowded into the corridors and held their cars and waited re-

This circular letter was recently issued cusses the situation of prisoners and tells of the purpose of the organization: and tells of the purpose of the organization:

To the Friends of Good Government and Reform in Prison Management: The members of the Nebraska Prison association desirs to enflist your sympathy and active efforts in behalf of the most important showments ever inaugurated in our state. While it is true that in most matters looking to the moral and material betterment of the state and its people Nebraska is fully abreast of the times, yet in the matter of prison reform and the protection of the people from the effects of bad management of the prisons and of the vicious element of society, we are far in arrears. Other states, and even our nation as a whole, have gone forward in this work, but Nebraska, almost alone, has taken no step in this important direction. It is for the purpose of calling your atten-tion to some of the necessities for general be highly prized by Mr. Hamilton.

neces ity for immediate action and thorough organization.

The object of the Nebraska Prison association is to render such aid as can be rendered in the matter of enforcing the criminal laws of the state, exerting a beneficent advisory influence over the management of all prisons and reform schools in the state and of persons confined therein, as well as those discharged therefrom.

There is no disposition to criticise the methods adopted by those in charge of our prisons and reform schools. In most instances they are seeking to discharge the duties imposed upon them to the best of their ability.—This, however, does not dispose of the matter in hand.

Some Abuses.

Many of our jalls are improperly, not to say indecentity, kept. Especially in the liarger cities and more populous counties is this true. Men and women, of the most debased, degraded and debauched classes are often confined in the same apartments, and with them, less confirmed criminals and often boys and girls, more children, who there receive their first lessons in the deeper shades of crime and are made familiar with vices of which they formerly knew uothing.

In our reform schools children are huddled together, with little, if any, knowledge of their past history or habits and little attention to the evil results of their associations. Often two are required to occupy the same bed, probably, one fresh from the dens of vice found in our jails, brothels and salcons, the other a wayward, "incorrigible," but practically sinless child, whose parents may have been snatched away by death, and who, without moral restraint, may have taken the first step in the downward path.

The same treatment is necessarily given to the convicts in our state penitentiary. The first lessons in safe-blowing, train robbery and murder are often taught in the privacy of the cell at the dead hour of night.

But these, though bad enough, are perhaps not the worst of prison abuses. From the lowest to the highest of our places of confinement of prisoners, there is the daily exodus of those who have "done time." Those leaving our reform schools and jails are often penniless and without friends. Many of those leaving the penitentiary are without friends and often from 20 to 1,000 miles from home, with the sum of $5 in pocket. No friend greets them outside the prison walls. Neither has funds sufficient to pay passage to home or friends. All resolutions of amendment find here their first staggering blow. Friendless, moneyless, far from that home, possibly in another state, a feeling of helplessness and shame renders the individual poweriess to carry out the good resolves previously formed. In this frame of mind, if accosted by a hardened crimi

· Purpose of Association.

The purpose of the Nebraska prison association is to counteract the evils above named, as well as many others which cannot be here noticed. To those who desire to return to home or friends and lead an upright life, the association desires to lend a helping hand. A friend and not an enemy will meet them at the threshold of the prison. Assistance to make the homeward trip will be furnished. The youths who are given their liberty will be furnished with homes if they can be had. To those who desire employment the necessary opportunity will be furnished. Elevating employment will sought for them. The advantages of correct living and correct doing will be offered them. To make of them good citizens and not outlaws, will be the efforts of the association.

A "committee on prison visitation" is provided, whose duties are to visit and inspect prison treatment and discipline. This committee will make annual reports the association, which will be published.

The county of Adams is prosecuting an appeal to the supreme court from a decision of the district court of that county holding that the elevators of the Kansas City & Omaha railway at Pauline and LeRoy are a part of the personal property of the railway company, "necessary for the success-ful operation of such road."

The county insists that the railroad company is seeking to evade taxation by claiming that this property was listed by it to the State Board of Equalization and by it included in its assessment of railroad property for purposes of taxation.

The railroad company insists that to assess these elevators by the county would be double taxation. They insist that the elevators were built upon stone piers and became a part of the right-of-way, being erected thereon. They say that whatever is affixed to the soil becomes in contemplation of law a part of it. The elevators have been leased to men who are engaged in the shipping of grain over its road. It is claimed by the company that they are needful and necessary as the villages were mere hamlets in which there are no private elevators controlled by private capitalists and held out for public use and convenience and the very fact that there are none cast upon the company the greater duty of building and maintaining them. The company's brief concludes:
