Council Will Visit Proposed Location of Terminals and Something May Be Done as a Result.

From their point of view President A. B. Stickney of the Great Western railway gave fifty property owners in the district that will be used by his terminals very little satisfaction in the council room yesterday afternoon.

The council arranged the meeting so that the property owners would have an opportunity to talk to President Stickney. A few of them did talk to him most pointedly while be maintained ellence. The session was without results, save that the council agreed to look over the terminal ground this morning at 10 o'clock.

'I don't think the property of these people will be damaged so far as rental or selling value is concerned," said Mr. Stick-"OL course I am not an infallible judge of these things, but what I say is eased on thirty years' experience in building rallroads. We have selected the only part of town that seems practicable for our purposes. The entrance of the road is bound to inconvenience semeone just as the entrance of the road is bound to benefit the majority of the 150,000 people of Omaha and South Omaha. We merely ask that the council consider the ordinance with the interests of all the citizens in view, rather than to consider any class or part of them. I think probably forty resident property wners will be injured by the terminals.

Would Benefit Only Few. W. H. Sanford wanted to know why the projected grades cannot be changed and viaducts and subways built so as not to out off Nineteenth, Eighteenth and Seven teenth streets north of Mason. He suid the entrance of the railroad would benefit fifty or sixty jobbers, no more, no less. He urged that a viaduet be constructed across Eighteenth street, which he said could be done by moving the proposed line of tracks a little ways.

Mrs. Mary W. Cormack, who has had much to say about "magnates" and "moguls," took notes during President Stickney's talk and used up twenty minutes giving her side of the case. She said a pre vious plat had been made, which, if followed out, would have kept the yards south of Mason street and caused no great damage, but they had been changed to please a certain individual. Instead of forty peo ple that would be affected she said that at least 150 would feel the effects of the new

When she finished Mr. Stickney made his exit. Half of the delegation were women and the entire assemblage seemed a little awed by the presence of the rallway man.

PESTHOUSE FOR PAPER PLANT

Old Emergency, Hospital is Bought by an Editor from Hast-I'T' Inges, lows.

Omaha's old emergency hospital, vulgarly designated the "pest house," is to be converted into a house for a Hastings, In., newspaper plant. The hospital was and is constructed of ten portable voting booths, once in vogue here. During several windreds of cases of smallpox, most of the patients having the disease in a mild form. With the completion of the modern emergency hospital about a year ago the old election booths became obsolete for their improvised service, but have stood empty several miles from the city since.

A few weeks ago Edgar Brown, one of the proprietors of a Hustings newspaper, was informed of the old booths during a business visit to Omaha. He is about to build a new printing house, but desired emporary quarters while construction was in progress. He looked over the booths and decided they would fill the bill and made application to the council to buy them.

The offer surprised the council, which considered the buildings unfit for use. Health Commissioner Ralph had declined to permit their re-establishment within the city limits from a public safety standpoint, as he said there was no telling how many thousands of dangerous microbes the old walls might contain. As Mr. Brown promtransport the shells to an lowa burg the councilmen concluded they might as well sell. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Brown said he would give $125 for the old nospital and his offer was snapped up with-

STOVES FOR MARKET HOUSE Old-Pashioned Heating Facilities and No Steam Will Be Put In.

Marketmaster Gerke wants both warmth to protect meats and vegetables from the chill winds of winter and storm-door vestibules to do a like service at the market house. He called the matter to the attention of the council yesterday afternoon. This body has already decided that a steam heating, plant, such as the archithen contemplated, will be a superfluity in the murket house. After some discussion they told the market master that they would fix him out with two or three stoves, the storm-doors and see that the plumbing which has been contracted for, is put in. Since the house was opened October 1. it has yielded $866 in revenue from the consionaires. But seven stalls remain vacant and they will be occupted, it is said, soon as heating facilities are provided. If this is done the marketmaster estimates the monthly revenue will run between $500 and $4,600-this at the nominal charge of cents a day for each stall.

"Last Saturday I think at least 10,000 seople patronized the market," said Mr. Gerke. "At night when closing time, 10 clock, arrived, the place was full of them and I could not close the doors until some time afterwards. The market is an unqualified success."

In this 800, although peremptorily ordered to do case the Flanagans sought to recover $2,000 so. Mr. Barnes was ordered by wire yesdamages. It was alleged that on March 28, 1899, the defendants were indebted to one J. W. Howell for money berrowed in the sum of $512.50 and that the defendants applied to the Flanagans to sign a note payable to the order of Howell to secure the obligation, but that the defendants represented to the Flanagans that the note which it was desired they should sign was for the sum of $100, when in fact it was for $512.50. Relying upon these statements and not being able to read or write, the Flanagans signed the note. It was also alleged that said note was afterward placed in judgment without the plaintiff's knowledge and her property was levied upon and sold to satisfy said judgment and property valued at $2,000.

The answer filed by the defendant denied the allegations of fraud and alleged that John Flanagan, the husband of Julia Flanagan, the defendant, in the summer of 1886, was owing the defendant, David Van Etten, a large sum of money for legal services, upon agreements and verbal contracts and for expenses incurred and costs paid for the defendant and for loans of money in the sum of $8,000. The Vern Cruz & Pacific railroad runs across the isthmus of Tehauntepec and establishes a now transcontinental route, connecting on one side with the Atlantic ocean and reaching the Pacific on the other side. On the Atlantic side the terminals are at Vera Crus and on the Pacific side at Salina Cruz. Alfred Bishop Mason, of New York, as president of the company directed its construction and made several visits to Baltimore to confer with the officials of the trust company. The building of the road was slow work on account of the difficulties found in the construction of railroads through a tropical country. One year was consumed in surveying and about three years in the work of construction which was completed early this year. The plans of the railroad company contemplate the employment of its lines as a part of a transcontinental route from North Atlantic scaboard ports, including New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, to San Francisco. If you are a victim of Nervo-Sexual Debility, with all its distressing symptoms, you certainly do not intend to remain so. The fact that you have taken inferior remedies to no avail should not desiroy your faith in all treatment, nor your hope of a radical cure. I have evolved a special treatment for Nervo-Sexual Debility that is uniformly successful in cases where success was before by other doctors deemed impossible. It does not stimulate temporarily, but restores permanently. It allays the irritation of the delicate tissues surrounding the lax and unduly expanded seminal ducts, contracting them to their normal condition, which stops night emissions dries up day drains, and prevents prematureness. It tones up and strengthems the blood vessels that carry nourishment to the weakened parts, which regain full power, size and vigor. Meanwhile all other symptoms improve, and the patient realizes that a great blight has been lifted from his life. I cure quickly, safely and theroughly
