Finds Health in Nebraska.

In J. C. B. Stokes, who came here from New York some months upo, to work in the harvest fields, Nebraska farms have demonstrated that they can grow good health as well as wheat and corn. Stokes came to Lincoln with F. B. Taylor and A. B. Langford, all of Brooklyn mercantile establishments. They were sent to Arcadia by Labor Commissioner Bush. At that time Stokes weighed 138 pounds and was as pale as an office man usually gets. Today he is returning, carrying 168 pounds of fiesh and muscle, and is as brown as a berry. He stated that the work was hard at first and that he suffered from inneliness during the first few nights, but later, when he get used to the work and to the people, he enjoyed life. Board Buys Supplies.

The Board of Public Lands and Buildings set this afternoon and authorized the sec retary of state to advertise for bids for belting and pulleys at the state peniters tiary, and gave authority to the state architect to advertise for bids for lumber to be used at the Grand Island Soldiers nome. A petition was received by the woard for the release of John Derke from the Home of the Peeble-Minded, it being claimed by his friends that he was of sound mind. Architect Tyler appeared before the board with a proposition to connec the commissary department with the other buildings at the Grand Island Soldiers home, in order that persons could pass is the last day of registration and the having to get out in the weather.
