Negotiations in Progress Looking to Settlement in Northern District, but There is no Hope in the Southern.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 6. - A conference is in progress in Denver looking to a settlement of the trouble with coal miners in the northern Colorado fuel fields and with a prospect of success ful termination. The situation in the southern fields is becoming more intense, however, and there is apparently nothing that will prevent the miners from going out on a strike Monday at the call of President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers.

on the strength of the rights and duties created by the treaty of 1546, but has time and again intervened to preserve the freedom of traffle from disturbance in the course of domestic dissensions. In these cases we have intervened sometimes at the suggestion of Colombia, sometimes on our own impression of the necessities of the case, but always to the profit of Colombia, as well as universal commerce. The position of the United States was clearly set forth by Mr. Seward in these words:

"The United States has taken, and will take, no interest in any question of internal revolution in the state of Panama or any state of the United States of Colombia, but will maintain a perfect neutrality in regard to such domestic controversies. The United States will, nevertheless, hold itself ready to protect the transit trade across the isthmus against invasion of either domestic or foreign disturbers of the peace of the state of Panama."

There has never been any doubt of the validity of the treaty of 1846 to guarantee free and open transit either for American clizens or for the government or the United States. We have used the isthmus for the transit of troops and ef fugitives from justice and a protocol was signed at Bogota on the 25d of February, 1875, acknowledging this right of transit for troops and extradited fugitives belonging to the United States, a right, as is declared in the protocol, "which is established in compensation for the guarantee of the sovereignty and property of the isthmus to which the government is bound.

Treaty Stands Forever.

Treaty Stands Forever.

It must not be lost sight of that this treaty is not dependent for its efficacy on the personnel of the signers or the name of the territory it affects. It is a covenant, as lawyers say, that runs with the land. The name of New Granada has passed away; its territory has been divided. But as long as the isthmus endures, the great geographical fact keeps alive the solemn compact which binds the holders of the territory to grant us freedom of transit and binds us in return to safeguard for the isthmus and the world the exercise of that inestimable privilege.

It is therefore clear for discussion that when, at the repeated solicitation of the government of Colombia, a treaty was entered into between that government and the United States for carrying into effect the long considered plan of a canal across the isthmus, to be owned and controlled by the government of the United States it was no new proposition that was being adopted, but rather carrying out of a long cherished plan of both countries and the assertion of a right which had been long since conceded in principle by the government of Colombia.

It was the universal conviction that the time had come for this gigantic project to be carried out. It was too great for individual or corporate enterprise. It could only be carried to conclusion by a government of great power and vast resources and the only government to which it was a possibility was that of the United States. relegram.)-These additional Iowa rural Waukon, Alamakee county, two routes; Harvey A. Refers to Canal Treaty.

Refers to Canal Treaty.

By authorization of congress the president entered into a treaty with Colombia for the construction of a canal by way of the isthmus of Panama. Wishing to show every consideration to the government of Colombia, the treaty contained provisions of extraordinary liberality. A large bonus was given for the privilege of constructing the canals, a liberal annual lease was added and all this was in addition to the numberless benefits which would accrue to the Colombian government and people from the construction in this territory of this colossal work. The treaty was promitly ratified by the senate of the United States and rejected unanimously and without considerations which have been made to this government, since the failure to passage in Bogota, of a renewal of negotiations have been too vague and too extravagant to merit the serious consideration of the United States, and such as to create the impression in the minds of the people of Panama that there was no reasonable prospect of the accomplishment of the object upon which their hopes and desires had been set for many years.

This brings us to the sudden and startling events which have so recently attracted the attention of this country and of the world. Although there has been no lack for many years past of numerous causes of divcontent and anxiety among the people of Panama, it appears that the failure of the canal treaty convinced them that there was nothing more to be hoped for in their connection with the Colombian government which had never proven entirely satisfactory. Having regard only to the present crisis and the needs of the hour, no plainer duty was ever imposed upon a chief of state than that which rested upon the president of the United States in the interest of the isthmus, the people of Colombia, the people of the United States and the commerce of the world, to preserve for the benefit of all free transit over the isthmus, and to do all that lay in his power to bring permanent peace to its people.

Instructions to Consuls.

The following telegram was sent by the State department to Mr. Ehrman, the acting consul general at Panama:

mg consul general at Panama:

The people of Panama have by an apparently unanimous movement dissolved their political relations with the republic of Colombia and assumed their independence. When you are satisfied that a de facte government, republican in form, and without substantial opposition from its own people, has been established in the state of Panama you will enter into relations with it as the responsible government of the territory and look to it for all due action to project the persons and property of citizens of the United States, and to keep open the isthmian transit, in accordance with the obligations of existing treaties governing the relations of the United States to that territory. territory. Immediately afterward an instruction was

The people of Panama, having by an apparently unanimous movement dissolved their political connection with the republic of Colombia and resumed their independence and having adopted a government of their own, republican in form, with which the government of the United States of America has entered into relations, the president of the United States, in accordance with the ties of friendship which have so long and happliy existed between the respective nations, most earnestly commended to the governments of Colombia and of Panama the peaceful and equitable settlement of all questions at issue between them. He holds that he is bound not merely by treaty obligations, but by the interests of civilization to see that the peageful traffic of the world across the Ishmuc of Panama shall not longer be disturbed by a constant succession of unnecessary and wasteful civil war.

eceive tomorrow from the president, Consul General Gudger leaves here Sunday for Colon to assume command of the American consulate there. These instructions will be of the most minute character, though, of course, much will be left to the discretion of Mr. Gudger, in whom the administration has the fullest confidence. On the arrival of Mayflower at Colon Mr. Gudger will make himself known at once to the de facto government, and the usual formalities in such cases will be observed. He will do business directly with the Republic of Panama, which, in its provisional form, con sists of an executive board, but which be fore his arrival may easily take the form of a permanent government.

Consul General Gudger was for a long time in conference with Assistant Secretary comis and afterward talked interestingly to an Associated Press reporter of the isthmian sifuation, saying:

I am not in the least surprised to know that the isthmus has declared its independence. Five months ago a revolution was a foregone conclusion, as we all know. The isthmian people have conducted themselves in patience and with dignified deliberation; have awaited the adjournment of the Colombian congress and the destruction of their last hope for the ratification of the Hay-Herran treaty before taking this apparently radical step. Their reason for this is the alleged refusal of the Bogota government to direct its policy with some regard to the isthmian people's good.

Striking proof of the stability of the covernment is seen in the personnel of the covernment board, which now constitutes the provisional government. They are all three men of the strongest character, and the commercial affair. the provisional government. They are all three men of the strongest character, leaders in the isthmian commercial affairs, and men who command the undivided respect of the natives as well as the foreign residents of the isthmus.

An interesting coincidence is the fact that Fredico Boyd, one of three consuls, and the author of the manifesto published yesterday, is the Spanish and Nicaraguan consul accredited to the government of Colombia. Of course, it is not to be inferred from this that these governments knew of Mr. Boyd's connection with the revolution. Suspected.

The American employes of the railroad and others have been armed with rifles and revolvers supplied by the United States cruiser Nashville. Together with the latter's men the volunteers presented a bold front Wednesday and Thursday afternoons to the Colombians, who were threatening the lives of Americans. Thanks to the stand taken by Commander Hubbard of Gunboat Nashville the situation was saved.

Reasons for Revolution.

Shortly before the flag of the Republic of Panama was formally hoisted over the prefecture here this morning the new civil governor, Porfierio Meiendez, delivered an oration. He said:

governor. Porfierio Meiendez, delivered an oration. He said:

In the year 1821 the population of the Isthmus of Panama severed the tie that bound it to the government of Spain and spontaneously adhered to the then new republic of Colombia. Neither the apontaneousness of this act nor many subsequent ones of fidelity to Colombia have had the effect of having the governments that succeeded each other at Bogota concede to the Isthmus, except on paper, the same right that they had granted to the Inhabitants of other Colombian sections. Neither were the votes of the Isthmians ever taken into account, nor were their just complaints and patriotic aspirations attended to, in virtue whereof, and the ties of union with Colombia being for these reasons severed, population of Panama, en masse, taking into account the noble conduct of their progenitors on November 28, 1821, have proclaimed the Republic of Panama and have appointed a supreme-board of government, which the troops and public of Panama without political distinction, and the foreign colony, obey with enthusiasm. Delegated by the board, I have assumed command of this province and trust you will all surround us with your support for the purpose of raising on high and without blemish the fiag of the new state, for the purpose of cementing the authority with which I am vested, and in order to maintvin social tranquillity. The government of this new born republic assires to give the isthmus a definite and true era of progress so that it may not remain behind, in the advance of civilization.

The consular corps at Colon was present, but, through the French consul as spokes man, the members said they were not there in any official capacity. The flag of the new republic was raised amidst much cheering and general rejoicing and simultaneously fireworks were exploded all over the town. The police, bearing the flag of the Republic of Panama, then marched through the streets to their headquarters, over which also the emblem was raised.

Arias, representing the provisional government, have communicated to the consuls of the foreign powers that the new state has been constituted. The consul adds:

The province of Cauca shows no sign of revolution, nor has the revolution thus far spread to other provinces.
The new state assumes all the former treaty and legal obligations of Colombia. The last information is regarded by the officials here as being most important, as showing no disposition on the part of the new republic of Panama to repudiate the canal or other property rights acquired

The feeling in government circles here continues strongly favorable to allowing the revolution to take its course. It is definitely stated that no steps have been taken or contemplated toward intervention. A few irresponsible newspapers criticize the United States and show ignorance of the French government's position by asserting that warships will be sent to Panama "to restrain the American plans." These views are not shared by the government, or by the more serious element of the press and public.

Four years in Omaha and doing the tailoring business of the city. The renson why is we know how to make good clothes well and deliver the goods at the right price. All through these four years we have been training, organizing and improving our plant, our hands and hence our reputation. We make clothes that will win your favor just as sure as you try us. We realize that what we have said and are going to say may be considered boasting, but whatever your opinion may be, we know this to be true that we make the best clothes for the
