Cyrus Townsend Brady Abridges Dr. Warren's Famous Novel.

"TITLIEBAT TITMOUSE" FURNISHES TITLE

While He Retains All the Leading Characters of "Ten Thousand a Year"...

"Titliebat Titmouse," abridged from Dr. Samuel Warren's famous novel "Ten Thousand a Year," by Cyrus Townsend Brady...

"This that they call 'organized labor' is, if well understood, the problem of the whole future for all who will in future pretend to govern men."

"Sally of Missouri," by R. E. Young, is an interesting tale of an ambitious young man, steering of New York, who came to Missouri to seek his fortune in the zinc districts.

"Mistake and Her Dog in Fairyland" is a very handsomely gotten up book for little folks and tells a wonderful tale of the adventures and mishaps of the small girl in her unaccustomed surroundings.

"The Collwogs' Circus" is a new book just sent out by Longmans, Green & Co. if you are blest with a 5-year-old about the house you cannot do better than to invest in a copy of this book for a Christmas present to him or her.

"Aunt Lisa's Hero" is a collection of short stories by Annie Fellows Johnson. There are six of the tales and all have appeared in the "Youth" Companion, which is a guarantee of their moral tone.

MAYOR WANTS BONDS SOLD

Declares Todd & Co. Are Playing Horse and Urges Adoption of Some Other Measures.

"Measures should be taken to sell the $50,000 issue of renewal bonds," said Mayor Moore yesterday afternoon. "Todd & Co. who bid the highest premium for these bonds some time ago, appear to be playing horse with the city and evidently can't hold the issue. Some way should be found to cancel the sale and dispose of the paper again."

"Under the Jack-Staff" by Chester Bailey will delight all those who admire tales giving the experience of those who mingle "Under the Jack-Staff, where the chain trails meet" and where "the lights at the

DR. QUAYLE'S FRIEND PRAYS

Lawyer Who Fell from Grace Asks Blessing for Whole World.

REVIVAL OF SPIRIT OF COLLEGE DAYS

Story Told on Eminent Shakespearean Lecturer Who Speaks Under Auspices of the Methodist Missionary Conference.

Among the eminent ministers of the Methodist church who will attend the meeting here of the general missionary conference is Rev. W. A. Quayle, D. D., of Kansas City, who lectures here tonight on "Hamlet."

"May He Be Made a Bishop," Dr. Quayle is prominently mentioned for elevation to the bishopric at the Methodist church at the national conference in San Francisco next year.

Dr. Quayle was graduated from Baker university at Baldwin, Kan., a Methodist institution of which he was later called to be president. He is especially a student at Baker a good story which has been told of him had its origin.

The doctor was anything but ultra pious when a college youth; in fact, he is said to have been inclined a little bit the other way. He was intimate with a student, however, who was regarded as the most pious soul on the campus.

And then he gave him several hours of certain talk on the subject which in former years had furnished topic for lectures by this friend to young Quayle.

"I'll get him now," he chuckled to himself. "I'll get him to ask the blessing at the next meal; he can't refuse to do that for me in my own home. Oh, it'll be so good to hear his voice just once more lifted in communion with his God, to whom he so loved to pray, when he was here."

Students Leave Alma Mater.

The students were graduated. Quayle went into the ministry; his friend into the law. They had not met for years, when one day Rev. Mr. Quayle received as his guest this old college friend, a prosperous lawyer from some eastern city.

"Distressing, oh, so distressing," said Quayle to his friend.

"John, please return thanks."

To the delight of the minister his friend readily complied. Lowly he bowed his head and began. He asked a blessing upon the food on the table, the blessing at the family assembly, upon the doctor particularly as the pastor of his flock.

Then upon other churches in Kansas City and other pastors, and before leaving town he invoked divine aid and grace upon the municipality and its officials.

Having rounded out that supplication, he then asked for succor and strength for the state of Missouri and its chief executive and all the bondholders of Missouri.

He had just completed his prayerful tour of America and was in the act of crossing the sea to Europe, when Mrs. Quayle quietly slipped out to see how the maid was getting along with later courses.

Upon all the crown heads of Europe the lawyer invoked God's richest blessing. Then he proceeded on to Asia and implored that the Almighty remember and bless the peoples of the Orient, and from there he sailed down to Africa and spoke a word in behalf of the spiritual welfare of the benighted people of the Dark Continent.

It was that the guest's falling from grace was the subject of no further conversations on that visit.

APPRAISERS DO NOT COME

Three Engineers Fail to Arrive and Inventory of Water Works Goes Over.

Members of the Water board and officers of the water company were at the city hall yesterday waiting for the announced sitting of the Board of Appraisers, but the three engineers did not arrive.

According to City Attorney Wright the session to begin this week may be a long one as the appraisers have expressed a desire to hurry the valuation. All the necessary data has not been prepared, but a good share of that called for will be presented to the board when it convenes.

City Engineer Rosewater is due to leave Ann Arbor, Mich., where his son, Stanley, has greatly improved. Thursday, arriving Friday morning.

Flapjacks-Scald a pint of Indian meal with a quart of boiling milk or milk and water; add a tablespoonful of butter and a tablespoonful of brown sugar. Cover closely and let it stand over night. In the morning add the yolks of two well-beaten eggs, a scant cup of flour and a tablespoonful of soda dissolved in a little hot milk. Last of all, fold in the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth.

Boiled Indian Pudding, Aunt Hulda's Way - Warm a pint of molasses and a pint of milk and stir them well together, then stir in gradually four well-beaten eggs. Mix a pound of best beef suet, chopped fine with a little Indian meal, then mix with the milk and molasses. Stir in sufficient meal to make a thick batter, a tablespoonful of cream and a little nutmeg and grated lemon peel. Mix all well together. Dip a cloth or pudding bag in boiling water, shake out, dredge with a little flour and turn in the mixture. Tie up, leaving room for the pudding to swell. Boil three hours.

Ed Sheehan is held by the police on the charge of being a suspicious character. He was picked up by an officer while loitering around in the rear of Louis Sticks' saloon, Twenty-fourth and Sprague streets, at an early hour in the morning. Sticks telephoned the police during the evening that an attempt had been made to enter his place through the rear window. The police watched the locality and finally caught Sheehan.

HOW TO GET WELL

If one is sick and wants to get well there is just one way to go about it. That is to breathe pure air, drink pure water, and eat the right quality of food. That is all there is to it. Air, water, and food of a proper sort the body needs. Nearly every disease is caused by a lack of one or all of these things. Some doctors may tell you that pure blood, upon which good health depends, is made in some other way. The wise doctor will tell you it can be made from no other source whatever. People who are sick and want to get well will find that no food is more agreeable in the production of pure blood than Shredded Whole Wheat Biscuit, and that none is more appetizing or more easily digested. Physicians who have studied the food question are warm in their endorsement of Shredded Wheat for invalids and for people suffering from some impairment of the digestive functions.
