I. J. DUNN TELLS HIS SIDE

Plaintiff in Diamond Saloon Case Says He is Agent of Ottisens.

I. H. McDONALD APPEARS AS PETITIONER

Witness Admits that He Himself Might Have Played Cards for Money in Cliff Cole's Place.

The testimony of Ignatius Jehovah Dunn occupied the morning hours in the criminal division of the district court in his action against the Diamond saloon, where he alleges gambling devices are kept and operated.

When questioned by Attorney Connell, Mr. Dunn stated that he had begun the prosecution of the Diamond saloon at the request of local citizens, who had got up a petition asking him to act in such a capacity. The name of J. H. McDonald appeared second on this list, and Mr. Connell made much of this fact, as it has been alleged that Dunn was employed by McDonald to prosecute this case because the proprietors of the Diamond would not accede to an alleged request made by McDonald for a share of the profits of the Diamond.

The attempt was made by Mr. Connell to show that Dunn was actuated in bringing the suit by feelings of personal hatred toward Thomas Dennison. The statement having previously been credited to Dunn with having called the proprietors of the Diamond "highwaymen," in reply to a query from Connell, Dunn said that did not exactly cover his designation of them, as he had deemed them a "gang of outlaws" who had been granted police protection for a period of six or seven years.

Dunn Accuses the Sheriff.

Reference was made by Dunn to what he alleged to be had faith on the part of the officers of the law, especially the sheriff's office. Dunn stated that he had repeatedly caused search warrants to be issued, but that the sheriff had tipped it off to the gamblers and when the strong arm of the law reached the place the gamblers had not only decamped, but had carried their gambling furniture and paraphernalia with them. This alleged fact was also said to be true in regard to some service he had desired to obtain against some South Omaha gambling places, which resulted in failure.

Mr. Dunn said he was sure of the fact that the Diamond saloon had been operated under the protection of the officers of the law for several years and that it was for this reason, above all others, that he was actuated in his proceedings against the Diamond. This gambling, which Dunn alleged is not as general as before, for the reason that it seems to have centered at the Diamond, was termed "outlawry."

Mr. Dunn stated that he had several times offered employment in a legal capacity by the Diamond's representatives, but that he had refused to enter into such an agreement.

Much amusement was noticed in the court room when Connell asked Dunn if he had not played cards for money in Cliff Cole's place, for several years and that it was for this reason, above all others, that he was actuated in his proceedings against the Diamond. This gambling, which Dunn alleged is not as general as before, for the reason that it seems to have centered at the Diamond, was termed "outlawry."

Several Witnesses.

The witness Thursday afternoon included Milton T. Barlow, Lee Spratlan, Homer Kirk, A. C. May, Patrick Dennison and I. J. Dunn. Nothing that was especially new or startling was developed by the witnesses. The feature of the afternoon was the testimony of I. J. Dunn, one of the relators and the plaintiff in this action. Mr. Dunn's testimony was mainly a refutation of the statements made during the morning hours by Mr. Broatch, who, as a member of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, testified that Dunn had said, earlier in the year, that he would not institute a suit against the Diamond saloon if he were sure that Dennison had no connection with it.

Patrick Dennison testified that he did not operate or have anything to do with the pool room, but owned a half interest in the Diamond saloon.

The hearing of testimony in the case against the Diamond saloon, where I. J. Dunn alleges gambling devices are kept and operated was continued before Judge Estelle yesterday afternoon. The presentation of testimony is not concluded as Judge Estelle departed for Hot Springs, Ark. last night, an adjournment of the case was taken until Monday, November 23.

Nothing of importance was developed by the testimony yesterday afternoon, when testimony was offered by S. B. Clark, H. E. Swigart, Patrick Mottly, Secretary Harvey of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, A. Morrison and T. H. Cooley. Constable S. B. Clark said he had gone to South Omaha on a number of occasions at Dunn's suggestion to close gambling places and on one of these occasions he had told Dunn that it would be more satisfactory to him (Dunn) if he would get after other gamblers in this city than Dennison.

Testimony in the case will be continued this morning, and it is expected that the case will be closed by noon.

MAXWELL HERE NEXT WEEK

Will Come Again to Work Up Local Interest in National Irrigation.

George H. Maxwell will probably return to Omaha Wednesday for another meeting in working up local interest in national irrigation. Secretary Ut of the Commercial club received a letter this morning making this date. Mr. Ut attended the irrigation meeting in Lincoln at which Mr. Maxwell talked, and since his return has mailed copies of the irrigation act to members of the committee on irrigation, which was appointed to consider some action by Omaha. The committee has not met, but will probably do so in a few days.

into service, how some were appointed to watch for the fires of the enemy and how the women were put to work making sandbags that could be used upon the walls.

"The secret of a successful fortification," says Dr. Gamewell, "is to place something between you and the bullets."

Dr. Gamewell says his boyhood days were spent in the south and his knowledge of fortifications used in the civil war proved to be of untold benefit to him at this time.

The British government in speaking of his work says that without doubt the saving of the lives of the missionaries was due more to his generalship than to any one thing during the siege.

BACK TO THE STATE COURT

Boyd County Land Case Remanded by Federal Judge Munger.

Judge Munger yesterday handed down his memorandum opinion in the Boyd county land case, which in effect remands the case back to the state court.

The formal title of the case is Alexander H. Blair et al against George D. Follmer as commissioner of public lands and buildings of the state of Nebraska et al.

The plaintiffs allege that they settled on the lands in question before they were surveyed, which were a part of the Fort Randall military reservation, and hold that they were protected in their rights by the congressional enactment of 1893.

The court holds that there is nothing in their petition to indicate that there is any question as to the construction of the said act of congress.

The case in brief is that the plaintiffs were squatters on the Fort Randall reservation lands prior to their alienation by the general government to the state of Nebraska. After the alienation of the lands plaintiffs claimed possession under the homestead entry laws. They lost before the land office officials at O'Neill and later before the state courts. The state brought suit (that as these lands were school lands under the terms of transfer of the lands from the government) for payment for the lands under the school land laws of the state. Plaintiffs contracted payment on the ground that a federal question was involved and the defendants later brought the matter into the federal court to decide the question.

Attorney General Frouth, who appeared as attorney for plaintiffs, was placed in the anomalous position of being against the proposition submitted by George D. Follmer as a state officer. This is accounted for in the fact that it was the attorney general's contention that a state question was involved, that the state should be sued and that the United States court had no jurisdiction in the premises; that the lands belonged to the state as school lands, and their disposal was wholly at the discretion of the state.

LARGE TAXPAYERS ARE SLOW

Majority of Corporations Fail to File Schedules and Filing Will Act.

Approximately 7,000 of the 15,000 personal property schedules due in the office of the city tax commissioner have not been received, though the time for their filing will expire tonight. But one public service corporation, the Omaha Electric Light and Power company, has filed its schedule, and the large business interests of all kinds have been equally dilatory. Uncertainty as to the operation of the new revenue law is given for the non-arrival of the schedules. The number delinquent is about 2,000 more than in previous years.

The Board of Review, composed of Tax Commissioner Fleming, Harry L. Reed and W. J. Kierstead, will convene Monday at 10 o'clock. About 1,000 schedules are ready for their consideration. They will sit for one month. Property owners dissatisfied with assessments hold the initiative for protest.

"If the corporations and large business houses do not file their schedules by Saturday night I will be compelled to estimate the values and make them myself," said the tax commissioner. "You will see, however, that every large property owner that has not filed a schedule will be called in to answer questions concerning his holdings. All replies will be demanded under oath. The indications are that there will be more taxpayers called upon this year than ever before."

Watch for the mis-spelled words—they're coming.

COMMITTEES FOR EXCHANGE

Hustlers Are Appointed to Swell Membership of New Grain Market Organization.

The board of directors of the Omaha Grain exchange held an executive meeting at the Omaha club yesterday, with all members present. About the only business transacted was the reading and approval of the minutes of the last meeting and the consideration of measures for additions to the exchange membership. The following committee was appointed to solicit for new members:

A. B. Jacquith, N. B. Updyke, N. Merriam, F. A. McWhorter, A. E. Reed, G. W. Wattle and E. E. Bruce.

The board then adjourned to 12:30 p. m. Friday, November 20.

NO GREASE OR DANGEROUS DRUGS.

In "Herpicide," the New Scientific and Successful Dandruff Treatment.

Have you dandruff? Then you have a contagious parasitic disease, unpleasant, unhealthy and one that will eventually lead to baldness. To cure it you must destroy the parasite that eats at the root of the hair. The only preparation for destroying these germs is Newbro's Herpicide, Charles Klein of Lafayette, Wyo., says: "Herpicide allayed the itching, cured the dandruff and stopped my hair's falling out; and it is bringing a new crop of hair." Herpicide is free from grease or dangerous drugs and makes hair glossy and soft as silk. One bottle will convince you of its merits. Sold by leading druggists. Ordinance for Disposition of Bonds to Be Passed if Todd & Co. Fail to Buy.

The time limit set when Todd & Co. of Cincinnati, O., must either accept the issue of $48,000 renewal bonds awarded to them some time ago by the city or reject the bargain will expire at 3:30 this afternoon. In case nothing is heard from the bond company new ordinances will be passed at Tuesday night's council meeting, putting the bonds on the market again. Todd & Co., according to the finance department, has played a waiting game and, apparently, cannot handle the issue.

Three Men Held for Street Car Holdup Last Saturday Night

ONE CHARGED WITH HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Motorman and Conductor Positively Identify Charles Smith and Think James Costello and Frank Wells Are Guilty.

Charles Smith, positively identified by Conductor F. M. Valentine and Motorman Ira Flanagan, who were held up at the terminus of the Park car line at Hanscom park last Sunday night and robbed by three masked men, as one of the trio, has been charged with highway robbery in an information filed by Assistant County Attorney Frank L. Weaver. James Costello and Frank Wells, believed by the police to be accomplices of Smith, are held as accessories to the crime. Flanagan and Valentine not being able to positively identify them as in the case of Smith.

Costello claims Salt Lake as his home, Smith, Sioux City and Wells, Chicago.

Frank Wells was arrested Thursday night at Odell's hall on Farnam street between Tenth and Eleventh. He was picked up by Detectives Drummy and Madson, who recognized him as one of the men from a meagre description given them by Flanagan and Valentine.

A little strategy on the part of the officers sufficed to get Wells to accompany them to the station on the pretext that he was wanted by a friend who had his gun, he was induced to select one of the two revolvers found on Smith as his own. Considering this sufficient evidence of complicity Wells was locked up.

A reward of $500 was offered by the street car company for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.
