Bearish Statistics Bring About Bearish Effects on the Wheat.

MAY CORN DROPS A SHADE LOWER

Onts Also Are a Trifle Off at Closing, While January Provisions Join in the General De-

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Reports of excellent harvesting weather in Argentina and brarism statistics caused scattered liquidation of wheat today and after a good advance early in the day prices weakened. May closing %2-2c lower. May corn was a shade to 7-2c lower. May corn was a shade to 7-2c lower. The fact that there were practically no deliveries on December contracts created bullish sentiment in December wheat early in the day and an advance of 2c was made within the first hour of trading. The better prices brought out large realizing sales and the advance was lost. May opened unchanged to 3c higher, at $1-2c to $1-3c, and although this delivery received considerable support from the leading built operator and notwithstanding the sharp raily in December, the price held barely steady the early part of the session, due to persistent selling by local traders. Reports of fine weather in Argentina, comparatively small clearances, lower prices in all outside markets and a fairly large increase in elevator stocks in the northwest, where a decrease had been expected, combined to create bearish sentiment toward the hoon hour and the market yielded to the pressure, May declining to 80-3c. Prices railied somewhat near the end of the session on renewed buying by prominent longs, but the close was lower, with May off 36-3c at 80-36 flux near the end of the session on renewed buying by prominent longs, but the close was lower, with May off 36-3c at 80-36 flux near ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 980 cars, compared with 1.085 cars last week, and 1.103 cars a year ago.

Corn ruled comparatively steady, with no selling pressure manifested from any source. There was some scattered selling on break in wheat, but the demand from commission houses was sufficient to prevent any decline. After selling between 22 and 1.103 cars a year ago.

Pronounced Symptoms of Professional Manipulation Are Observed.

RESULT IS HIGHER PRICES ALL THROUGH Speculative Sentiment Over the Stocks is Equally Confused, as There Was No Particularly Good News and Some Bad.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—There was a considerable increase of activity in today's stock market and a generally higher range of prices resulted at the end of the day. The movement continued hesitating and somewhat irregular and the small net changes resulting in some of the more active stocks left a suspicion of professional manipulation. Even the purpose of the supposed manipulation was subject of doubt and dispute covering such varying suppositions as a professional movement against the shorts, the bidding up of the prices for marketing long stock and even a purpose on the part of the bearish professionals to make a market for putting out fresh short lines. Speculative sentiment over stocks was equally confused. There was little in the actual news of the day to favor an advance in prices and some of the news was distinctly unfavorable. The report of net earnings of the Erie for October showed a decrease of $155,55, compared with the preceding year. This was without effect on the market, partly because it had been foretold and was known to have been due to the loss and interruption of traffic by floods.

It was partly offset also by the state-effect on the market, partly because it had been forefold and was known to have been due to the loss and interruption of traffic by floods.

It was partly offset also by the statement for the same period, which showed an increase in net earnings of all the companies of $678.59. The general testimony disclosed in other statements of carnings recently has been for increases in gross carnings to be mostly or wholly wiped out by enlarged operating expenses. The reports of gross carnings for the third week in November thus far published show an increase on the average of less than 2 percent, although the returns from the coalers are not included, and this group will compare with large earnings last year. The passing of the dividend on Republic Steel, although it had been feared, had not been fully assured, and considering this the effect in the industrial list was slight. That stock itself fell an extreme 2½ but recovered all but a fraction. There was a reduction in the price of copper in local market. The money market continues firm, but the rate for call loans reached only 7½ per cent, compared with 9 per cent of yesterday. The expected transfer of $1,000,000 by felegraph to San Francisco was made and in addition $200,000 was transferred to New Orleans, while New York exchange at Chicago fell to a slight discount. The price of gold rose in London and sterling exchange weakened here but only $190,000 was secured in London for New York account. Announcement was made of about $750,000 of Japanese gold shipped for San Francisco. The factors in the advance in stocks were in the form rather of surmise, the old rumor of a Gould-Pennsylvania settlement figuring to a large extent. The strength of southern roads was attributed to general conditions such as the prosperity of the cotton belt and the harmony of railroad control assured by the recent seaboard air line deal. There was an attempt to convey the impression that large bankers and capitalists had been absorbing stocks in the midst of the provailing depression of nent easier. Business on the stock exchange opened dull, owing to fears regarding the situation in the far east, though it was generally believed that Russia was not anxious to engage in hostilities. There was a good undertone and prices were fractionally firmer. Later there was some investment buying, but speculation was poor. Consols opened quiet and then spurted sharply on bear covering, but the best quotations of the day were not maintained. Home rails were depressed on account of poor earnings, the indifferent trade outlook and capital requirements. Americans opened steady at parity, the anticipations of further gold exports to New York being a factor of the firmness. Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western were the features. There was an improvement later and prices closed firm. Grand Trunk juniors were in fair recovery, owing to the belief that the November and December statements will make a much better showing than that of October. Kaffirs opened depressed on the report that China would raise obstacles to the importation of coolles to South Africa. Later they made a good recovery.

steady. In fact, some sales were made that looked a little higher. There did not seem to be any too many to meet the re-quirements of the local trade, and as a esult an early clearance was made a prices very satisfactory to the selling in result an early character was made at prices very satisfactory to the selling interests.

Bulls, veal calves and stags could also be quoted steady and in brisk demand.

The supply of stockers and feeders was quite limited and as the demand was in good shape the market ruled active and steady to strong. There seemed to be quite a few buyers in from the country and all the speculators wanted the better grades in particular. Common stuff, while not any ligher, was easier to dispose of than has been the case of late.

There were not very many western grass beef steers on sale this morning, and under the influence of a good demand the market ruled active and firm. Range cows and stockers and feeders fluctuated, as noted above. Representative sales:

Cotton Market.

Cotton Market.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The cotton market opened at an advance of ligils points on menactionally stronger cables, more bullish predictions regarding the probable showing of the census bureau report expected tomorrow at noon will show the amount of cotton ginned todate, and estimate the probable amount remaining to be ginned; firm advices from the sauthern markets and a sudden belief that there was a considerable short interest in the market to cover before the bureau report. Hefore the opening, sentiment was very buillish and excited brokers were predicting 12 cents for cotton before the day was over. On the initial advance, which was attended by great netivity and excitement, there was heavy realizing by buil operators, who were apparently reducing their lines, possibly with the intention of setting into a better position for again supporting prices in case of any decline and this was heavy enough to case prices off a few points. But at once there was another rush of covering and buying orders that seemed to come from all points of the compass and started prices upward, and before midday December was settling at 11.65c; January, Highling: March, 11.87c; May, 11.85c; and July, H.87c. After his fluctuations were very irregular. At first, realizing would tring about a partial reaction, then the market would be railled again, selling within a point or two of the previous high level. The local buil lender bought aggressively during the afternoon, taking large amounts of March, while there was buying by New Orleans built interests, and during the entire session the market showed a good, firm undertone. The close was down several points from the best, but steady at a net advance of 16672 points. Sales were about a million bales. Speculation is centered on the probable showing of the census report.
