Inquiry Into Postoffice Cases Drags Along to Disgust of Witnesses and Fencing Case Serves an Sidelight.

The nature of his evidence can only be surmised and Governor Steele declines to Much stress has been laid by the enemies of Senator Dietrich upon the importance of the evidence that Governor Steele would give before the grand jury and his presence at the federal building created a perceptible flurry among the Summers faction The brevity of his examination is regarded as a sufficient assurance that his testimony did not pan out the sensational features hoped for and there is an evident air of disappointment about the district attorney's office in consequence.

It is daily becoming more apparent that the dragnet of the political aftermath of the senatorial contest of 1901 is to be worked in these postoffice cases to the utmost. A significant feature of these invesigations as reflected at the federal building through the unwary admissions of witeases before the grand jury is that all of them are bitter and uncompromising political foes of Senator Dietrich, and that they lose no opportunity to air their grievances before the grand jury as relentlessly as they do in the federal court corridors. The witnesses in the Arapahoe case are coming disgusted with their enforced stay here and the delay in taking up that case, which is characterized by witnesses as "the rottenest of the whole deal." Defented Candidate Talks.

A mass of extremely strong testimony was poured into the grand jury yesterday afternoon relative to the Arapahoe postoffice matter The principal witness was W. D. Pruitt, the unsuccessful applicant for the office, and everything possible was named, a former member of the legislature that elected Mr. Dietrich United States sentator, and at the same time a warm personal friend of the senator. The successful appointee was not a candidate for the first senator that the office was not at a proportion of the senator. The successful appointee was not a candidate for the senator.

Failure of Board to Pass on Cresceus' Record Looks Good to Owner.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The Board of Appeals of the American Trotting association adjourned today without taking action on the record made by Crosceus at Wichita, Kan., in October. The next meeting of the board will be in May, 1904.

The action of the board in postponing the case until the next annual meeting was regarded by George B. Ketcham, the owner of Crosceus, as a practical victory. The fact that the charges against Crosceus were not proven to the satisfaction of the racing officials and that the friends of Ketcham will have plenty of time before

Tommy Ryan Gets a Match.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Tommy Ryan met here tonight and agreed to fight a twenty-round battle for the middleweight champlooship of America. All that is now lacking to make the battle a certainty is an offer by some club of a suitable purse. Both men will then put up their forfeits and sign articles of agreement. Several clubs throughout the country have been negotiating for the fight, but it is believed that San Francisco will be the city chosen as both men stated tonight that they would prefer to fight on the Pacific coast.
