MICKEY WELCOMES A TEST

Expresses Doubt on Legality of Labor Commissioner and Similar Laws.

SUPREME COURT PASSES ON IT ONCE

H. F. Rose of Lincoln Files Brief Upholding Constitutionality of Insurance Clause of the Revenue Law.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Dec. 11 .- (Special.) -- Governor Mickey would giadly welcome a suit to test his right to appoint a deputy labor commissioner, deputy game warden, deputygovernor made such a statement this morning when his attention was called to an ediconflict with the state constitution.

"I agree with The Bee." said the gov- $300. ernor, "that the statute in this regard is anconstitutional, and I hope that some one will bring a suit to test it. In making the appointments I, of course, followed the statutes, but at the same time it is my opinion that all of these offices would be abolished, as well as would the supreme court commissioners, should some one take the trouble to bring a test suit. However, I shall not resort to such heroic measures as discharging any of the heads of these departments, but If any one cares to bring the suit I shall have no objections; rather, in fact, do I court such a proceeding that we may be placed right with the constitu-

"The present system of appointing deputles to the governor makes too much responsibility for one man, and there should be adopted a constitutional amendment that would make the offices elective. At present I have no way to oversee the work of any of these deputies, for the simple fact that I have to take their reports for what they do. These reports may be right and they may not be. Should a governor make a bad appointment he is at the mercy of the appointee. A state accountant would remedy this, but not like a constitutional amendment."

Upheld by Supreme Court.

The constitutionality of the creation of the office of the labor commissioner, however, has been upheld in one instance by the supreme court. This was the case on-Watson, Deputy Labor Commissioner, P'aintiff, against Laurence N. Eskew, Assessor, Defendant, wherein the labor commissioner applied for a writ of mandamus to compel the assessor to collect certain statistics. One of the contentions of the defendant was that he refused to perform the duties because the act in question was unconstitutional and void.

The grounds of this claim are that the original act of 1857 was and is unconstitutional and void because contrary to section 26 of article v of the state constitution, in that it creates an executive office contrary to the inhibition of that article; claimed that the amendatory act of 1857 is void, for the reason that it not only attempts to amend a void act, but is not germane to the provisions sought to be amended and hence its subject is not expressed in its title.

S. H. Burnham, president of the First National bank, has gone to Denver on a business trip. It is suspected in financial circles that Mr. Burnham has been called into consultation with the magnates who have under consideration the deal of financing the recent purchase of the street rallitie.

on this point said:

The act of 1887, imposing the duties of labor commissioner on the governor of the state and providing for the appointment of a special deputy to assist in discharging them, is not in violation of section 26, article v. of the state constitution.

In his opinion granting the writ prayed for Judge Hastings said:

The form of the act of 1887 "to provide and continue a bureau of labor and industrial statistics and defining the duties of its officers" was unquestionably adopted to avoid the provisions of the state constitution, section 26, article v. that no other executive state office should be continued or created, and that the duties devolving upon officers not provided for by the constitution should be performed by the officers therein created. The objection to the act is that it authorizes the governor, who is named as commissioner, to perform his duties, as set forth in the act, by deputy. It amounts to a contention that the authorization of deputies for the state officers, named in the constitution, is prohibited. The statement of the proposition seems to carry with it its own refutation. The practice of employing deputies in such offices has not arisen since the adoption of our constitution in 1875. It was certainly well known to the distinguished men who drafted that instrument as well as to the voters to whom it was submitted. If they had meant to forbid any such practice they would have done so in direct terms. The objection that the act is unconstitutional because the duties provided in it may be performed by deputies cannot be sustained.

Another Revenue Law Brief. for Judge Hastings said:

Another Revenue Law Brief.

H. F. Rose of Lincoln this morning filed brief in the supreme court in defense of the revenue law and a copy was sent each of the judges. Mr. Rose used the greater portion of his brief in defending the insurance sections of the law. He held that the legislature under section 1, article ix.. of the constitution has power to classify insurance companies for the purpose of taxation and also has power to tax insurance companies on other than a valuation basis.

The basis of his argument is the contruction he places upon this section, the erst clause of which provides for taxation by valuation for property and franchise, while the second clause of this section provides for the taxation of peddlers, express companies and numerous other concerns, including insurance companies, by general law uniform to the class on which it operates. The attacking attorneys argue that the valuation clause controls the second clause, but Mr. Rose says they are co-ordinate and of equal weight.

Inspects Soldiers' Home.

Secretary Davis of the State Board of Charity and Corrections has returned from a trip to Grand Island, where he went to inspect the soldiers' home and to discuss the tramp proposition with the Board of County Commissioners. He reported the home to be in excellent condition and the inmates well satisfied. However, Mr. Davis still adheres to his former contention that the soldiers would fare much better if the Grand Island liquor houses were so far away that the soldiers could not get to them. He still maintains also that the cripples and widows at the home should be removed to Milford in the increst of peace and harmony.

In the matter of the tramp question the county commissioners voted unanimously to aid as far as was in their power the work undertaken by the National Conference of Charties and Corrections, the executive committee of which Mr. Davis is a member.

Arrested for Killing Deer.

George Johns is under arrest in Buffalo county for shooting a deer and killing it. contrary to law. Johns was out hunting and spied the deer on a river island. He was taken with the buck ague or something else and failed to pull his game law out of his pocket and investigate. Instead he shot and the deer was killed. He then to have a look. Among those who came thieves.

was one who had a greater regard for the game law of the state than for Johns' prowess as a hunter and the game warden was informed. Deputy Hunger went to the Johns' home and asked about the affair. Johns, who was proud that news of his achievement had gone into other lands than his own, gladly but modestly admitted that he had fired the shot that brought down the first deer killed in that part of the state for years. Then Hunger made the arrest.

The people, however, in that part of the state sympathize with Johns, who is a wood cutter with a large family dependent on him, and it was even told by the deputy game warden that the county attorney was loath to prosecute, saying it was a "damnable outrage," or words to that effect, When it was intimated by the deputy that the attorney general would be called in the case it is said the county attorney veterinarian and a deputy oil inspector. The said he would attend to the matter. The open season for killing deer is from August 15 to November 15. Johns said he thought torial in The Bee to the effect that the the season began November 15. Commisstatute allowing such appointments was in sioner Carter said he intended to prosecute the case. The penalty is a fine of $100 to Planting Trout Crop.

Fish Commissioner O'Brien is busy at work stripping trout at the state hatcheries at South Bend. This is the work of securing the spawn of the trout and fecundating it before it is placed in the hatching vats The fresh spawn is rather soft and ice water is used to harden it. Much care is used in the selection of the trout from which the eggs are secured, so that only the healthiest fry will be hatched. Eight ten weeks are needed for hatching, beause of the low temperature at which the water in the hatching vats must be main tained Trout begin to spawn in November and in colder climates will deposit eggs as late as January. During this period at the hatcheries the fish are carefully watched so that as far as possible all of the spawr may be saved. Mr. Carter said that the prospects are unusually good for a large crop of healthy, active fry. Later in the season spawn will be secured from hatcheries in Colorado and Iowa.

A considerable increase in the number of ersons who have taken out hunting and fishing licenses during the last season will be shown by the returns which are now being comptled by Warden Carter. Last year more than 2,600 licenses were issued, and this morning Mr. Carter estimated that there would be from 600 to 700 above that figure when the returns from the county clerks are all in. He is planning to make a tabulation at the close of the seatitled State of Nebraska ex rel Cyrus E. son next year showing the walks of life from which these hunters are drawn.
