researches constituted the serious portion of the program. He said in part:

The Omaha ledge is looked at from all over Elkdom as one of the most important. Since its organization it has taken no unimportant part in the government of the grand lodge. The influence of Omaha Elkanad a good deal of effect in making the grand lodge itinerant in its yearly resisions. More recently in the Jamestown-Atlantic City fight which bid fair to break the Elka in two and was the greatest contention which has ever arisen. No. 32 took such a prominent part that the settlement was made by what is known as the "Omaha idea." Omaha always got the hour of the controlling part in this most important fight of Elks. This lodge is twenty-six in the numerical list. Its members are leaders in all branches and while we have faults and while we have made mistakes, with such members we cannot fall to progress and cannot fall to be a force for good in the community.

Judge Shields said that the true anniversary of the lodge was February 7. Tom Keene, the noted actor, while in Omaha organized a committee to see what could be done in forming a lodge. At that time there were only thirty-eight lodges, all in the east, numbering largely actors and newspaper men, and nothing was known of it here. A lodge was feeling and those cleated were: C. C. Williams, P. M. W.; Ed E. Hoffman, M. V.; C. J. Johnson, overseer; W. H. Tindell, clerk; J. A. Howard, treasurer; Ben Morton, recorder, and J. Johndro, receiver. if here. A lodge was formed in January, 1886, and in February a delegation from the Chicago lodge installed No. 39. The dispensation from the grand lodge, howwas not granted until December 12. The twenty charter members were: John Francis, Dwight G. Hull, H. W. Hyde, H. L. Hall, J. W. Garneau, E. C. Whitman, W. C. Gregory, A. S. Davenport, Alfred Sorenson, Thomas Boyd, I. W. Miner, F. Murray, J. W. Cartan, W. E. Annin, C. McClure, D. W. Haynes, D. W. Van Cott, S. F. Woodbridge, W. N. Babcock and C. C. Hulett. Of these only I. W. Miner, Thomas F. Boyd, Alfred Sorenson and A. R. Davenport are now connected with the lodge.

The judge gave some interesting details of the Eik's club, which had such fine quarters in the Continental block, and ended $7.000 in debt after receiving loans of $2.300 from the lodge, bringing the Eiks into disrepute and nearly wrecking the lodge.

The Eiks' quartet, composed of T. B. Swift, C. R. Miller, E. C. McCormack and C. P. Moriarty, sang sweetly, and C. R. Miller, Jo Barton and Thomas B. Collins sang appreciated solos. Jack Buchanan parade the aisles with the Scotch pipes and the music of the isles. Baker, pitcher of the Omaha league team in 1891, who is soon to go on the Orpheum circuit, was much ded for his songs, both as an old friend and as an entertainer. Frank Dunlop got off his good things about Henry Irving and the Irish monkey, and others to hearty applause, and soveral rounds of the Dunlop-O'Brien feud were Lloyd Scrubs did some clever card tricks and after the theater Melbourne MacDowell and several of his company and Carl Reiter, with his bunch, added to the merriment. Basket ball is now the order of the day. With the material the conch has in view Bellevue ought to be able to turn out at least six good sams. The squad that will go under the name of "first" this season will be one of the best the local college has put forth. Carl Friedman, however, the incomparable center of last year's team, is absent and no doubt his unerring arm will be missed in a material way in the coming match games. Howard Thorpe, a cuack forward, is also missing from the team this year. To help make up for these losses the new material is abundant and first-class. Joe Runner, who is a promising candidate for forward, has already won laurels at the York High school, where he was a member of the State High school champions in basket ball.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Light Thrown on Paving Methods by the New Law.

MUCH QUESTION ARISES OVER MATTER

Discussion Comes After Council Addresses Itself to Proposition of Paving South Twenty-

Fourth Street.

Since the city council has taken up the matter of paving South Twenty-fourth street and Railroad avenue many people have made the assertion that they do not understand how this can be done without a petition signed by a majority of the property owners.

The last legislature passed a law giving the mayor and council the power to cause to be improved by grading, paving, etc., any street or part thereof leading from the corporate limits into the city. This power shall not apply to any street that was included in any paving district before the passage of the law. As South Twentythe passage of the law. As South Twentyfourth street and Railroad avenue never have been included in any paving districts the law holds good in this case. Under this new law not more than one street or avenue leading to the boundaries of the city in each direction may be so improved in any one year. The necessity for such improvement must be declared by ordi-nance and that already has been done, although the ordinance has not yet been passed. Contracts for such work under the provisions of this law must be let to the lowest responsible bidder. No contract can be entered into if a remonstrance against making such an improvement be signed by 5 per cent of the legal voters and presented to the mayor and council.

For the payment of these contemplated improvements the mayor and council may issue general bonds of the city, payable in twenty years from their date, with interest at not more than 5 per cent, interest to be paid semi-annually. The city will pay two-thirds of the cost of this pavement and the other one-third will be charged against the abutting property owners. When these bonds are sold the bond attorneys will have a new question to consider, and that will be the legality of the act of the legislature in this matter. This is a question which has never been brought to the attention of bond attorneys, as South Omaha has never attempted to pave a street under the new provisions.

School Teachers Indignant.

At the general teachers' meeting held at the high school yesterday attention was called to the fact that no part on the program had been assigned to South Omaha by the Nebraska State Teachers' associaon. The state meeting of this association is to be held at Lincoln on December 30, 31 and January 1. Something like fiftythree towns in the state have been given places on the program, but for some rea ion South Omaha was omitted entirely, hence the wrath of the local teachers.

Few Charity Cells. William H. Queenan, chairman of the committee on charity, said last vening that his committee had received fewer calls for charity this fall and winter than last year. The principal demand these days is for fuel and not a great deal of that is being sent out. Mr. Queenan con siders this an indication of comparatively good times in South Omaha. It is true that the packers are laying off help, but that is always the case at this time of the year. The calls for charity these days come mostly from widows and those who are ill and not able to work.

"We are making a test case in police court," said Treasurer Alfred Miller. "It raises the question whether or not horses without corks on their shoes can be worked during these slippery conditions of the streets. The case which brought it up was that of a team belonging to an express company. These horses had light shoes worn smooth, which were no better than nothing. The driver spent almost three hours in trying to get up the California street hill. The team had been taken out against his advice. We issued a warrant for the owner. The other case in which our new officers have acted was in the excavatng work for Hayden's on Douglas street. Horses were being used with raw

The Nebraska law against docking horses tails is causing considerable interest among humane societies all over the country and requests frequently come in to Secretary H. S. Mann for copies. One of these was from Boston. Copies of this statute and the one forbidding pigeon shooting are in demand throughout Iowa, where similar bills will be brought up at the coming sesaion of the legislature. The passage of such laws would be very pleasing to the Nebraska society, for herses are now taken across to Council Bluffs and docked there. The same thing is true of the shooting of live pigeons, which is done by Omaha clubs just across the river. An attempt will be made in Lincoln to amend the docking law to make it like the Colorado law, which makes it a misdemeanor to own a docked horse. The statute against docking Major George Lewis Dennis died at 2:40 p. m. Saturday at his home, 1502 South Twenty-ninth street, after an illness of about six weeks, due to a carbuncle, which pile of sand left alongside the tracks. A developed into a case of blood poisoning. Major Dennis was born in New York state August 5, 1823, and hence was 70 years 4 months and 7 days old at the time of his death. He was a veteran of the civil war, having entered the service as a leutenant in a New York volunteer reginent, and was a member of the Fifth Division Rifle team of the National Guards of New York. Upon the close of the civil war he had reached the rank of major for meritorious service and was later commissloned in the Twenty-first United States infautry and was connected with that regiment when he first came to Nebraska in 1878. He resigned his commission shortly thereafter and located near Beward, Neb., on a form, living there four years, and then removed to Omaha, where he has since resided. The drawing feature at the monthly stag party given by the Millard Rifles was the boxing exhibition between Tommy Ryan of Philadelphia and Billy Rhodes of St. Paul. Though billed on the program as an exhibition it was as near to the regular thing as the rules would allow. Both the men put up a stiff fight and blood flowed freely. The fighting was chiefly in Ryan's favor. Preceding this bout "Dago Carl" of Omaha and "Kid" Bell of Council Bluffs did a little sparring. Doe Church refereed both fights.
