WOMAN IN CLUB AND CHARITY

In no department of her activity can it be more truly said that "woman's work is never done" than in clubdom, and with a never just closing, and another about to begin, for the rest of the world, the club woman finds herself only in the midst of her work and knows, too, that this is not because of lack of system or of plans gone wrong, but only because, as the world's housekeeper, her efforts must not cease with the year any more than with the day.

A resume of the year just closing shows to the credit of the club-woman a list of achievements of which she may well be proud, and that by comparison with a few years back seems strangely full and big, but altogether worth while.

In the national effort the work accomplished in last winter's legislatures stands first, for few state legislatures failed to secure the passage of at least one bill for the regulation of child labor, compulsory education, traveling libraries, or some other measure for the promotion of the public welfare.

In Nebraska the women have not been less active than in other states; in fact, in some respects they have more to show for their efforts than in the majority of states, particularly in their recognition by the superintendent of the Nebraska educational exhibition at the St. Louis exposition as an educational factor worthy of a place in the state exhibit there. Nebraska is the one state in the union to so recognize its club women.

The state meetings of the various organizations last fall show every one increased materially in numbers and strength. In September the Women's Christian Temperance union held its annual meeting at Lincoln, Nebraska, which was represented every part of the state, each with reports of something accomplished. In October the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs met in annual convention at Fremont, representing 116 clubs and over 4000 members. The same week the Nebraska Woman's association met at Nebraska City with 1200 women represented, and the P. E. O. sisterhood held its meeting at Lincoln.

With each organization representing some particular purpose, all have worked together in the same things, chief among these being the effort for the betterment of a juvenile court, for a better pure food law, for the extension of the State Traveling Library commission work, for compulsory educational laws, and for a more equitable property rights law for women.

In the library and compulsory education efforts the women are active in the other things their agitation promises not to be without fruit; for an interest has been aroused that will in another year bear fruit.

In Omaha the clubs have gone on growing in strength and accomplishment. The Woman's club has gained materially in membership, and with a liberal allowance estimated for the year's expense will come out in the spring with fully $600 over and above its expense, in addition to its investment of $400.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union, while not as noticeably active as last year, has accomplished quite as much, having furnished the funds necessary for a great part of the work conducted at the City Mission, besides the prison and convalescent hospitals, and the disbanded Union has been reorganized with thirty some active members, the largest in Douglas.

The organization of a state society of the Daughters of the American Revolution was in progress, and the Omaha chapter is expected to do much to strengthen the patriotic work of the state and promote the collection of historic records of this section.

Practically all of the national women who have visited the west this fall have included Omaha and Nebraska in their itinerary and their visits have been mutually helpful. All in all, the year closing has been successful to the extent of bringing Nebraska and its women to a place near the top among those who have worked hard and have profited well by their efforts.

Miss Lillis Crummer, a sister of Dr. B. F. Crummer, will leave Omaha on January 4 to return to Shanghai, China, to resume her work at St. John's college. Miss Crummer has been a teacher there for the last ten years, sent out by the Episcopal Board of Missions, and returned this fall on leave expecting to remain a year. Changed at once and she will resume her work with the beginning of the spring term, the middle of February. Last year Miss Crummer was in charge of St. Mary's Hall, St. John's college, which includes four educational institutions and an orphanage, is one of the oldest and best known Christian colleges in China, and it is there that many of the wealthy merchant class educate their sons and daughters, its graduates now filling public positions in all parts of the empire. Among the students now there is the son of Wong Kai-kai, Chinese commissioner to the St. Louis exposition.

The Woman's club has been granted the use of Boyd's theater for Monday afternoon, January 28, for Mrs. Martha Gleason, who will present her "Plantation Folk Lore."

Following was the menu for the day.
