Assaulted by Man Who Shoots and Misses and Then Uses Butt of

His Revolver.

HASTINGS, Neb., Jan. 19 .- (Special Telegram.)-James Barton, a student of Hastings college whose home is at Ayr, was tonight the victim of a vicious assault. In company with two younger students Barton was walking to his room from the college campus after supper. The trio met two men and a dog. The dog made as if to bite Barton and the young man kicked at him. This angered the owner of the dog, who rushed upon the student. A sharp fistic encounter followed and Barton was getting better of it when his opponent drew a revolver and fired at the student's head. The shot missed and the man began to pommel Barton over the head with the revolver, continuing the attack until the young man fell on the sidewalk insensible His companions, mere boys, went to give the alarm and assistance came, but not until the assallants had escaped. Medical examination showed that Barton's scalp had been severely wounded. The police have no clue to the identity of his assail-

Dangerously Hurt in Runaway. NORFOLK, Neb., Jan. 19.-(Special.)-Alvin Low, one of the most prominent stockmen in northern Nebraska and a ploneer settler of Norfolk, is in a very critical condition at his home near the city as the result of a disastrous runaway. Driving home Mr. Low's horse became frightened and overturned his carriage down a deep embankment which lay near the approach to a railroad crossing. He was dragged for some distance and rendered unconscious. A train whistled by and made the animal frantic, but the reins were wrapped about the unconscious driver's hands. Three ribs were broken and torn from the collarbone. His lungs were hurt, too, and he has been unable to lie down for several days.

Gambling Appeal Hearing.

In supreme court this morning the appeal of Mayor Frank E. Moores and Chief of Police Donahue from the peremptory writ of mandamus ordering them to close the Diamond pool room and stop gambling in the city of Omaha came up on a motion to advance the cause. The court signified that it would do so shortly and at the same time fix a date upon which briefs should be filed.

Lysie Abbott appeared for the relators, himself and I. J. Dunn, and urged a speedy hearing. He said that for weeks a gambling room had been openly running on one of the main streets of the city of Omaha, and that it was not necessary to go into court after a writ to close it. The mayor and chief of police not only opposed the issuance of the writ, but after the court had ordered one to issue had appealed to this tribunal. He pointed out that the supersedeas bond, which now stayed the execution of that writ, was signed by the mayor, chief of police and city treasurer. This bond, he insisted was not a supersedeas bond, but merely one for costs, and did not therefore stay the execution of the writ. He asked the court to so held. W. J. Connell, who appeared for the jection to advancement, but he did not see any urgent need of haste in the matter. He
