

EDUCATION AND THE CHURCH

Rev. M. I. Stritch of Creighton University Delivers Thoughtful Lecture.

SHOULD BE ON COMPREHENSIVE LINES

Would Not Cultivate One Faculty to Detriment of Other, but Would Build Up the Moral Side of Man.

Rev. M. I. Stritch, S. J., professor of literature at Creighton university, spoke to a large audience at the new church, corner of Twenty-third and Winney streets, last night on the subject, "The Catholic Church and Education."

The common ground of misunderstanding of people as to the church in relation to education, and the arguments most frequently offered by the enemies of the church why it should not deal in education are that the church pays too much attention to the spiritual side, neglecting the natural and practical side; that the church desires a monopoly on learning; that it is not extended to the laity; the real desire being that the people should not know too much, so they can better be held in subjection; and, lastly, that the church opposes any system of education which will afford independence to its members.

The claim is also set up that the church has always been hostile to widespread education. I will try to show you during my remarks tonight that these assertions are not based on facts. I do not desire a controversy with any one on this subject. I will simply attempt to make an exposition of the church's doctrine so that it can be thoroughly understood. In order to understand the question at issue, we must first understand what education is. If you attempt to learn some one thing which you expect to be of benefit to you in the future you are simply receiving instruction, not education. Man is a compound being, consisting of body and soul, and these are subdivided into various classes. There are several senses called the gates to knowledge. All these should be cultivated by education to bring out every power within the man. Some so-called education simply develop the bodily powers, but the best education is that which develops them all. The soul should be educated in a fitting manner. The mind, at the same time that the man is receiving instruction on worldly matters, should be lifted up, strengthened and enlightened.

Education Should Be Broad.

A man is not built up in body merely to become an educated and worthy man. The cultivation of virtue and good habits has more to do with the bringing out of that which is good in man than does the study which has received the proper education will never depart from the Ten Commandments of God. I would far rather see a man who would be careful in his observance of the commandments than one who is educated in all the sciences and who is depended upon to keep them. By the right kind of education man can be developed in all his faculties, built up physically, cultivated morally and educated aesthetically. A man with such an education will be far more able to grasp truths than one who has but a portion of his faculties developed. Intellect can get poor and worn out, but the body and the food of the will is made up of goodness.

The person who is perfectly fitted up will pursue the true, the good and the beautiful, thus reaching the great end for which God created him. No man who is not a perverted mind but who will acknowledge this is the end for which God created man. I do not say that we should give all the senses equal development. We would give them simultaneous development, for some are far more important than others. The Catholic church gives particular attention to the moral and spiritual development.

Cultivate the Conscience.

That portion of the intellect which judges between right and wrong is what we call the conscience. The mind of an educated man is not educated, is more liable to sin, than the mind of a man who has received a moral education. How many men there are who when they enter politics are perfectly honest, but who are gradually corrupted by the bribes they receive. They are dishonest, true, disinterested men we must develop that portion of the intellect called the conscience, and strengthen it against evil. There is a vast difference between the man who knows good and does not do it, and the man who does not know good. The man who is not properly educated, the Catholic church lays stress on these things that some other principles. We try to make more of the moral and spiritual side of education and familiarize the student with the commandments and laws of God. The man who shows particular power in any one line is the world's hero, but he is not always God's hero, not unless he is morally sound. We could not tolerate a purely physical education. It would detract us from a moral education. Of course, those people who are the faith of God is not found in criticism. The kind of education. It has been said that all knowledge comes from God through two channels, the book of God's word and God's works. We must learn the two together.

Science to some people is all in all. They take no stock in the scriptures. I never heard of a really great scientist pursuing his course, but the so-called scientists sometimes do this, that class which might be designated as camp followers. That class I have in respect for, but for the great scientist I have. One of the camp followers style of scientists something which apparently conflicts with theology and he hurriedly casts it before the world, saying:

ing: "You have spent so much time developing this theory of yours and it should be perfect. You see you spend too much time on religion." Usually it is proved that he is wrong. There is a great amount of prejudice existing on both sides regarding the Catholic church and I would like to see it wiped out.

END OF SHIPBUILDING CASES

Formulation of Reorganization Plan Brings Long Fight to a Close.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—After frequent conferences the long fight between the Sheldon reorganization committee in the United States Shipbuilding company and the bondholders' protective committee, represented by Samuel Untermyer, was settled tonight by the formulation of a new plan, which has been agreed to by both sides and the litigation in which Charles M. Schwab has been the central figure will end.

Max Pam has been removed from the reorganization committee and Pliny Fisk, the banker, whose house will take part of the work of financing the new company, takes his place, while Max Nathan of the International Pump company has been agreed on as an additional member of the committee to represent the protective committee.

The new plan made public by William Nelson Cromwell is set out as coming from Receiver Smith and provides for a new company with a capitalization of $30,000,000, half preferred and half common. Mr. Schwab, as the owner of the Bethlehem bonds to get $2,000,000 of preferred and $6,000,000 of common stock and the first mortgage bondholders to get the remainder pro rata.

INTEREST IN MEETINGS GROWS

Hanscom Park M. E. Church Crowded to Hear Evangelist Ostrom.

"I care nothing for perdition," said Evangelist Ostrom at the Hanscom Park Methodist church Thursday evening, "except to get perdition out of the lives of men and women. I care nothing for heaven, except to bring it into their lives. What good will a man get out of heaven if he has not a true character behind him? Our twentieth century civilization is not developing that character. Godly sorrow which saves develops it."

Evangelist Ostrom dwelt at length upon the present day thought of all show of sentiment and sorrow as unmanly and weak. He emphasized a Godly sorrow, a remorse for wrong-doing, which is not self-centered, but which turns the thoughts outward and upward.

The sermon was heard by an audience which completely filled the large church. The interest was intense and many tarried for the after meeting, where there were a large number of inquiries for a better life.

The meeting for elderly people Thursday morning drew out a large congregation, composed mainly of those who have put aside the duties of active life.

Today closes the meetings in the Hanscom Park church. Large plans are being made for the meeting there this evening. Sunday night the meetings will be transferred to the St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church, where they will probably continue every evening next week.

SOLVE Hired GIRL PROBLEM

Des Moines Widower and Omaha Widow, by Cupid's Aid, Settle It.

MATCH MADE IN EMPLOYMENT OFFICE

Prosperous Farmer Shares His Bounty with Little Woman Struggling for Paltry Living for Child and Self.

"I am a widower yet, with two children, a good farm and $10,000." "I am a widow, with one child, but no farm or no money." They sat on a long, rather crude bench in the office of the Omaha Employment bureau on North Fifteenth street, staring each other in the face as if summoning their best judgment to pass sentence on Cupid's choice. He, a substantial looking German of perhaps 30 years and she a bright appearing little German woman of apparently less than 25. Their conversation began in English, but was continued in German and waxed very cordial at times, so it seemed. But they were not talking longer than fifteen minutes before they rose, walked to the manager's desk where he deposited some money and together they left the office. He had a vehicle outside which they entered and drove across the street to a saloon. He went in and brought out two steins and in another minute they had disappeared.

VERSION OF CITY ENGINEER

Statement by Andrew Rosewater Throwing More Light on the Paving Controversy.

OMAHA, Feb. 5.—To the Editor of The Bee: The article in yesterday's Bee crediting Mr. Lobock and his colleagues with saving the city money in asphalt paving repairs in 1903, when as a matter of fact they put up a job in the interest of John Grant and caused the city to be robbed of over $2,000, merits prompt condemnation instead.

Last summer John Grant, as manager of the Nebraska Bitulitic company, took the two majority members of the Board of Public Works and some fifteen other city officials to the city of St. Louis, paying their expenses and feasting them for an entire week, at a cost to himself and his contractor friends of fully $40,000. Ever since their return these members of the Board of Public Works and some others have been completely under the hypnotic influence of the Grant combine and their free feasting, which is still being continued.

The first official proposition was the introduction and voting for paving specifications drawn up by the Grant regime, but their exclusive interest, over the engineer's protest. This protest cited that in doing so they violated their oaths which bound them to comply with the law. The city attorney sustained his position and when they were finally beaten they stated that other specifications should be adopted during the year. In this they have succeeded.

We next come to the repair proposition. Proposals were informally asked for by the Board of Public Works for repairs on asphalt pavements. These propositions were again solicited and proposal blanks prepared under the advice of City Attorney Wright to avoid any possible pretext for contest. The bids were received and opened on August 7. The lowest bidder was the Barber Asphalt Paving company, their price being $106 for two and a half-inch asphalt work and $18 for two-inch work. John Grant's bid was $110 and $1, respectively. Immediately a delay was invoked by the Grant combine by injunction proceedings and the scheme of giving Grant, the higher bidder, the job by indirection, which could not be given by direct methods, was carried out. Grant was hired to do the work by the day and was placed upon the payroll of the Board of Public Works at $150 per month.

At this very same time he had two paving contracts under way. The charter expressly prohibits an employee of the city from being interested in contracts, but the charter cuts no figure with the majority members of the board.

When the arrangement was made for this work Mr. Grant standing to popularize his proceedings, had it announced that the Bitulitic company placed its plant at the disposal of the city, the company to be paid for the asphalt used at $12.50 per ton, and actual cost for other materials. Within a month after beginning a bill for $80 for twenty-four days use of the plant was presented and allowed by the votes of Messrs. Lobock and Withnell. On November 23, cold weather setting in, I ordered all work on repairs discontinued, and demanded to see all bills and unpaid payrolls. The latter was not complied with.

FEW BIRTHS IN RICH HOMES

One Hundred and Fifty-Five Babies Come in January in Working Class Families.

Omaha's population was increased by 155 babies during the month of January, the number being a trifle greater than the ordinary month. Eighty of the arrivals were boys and seventy-five girls. Of the latter two were colored. There was one pair of twins, sexes having an even break-away.

The birth cards show the argument of Omaha ministers that there are extremely few births in the homes of the rich to be correct. "Laborer," "clerk" or "artisan" are on nearly all the returns in the blank for the occupation of the father.
