Announcements of the Theaters.

The Fatal Wedding, with a splendid acting company, most beautiful stage settings and several excellent vaudeville features, is pleasing large audiences at the Krug. Gertrude Haynes and her "Choir Celestial" of 25 boy singers have made a pronounced hit as the big special feature of the performance. "The Fatal Wedding" is to be given but two more times here, this afternoon and tonight. Thursday night and for the remainder of the week the attraction at the Krug will be "A Home-spun Heart".

Seats are now on sale for the original Carl Hagenbeck Animal company, which opens at the Krug next Sunday matinee for an entire week.

The bill at the Orpheum this week is scoring about as favorably as any thus far this season and as a result is being rewarded with full houses. It contains not only much that is pleasing but novel also. It would be hard to designate just what act is the "real thing" so well do a number of them take. The unusual juggling of Henry Humbert is one of the features that is creating a lot of talk. The regular mid-week matinee will be given Thursday, and the women folk and children will find the program well calculated for them.

Seats are now on sale for the Orpheum road show, which comes to the Orpheum for the week commencing Sunday next.

This afternoon at a special "bargain" matinee and this evening "The Punkin Husker" will be presented at the Boyd. This is a rural drama of the higher type, telling a story of Indiana love and politics and introducing real men and women in its action and not the stereotyped caricatures made familiar by lude plays. The engagement is but for two performances.

Next Thursday at a special matinee and evening performance "The Silver Slipper" will be the attraction at the Boyd.
