

ESTABLISHED JUNE 19, 1871.

OMAHA, SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 14, 1904.

SINGLE COPY FIVE CENTS.

BENNETT'S

CROCKERY!

RICH AMERICAN CUT GLASS

FOR VARIETY, BEAUTY OF DESIGN, BRILLIANCE OF CUTTING, our line OF RICH CUT GLASS IS UNSURPASSED IN THE WEST.

The newest things out at the closest cut figures is the two-fold rule in our cut glass section.

FIVE TIMES GREEN TRADING STAMPS FOR ONE ON ALL PURCHASES OF CUT GLASS. PRICES FROM 25c TO $75.00. MONDAY ONLY.

ON EVERY TOILET SET OF A VALUE OF $2.50 OR MORE WE WILL GIVE TEN DOLLARS' WORTH EXTRA OF GREEN TRADING STAMPS.

No. 2 Lamp Chimneys, each... 3c Thin Blown Table Tumblers, each... 21c FIVE GREEN TRADING STAMPS FOR ONE ON ALL JARDINIÈRES.

Crockery Department Second Floor.

The little Green Sticker in the little Green Book is the only little Sticker that Sticks; Stick to it!

The Bennett Service, Green Trading Stamps and Other Matters

We have doubled, tripled and quadrupled the giving of the LITTLE GREEN STICKER in those sensational sales that have marked time in your money saving during the week.

We believe in the golden rule; its golden rule, our winning ways, our determination to please, our certainty of retaining your good will that brings every sensible buyer to Bennett's.

We do most anything to merit your complete satisfaction. Our salespeople and assistants are with us heartily and wholly in an effort to maintain the magnificent standard of Bennett popularity, which YOU HAVE BUILT AROUND US.

Watch these Green Trading Stamp sensations. Keep watching every Bennett advertisement—it's never anybody's but Bennett's, never garbled from State street, Chicago—it's Bennett's.

You will strike it rich during the coming week. Strike it very rich, tomorrow, Monday. Every department manager is enthusiastic in his work, and in every department, there's sure to be "somebody" doing!

A WALL PAPER SENSATION

Double Green Trading Stamps to Every Wall Paper Buyer. Good White Blanks, up from... 3c

Good Gifts, with 8 or 18-inch border, made to retail at 10c and 20c—Monday and Tuesday... 7c All fall styles in Tapestries, Silks, Embossed Golds and Moirés that sold as high as $1.00 a roll... 30c

Soda Fountain!

Monday Specials at the Soda Fountain. Nesselrode Pudding, Charlotte Russe, French Drip Coffee, Tolu Ice Cream Soda

These are not fancy names but FANCY DRINKS originated by our expert dispenser.

MAIN FLOOR.

Drugs! Drugs!

Attractions in Drug Section at Bargain Prices.

- Colgate's Talcum Powder, in cashmere Bouquet or violet, per box (Samples Free) 15c Chamola Skin Soap, per bar... 25c Schiltz' Malt Extract, a strengthener and a nourisher, 1/2 pint bottles, per dozen... 1.50 Malt Nutrine, 1/2 pint... 2.25 Patent Malt Extract, 1/2 pint bottle, per dozen... 2.25 Welch's Grape Juice, 1/2 pint bottle... 25c

GREEN TRADING STAMPS EVERY TIME.

Muslin Underwear Sale on Our 2nd Floor Chemise at 25c.

We have about 25 dozen fine Chemise left out of our January sale that got mussed and a little soiled—worth up to $1 each, sizes 34 to 44, all go Monday—each... 25c $1 Worth of Green Trading Stamps With Each Chemise.

Wrappers.

A good Percale Wrapper, in blues and blacks, worth $1.00, Monday—each... 49c

Dressing Sacques.

Another cut price sale on fine Eiderdown Sacques—a big table full of $1.50 ones, Monday, only—each... 75c

Shoulder Shawls.

Worth fifty cents—on sale Monday at—each... 25c

Spring Suits.

Visit our second floor on Monday and see the greatest display of New Spring Suits shown in Omaha—many exclusive styles and all the very newest models.

Black Dress Goods.

Pretty new Black Voiles, 46 inches wide, the right finish, at, yard, $1.50, $1.25 and... 1.00

New Black French Cloths.

A very handsome assortment of those ever fashionable dress materials at, yard, $3, $2.50, $2, $1.75 and... 1.50

Black Dress Goods Special.

46-inch Creponette, Mistral, Panamas, Etamines, Vestings, French Crepes, Henriettas, Sicilians, Mohairs and Granites, Goods in this lot worth to $1.50 yard, for Monday, yd... 75c

At the Big Wash Goods Dept.

We want everybody to visit this department Monday and see all the new, dainty wash goods, at such very low prices.

Three Big Specials for Monday

No. 1—Oxford Suitings—A number of very pretty new Oxford Suitings, worth to 40c yard, Monday, yard... 10c

No. 2—All the new French Suitings, very nobby goods, worth to 50c per yard, Monday—per yard... 25c

No. 3—All our very swellest Scotch Suitings, new Fancy Voiles—these are worth 35c yard—special Monday—yd... 18c

At the Domestic Counter

60-inch bleached and unbleached Table Damask, all new patterns, worth 65c yard, Monday—per yard... 49c

72-inch bleached Table Damask, in the very latest patterns, worth 80c yard, special, only—per yard... 59c

25 dozen all linen bleached Table Napkins, size 24x24, worth $2.50 dozen, special sale, only—per dozen... 1.75

50 dozen Turkish Towels, unbleached, extra heavy and very large, special for Monday—each... 18c

500 yards Glass Toweling, worth 10c yard, Monday, only—per yard... 7 1/2c

1,000 pieces new A. F. C. Toile de Nord Gingham, new Percales, Nurses' Red Cross Gingham, at—per yard—12c and... 10c

A Few Notions from Our Notion Dept.

- Wire Hairpins—per dozen... 1c Bone Hairpins—per dozen... 10c Wire Hairpins—two cabinet—assorted—for... 5c Toilet Pins—box... 2c Card... 2c Agate, Pearl and Metal Buttons—5c All wool Brush Binding Brads—per yard... 5c Darning Eggs—each... 5c Ironing Wags—dozen... 2c 50 dozen Hair Brushes, Tooth Brushes, Nail Brushes, worth up to 5c each—each... 25c

Hardware

Here are some extraordinary snaps in Cutlery Scissors and Razors.

We have an overstock of these fine goods. We make a special cut Monday.

Ladies' Scissors, 4 in... 10c Ladies' Scissors, 4 1/2 in... 12c Ladies' Scissors, 5 in... 14c These are strictly warranted goods.

Razors

Black rubber handle, extra fine, hollow ground, 1/2 in. or 3/4 in. blade, regular price is $2.25; Monday the razor is yours sir, at... 1.50 Star Safety Razor, the $2.00 world renowned Star Safety, Monday for... 1.30

Woodenware

High Folding Clothes Bar... 65c Strong 6-ft. Ladder... 45c 20x36 Lapboard, only... 32c 18x22 Bread Board... 23c 4-hook Hall Rack, Triple... 19c Hooks... 19c 6-in. Towel Ring... 5c

Dorothy Dodd

The Faultless Fitting Shoe for Women.

Perfection of style and absolute comfort guaranteed. Durability with a wearability that keeps all the initial features intact for a longer time than the ordinary woman's shoe will keep together.

Oxfords, $2.50 and $3.00 Shoes, $3.00 and $3.50 Fast color eyelets in every shoe.

A "Capitol" Sensation!

The next great GREEN TRADING STAMP SENSATION that is going to make you notice that every second woman you meet on Sixteenth street has a GREEN TRADING STAMP COLLECTING BOOK in her hand—you've seen this before—will be pulled off SOME DAY THIS WEEK.

Watch Our Ads! Watch Our Ads!

In the Realm of Art

Just Made a Big Purchase of Metal Photo Frames, the Latest Designs.

1,000 all sizes, in gold and black, worth 75c of anybody's money, on sale Monday at only, each... 48c 500 Metal Photo Frames, in beautiful gold and black, newest shapes, worth a round dollar anywhere, Monday for... 45c Other Frames, exquisite, stunner, for the price of $10.00 down to $1.25, $1.10, $1.00, 75c and... 45c

PIROGRAPHY 500 Big Panels, Dutch Girls, Dutch Girls, Golf Girls, Jap Girls, Soubrettes, sell regularly at 75c; Monday we make a sensational sacrifice at... 49c Practice Plaques, big, handsome, each... 19c Plate Racks, Antique, Old English and Puritan Styles, each... 1.98

Furniture

Golden oak 6-foot extension, fine finished—value $7.00, for... 4.95

Parlor Three-piece mahogany finished, covered with nice damask—sells regularly at $18, for... 11.50

Couches Golden oak frame, deep tufting, spring edges, covered with velour—sells regularly for $8.75... 6.00

Springs Steel frame wov- good value at $2.75... 1.95

Dining Chairs Golden oak, brass arms, cane seat—cheap at... 1.45 $1.95—for

You never heard of such values as these!

Enamel Beds Continuous posts, all color combinations—sells regularly at $14, Monday for... 8.50

Side-boards Golden oak, French plate mirror, abundant closet room—13.50 cheap at $18, for... 13.50

Rockers Golden oak or mahogany finish, saddle seat, polished—regular value $4.50... 3.10

Dressers Golden oak, large plate mirror, serpentine front—sells regularly at $18, at... 13.50

Corner Chairs Mahogany finished frames, covered with silk damask... 4.95 sells regularly for $7.25

BUSY YEAR FOR BUILDING

Omaha on Verge of Period of Unusual Activity in Construction.

MANY LARGE BUILDINGS WILL GO UP

Architects and Contractors as a Rule Look for Season of Remarkable Growth for Omaha.

If all the plans for building now under consideration are carried out Omaha will see this year one of the busiest building years since the old times of spurious prosperity. It is generally admitted that the first manifestation of the spring fevers in Omaha is a busy lot of conversation about large and important structures, which in many cases never pass the stage of a rough draft in some architect's office.

John McDonald also finds his office with more work than for several years and looks for a good building season. The labor situation seemed to him to be better than it had been for some time and he thought the St. Louis exposition would not much affect the local labor market. In building material he thought that the rebuilding of Baltimore might bring the steel firms enough work orders to make them a little slow in filling other orders in some lines of material.

Not More Than Normal. Thomas R. Kimball was inclined to think that some of the buildings in prospect would get no further than paper. "I do not see any reason to look for more work than a normal building year brings us," he said. "Several buildings are going ahead that I know of and numerous small cottages, but nothing, I think, more than we have in any year when the conditions do not depress the builders. From a labor standpoint we are better off than for years. St. Louis, I think, will have sufficient interest to absorb the overabundance of mechanical supply. In the structural material market prices are just now a little more promising than they have been recently. Of course considerable building is going on—we have sixty jobs now—but the office is not busier than it was at this time last year.

G. L. Fisher of Fisher & Lawrie thought that, while there was not an especially large number of business blocks certain to be built, the number of smaller residences in prospect was above the average. The labor situation he considered as most promising and he felt there would be no holdup in building material.

F. H. Henninger is another architect who looks forward to more than normal activity. "More work is being done," said J. B. Mason, "than in five or six years. More building is now in prospect than there was last year before the strikes caused most of that to be dropped. The development will be in all lines. The St. Louis exposition will not interfere with work, for, no matter how many workmen it takes away, enough will come here from the towns in the state."

Some Work on Auditorium. Among the buildings begun during 1903 and yet to be completed is the Auditorium. All of the steel work and all of the brick work is finished. The only men working now are a few stone cutters who are chiseling out the Corinthian capitals on the pilasters which were put up unfinished in order to save time. The next contract will cover the building and place the doors and windows. The power house of the street railway company on Jones street will be one of the most important buildings to be finished this year. The walls have been completed and the steel trusses for the roof are under way. The switchboards now are being placed. The monastery of the Poor Clares on Hamilton street is almost one-third finished. The First Baptist church has a good start, the basement walls being completed. This Twenty-ninth avenue house of worship will be finished in the summer and dedicated in September. The Methodist Episcopal hospital in Remis park has just been begun and it will be one of the largest undertakings of the year. The Douglas terra-cotta and buff brick building at 146 Douglas street, put up under the direction of the McCauley Investment company in place of the one which collapsed, has reached the height of the cornice and the roof will be finished as soon as the weather moderates. The engine house at Eleventh and Jackson has reached an advanced condition and will be early finished. The house on Twenty-seventh street also is approaching a finish. The Omaha club addition is completed except for some interior decorating. For the Hygienic Creamery company building at Eighth and Harney streets the brick walls have been brought a little above the basement line. All over the city are residences and brick flats in a more or less advanced state of construction.

Great Western Terminals.

Among the new buildings, of which there seems a certainty, are the terminals of the Chicago & Western, west of the Sixteenth street viaduct. Houses are being removed and grading done. Hayden Bros. have the plans drawn for a ten-story building on Douglas street and the work of excavating was only stopped because at the time it was impossible to protect the walls of adjoining property. J. L. Brandeis & Sons will remove the Gleason hotel, west of the Young Men's Christian association building, and erect an addition similar to the present stone structure. The Young Men's Christian association, having sold its building, is looking for a new location and will break ground before the year is ended. Thompson, Eviden & Co. have entered into a contract with George A. Hoagland for a building on the corner of his residence property at Sixteenth and Howard. The plans are being drawn by Architect John Latenser and the work of preparing the ground will be begun as soon as the weather permits. A. I. Root has the plans for a four-story building on Howard street and is waiting for the building season. The Ames estate buildings on Jones street which were burned, are to be early replaced by similar but more modern structures. Teasdale & Son will put up a large elevator as soon as the frost is out of the ground. The plans have been completed and the firm has options on several available sites. A. D. Brandeis is to put up a fine residence, the plans calling for more than $50,000.

Many other projects are on foot which at this time are not certain, but work on which is probable. Allen Bros. probably will make an addition to the Kingman property at Tenth and Farnam streets. The Kingman people will in that case build east of this new building, although this work may not be done this year. Bebe is canvassing for additional funds. Merriam & Holquist, so it is rumored, may erect a second large elevator. In addition to these there are constant rumors of buildings to be put up opposite Boyd's theater in one direction or another, in three places on South Sixteenth street, on Douglas and elsewhere. In addition to these there have been various out-of-town investors here to see what advantages the city offers for elevators, flour mills and malt houses.

Roman Catholic Cathedral.

The Roman Catholic cathedral on Fortieth and Burt streets is another probability for the year. The First Christian church may be begun; the plans were long since made and the land purchased. The Young Women's Christian association has plans drawn for a five-story building and a new building on the corner of Douglas and Eleventh. The plans are being drawn by Merriam & Holquist, so it is rumored, may erect a second large elevator. In addition to these there are constant rumors of buildings to be put up opposite Boyd's theater in one direction or another, in three places on South Sixteenth street, on Douglas and elsewhere. In addition to these there have been various out-of-town investors here to see what advantages the city offers for elevators, flour mills and malt houses.

MARDI GRAS FROM THE INSIDE

Merymaking in New Orleans the Tourist Must Search For.

FANCY PRICES TO SEE THE SHOW Presents Showers on Lucky Girls in Parades and at Balls—Time of Expense for Native as Well as Visitor.

All roads lead to New Orleans these days, and people on pleasure bent are moving thither. The season of the Mardi Gras is on and Tuesday night will see its finish. There's only one thing really necessary to anybody hankering for a sight of the Mardi Gras. That is—a not uncertain amount of shekels.

Armed with a fat pocketbook and shod with good stout walking shoes, you may approach the Crescent City at carnival time in a reasonably serene frame of mind. The streets will come in handy—as an Irishman might say—for the purpose of walking the streets in search of a room.

The fat pocketbook will then be your taking card. At carnival time you pay $10 a day for the privilege of occupying a room with the wife of your bosom—or without her, either, for that matter.

When the first expansive landlady—"daughter of one of the old Creole families," she carefully informs you, whereupon you must look properly impressed and must not wink the other eye until she turns her back—when this ample and amiable creature—who is invariably simple and amiable—asks you $5 a week for her big, bare, musty, dinky room, your first impulse will be to say something real cutting about Broadway prices for bowery goods. Maybe you will ask her if she hasn't mixed things and imagines she's in New York when the name really is New Orleans. One can be so clever with the right provocation.

If you do try anything of that sort the amiable daughter of a hundred creoles will regard you with a pained expression and explain in her own way that the law of supply and demand is the one law which isn't affected by the reign of the Lord of Misrule. You and a thousand other men will be glad to pay $5 a week before midnight. If you don't want the room at that price, here's a family of six or a party of eight ladies from Brooklyn who will be glad to get it.

You may be lucky enough, by engaging accommodations in advance, to get a room for $4 a day, or even less, if you are not too particular: In any case, once provided with a room and blessed with enough spare change left over to buy yourself some of the good things to eat for which New Orleans is famous, you may then see the carnival and welcome.

That is, you may see the outside, the whole outside, and nothing but the outside, unless you are more favored than the ordinary traveler. If you want to see inside as well as outside of the Mardi Gras, put the inside of the Mardi Gras in your purse. Let your scrip be in the form of letters of introduction. The brighter the name at the head and the bigger the name at the bottom, the better it will be for you.

As the north—the frozen north, as they are fond of saying down there—knows the carnival, it consists of two or three street parades just preceding Mardi Gras (that Tuesday) and on the night of that day several balls. To one of these, the Rex ball, Tom, Dick and Harry and De Courcy get tickets with very little difficulty, and De Courcy gives his ticket to a man from Chicago.

To the other ball, Comus by name, De Courcy gets a ticket which he does not give away. Tom, Dick and Harry and the man from Chicago chew their cigars and hope that their wives haven't heard about Comus or whatever it is. For there are no tickets to the Comus ball lying around loose.

An Early Start. The real carnival, however, the carnival as the New Orleans people know it, begins away back on the night of January 7, when the exclusive Twelfth Night ball takes place. To the frozen North the carnival then seems almost as far off as the Fourth of July.

The Twelfth Night ball really is only an advance agent, though it is followed by a rush and whirl of private functions—luncheons, dances, receptions and several subscription Germans. In New Orleans they don't say anything; they say german. About two weeks before Mardi Gras the fun grows faster and more furious. The series of famous masked balls begins with the Knights of Mithras, the Falstaffians, the Elves of Oberon.

Next comes the last week before Mardi Gras and into it are crowded three more balls, still more important than those of the previous week. These are the Comus ball, the Atlantians and the so-called Carnival German. In exclusiveness they rank in the order named.

Monday night comes the Proteus ball and, finally, on Mardi Gras night, are the Rex and Comus balls. The Rex affair is for the hot pool of tourists. It is just a crush where you will see every imaginable variety of costume, from irreproachable evening clothes to draggled rainy-day skirts and shabby waltzes. Rex and his queen put in an appearance at this ball, but promptly leave again, going over to the Comus affair.

amount of preparation involved is enormous. It must be remembered that these are not simply dances. Each ball opens with the entrance of the king and the queen and their court. Rex and his consort are called king and queen of the carnival. But there is a lesser pair of monarchs at each ball.

Look at the Bills. As soon as the court is seated the pageant begins. It is really more than a pageant—it is an elaborate pageant. Hundreds and sometimes thousands of dollars' worth of scenery, costumes and properties are used in each of these pageants. The Comus and Rex balls cost from $20,000 to $50,000 apiece. The king's robes and jewels often cost $1,500, while $50 to several hundred dollars each. The men are all masked, but no woman is.

Several weeks before a ball the famous call-out cards begin to reach the society girls, every one of whom is on tip-toe with eager expectation. To be invited to a ball is the mark of a girl's social position. These cards come by mail and the girl receiving one hasn't the slightest clue to the identity of the sender. The card is a printed form with blanks, which are filled in respectively with the girl's name and the masquerade's number. The reply is to be sent to a certain lock box in the general postoffice. The number of the dance for which this card is a call-out is also specified.

After the pageant which opens every ball is over, the fortunate possessors of call-out cards are seated around the dancing space and the masked men group themselves in the middle of the floor. The members of the committee confer with a masquerade and then announce: "No. 7 is called for" or whatever the number may be. Thereupon the girl holding a call-out from "Masquerade No. 7" for that dance goes forward.

Gifts for the Girls. At the close of each dance the courtier presents to his partner some gift, and, no matter how valuable or how eccentric it may be, she is bound by carnival etiquette to accept it, and, if possible, wear it forthwith. The first gift a courtier presents may be the clasp which fastens his cloak. When the clasp happens to be of gold or silver and perhaps twinkling with brilliants it is likely to give any girl a throbb of pleasure.

After the next dance the cloak itself may go. Once in a while a girl draws a stunning velvet cape, lined with ermine, which she proudly permits her gallant to transfer from his own shoulders to hers. The velvet hat with its sweeping ostrich plume may be the third girl's prize. After the fourth dance off comes the dazzling sword to be "divulgarously laid in Beauty's hands. Oh, they don't think the chance for pretty speeches, be sure of that.

Dance five, and the sword belt goes to another damsel. Dance six, off comes the gold and enamel pin made especially for the occasion and bearing the name and colors of the ball. Dance seven robs the courtier of his rhinestone necklace. Dance eight costs him a gaudy glove, and dance nine takes his mate. Dance ten rips a glittering buckle from his shoe and eleven robs him of the other.

And so it goes. When he has reached a point where further encroachments upon his costume are impossible, or at least inadvisable, the courtier has recourse to a stock of trinkets laid in for the occasion. Meanwhile the lucky possessors of many call-out cards are heaping up their plunder in all directions. They know that some of these gorgeous knights, who have just been giving expensive presents right and left as if they had real incomes to match their fictitious titles, have been saving for a solid year in order to make this one mad, delirious spurge.

They know that on Ash Wednesday these poor young men will wish that they had been thoroughbred idiots. But it is royal fun now and they also know that inside of a month the thoroughbred idiots will be saving for the next carnival and be satisfied to do it.

The Inside of It. If you should happen to be near the Boston club when the Comus parade passes down Canal street on Mardi Gras evening, you may see a bit of the carnival which comes pretty near being a part of the inside of it. Seated on the tiers of benches built out in front of the second story of the club house will be the Queen of the Comus ball attended by her maids of honor.

In seeing her you will see the most envied girl for the moment in New Orleans. Even to be queen of the carnival itself is no so great a mark of honor as to be chosen Queen of Comus.

Around the queen and her maids will doubtless be other girls belonging to the smartest set of society, and he seeks, he throws a package, with as good an aim as the jolting that will permit, straight at her. Generally it falls into the wrong girl's lap and then the masquerade shakes his head violently and tries to point out the girl for whom he intended it. And the laughing young women pass it from hand to hand.

This one! No, no! Violent head shaking by the masquerade. This? This? Ah! Beholds the lucky girl. For sometimes these packages contain a jeweled pin, a bracelet, a ring, things which, at any but carnival time, a man would not dare to offer one of these girls. Nor she dare to accept. No wonder they are glad to receive the return of the Lord of Misrule. It must not be thought that upon the men devolves the entire expense of getting ready for Mardi Gras. The girl who is in society is expected to appear at each of the three principal affairs,