ARGUMENT IN ROGERS CASE

Case Will Probably Ba Given to the Jury Some Time Today.

DEFENDANT TESTIFIES IN OWN BEHALF

Relates in Detail the Incident of His Paying Cash Fare to Conductor on a Northwestern

Train.

The trial of W. C. Rogers for the murder of Saloonkeeper Bert Forney is drawing to a close in the district court and the case will be given to the jury, it is expected, some time this atternoon. All the evidence is in and the opening arguments for the month in the future. state and defense were completed when court adjourned last evening.

Rogers bimself went on the stand in the norning and told the story of how on the castle, Royal Highlanders. The principal night of the murder, as he claims, he was feature of the program was an address a passenger from Chicago to Council Bluffs by Dr. P. J. Montgomery on "Robert n a Northwestern train. Beyond teiling this and denying ever having been in the penitentiary either in Iowa, Ohio or elsewhere, and in fact ever having been arrested, he refused to testify. While on the tertain with recitations. stand he was cool and collected.

Regarding his trip from Chicago to ouncil Bluffs, and especially the part of his having paid a cash fare and received conductor's receipt, he said that after leaving Clinton the conductor demanded $6.10, the amount of the fare between Clinton and Boone. Rogers said he offered the conductor three sliver dollars, saying to "Well that is $3 for me and $3 for you." But the conductor informed him that that was not the way he did business and that they did not cut fares. Rogers said he then produced a roll of bills and handed the conductor a $10 bill and received his change and the receipt for the cash

Conductor Connors was recalled and He testified that he remembered the incident and conversation related by Rogers. On cross-examination the witness said he did not think one of Rogers' pals and not Rogers himself could have had the conversation with him. At the same time the witness would not state that the defendant was the man who paid him the cash fare and with whom he had the conversation.

Evidence in Rebuttal.

Former Detective Callaghan, the officer the arrested Rogers, was recalled by the state to identify Rogers' grip, taken from the Kiel hotel. He testified that Rogers admitted to him that the grip belonged to him. Callaghan also testified that he had seen J. Boenert, the Chicago witness, at | Lake Manawa during the summer of 1902 in or about the gambling house. The witness was asked whether this was at the same time that Rogers was conducting a snake show and jewelry stand at the lake, but the question was ruled out on objection from the defense. Another witness offered in rebuttal by the state was ex-Police Officer A. A. Kirk, who testified to seeing Rogers twice the same evening a day or two before the murder of Forney. He said the first time he saw him was in the Jarvis Wine comboard; steam heat; free bath; public par- pany's saloon on Main street, after his attention had been called to him by Detecive Callaghan. Later on the same day he saw him on Broadway in front of the Council Bluffs Savings bank in company with Charles, alias "Dutch," Stevenson, who is now serving a jail sentence for his share in the riot at the county jail the night threats were made by a mob to lynch the negro assailants of Mrs. Starks and

Mrs. Sanders. Former Deputy Sheriff J. C. Baker identified a photograph of himself, Former Deputy Sheriff Knox and the prisoner. This photograph was taken unawares to Rogers while he was being taken back to the county jail after an unsuccessful attempt to take a picture of him had been made will take tonight's ballot to see which one at a local gallery, owing to his contorting his features. It is claimed this is a photograph which was shown to Conductor Connors and which Connors said did not resemble the man to whom he gave the cash fare receipt. Baker also testified to a onversation he had with C. A. Young, the Chicago witness, when Young called at he county jail to see Rogers. He testified that Young told him that he had met Rogers in Omaha while Rogers was selling jewelry at the exposition. Experts in Writing.

C. C. Spooner of the First National bank and Theodore Laskowski of the Council Bluffs Savings bank were introduced by the state as experts on handwriting. Both gave it as their opinion that the signature of "Frank Parsons, Burlington," on the register of the Hotel Le Grand, Chicago, were not written by the same person. The last witness placed on the stand was Deputy Sheriff W. A. Groneweg, who was called upon to identify certain photographs in evidence.

Assistant County Attorney Hess in his opening argument occurred one hour and of noxious odors, disclosed the fact that a half and was followed by Attorney Mynster for the defense. Mr. Mynster in his argument discredited the evidence of James Chaney, the eye witness of the crime and openly insinuated that Chaney was the man who committed the deed. "In order to clear his own skirts. Chancy necesearly had to lay the crime upon another." he told the jury. He also discredited the idea that men intent upon robbery would ommence shooting as quick as they entered the place they planned to rob. as Chancy testified the bandits who shot Forney did. 650
