Poor Subject to Joke About. HASTINGS, Neb., Feb. 26-(Special)-R. H. Gillmore, a civil war veteran, 70 years old, was this week made the victim of either a blunder or far-fetched practical joke. Mr. Gillmore had been in Hot Springs, Ark., for some months for his health, deaving his wife in this city. Last Sunday night a telegram was brought to his room in a hotel at Hot Springs stating that Mrs. Gillmore had suddenly taken very ill in Hastings and asking him to return home at once. Mr. Gillmore took the first train from Hot Springs and hurried to Hastings. He arrived here to find Mrs. Gillmore in her usual health and much surprised at

A. Douglass said: I have tried many cases, but the most fearless and impartial judge I ever tried a case before is Judge Pritchard. We shall make a motion in arrest of judg-ment and a motion for a new trial, involv-ing the most vital questions of law. It goes to the very root of the case, but these matters will be heard on their merits be-fore Justice Pritchard and, if not then suc-cessful, will be carried on appeal to the court of appeals, and from there if neces-sary by certiorari to the supreme court of the United States. The fight on Machen and his co-defendants has just begun.

Samuel A. Groff said: "I was just as certain of acquittal as anything in the world." Ball was furnished tonight for each of the four corricted men, the signers being the same as on the amounts fixed prior to conviction and the defendants were released.

Justice Pritchard, in his charge to the ury, set out the various counts in the indictment, and sn'd the defendants are presumed to be innocent, and that that presumption amounts to evidence introduced in their behalf and remains with them until the jury is satisfied by evidence that convinces them beyond a reasonable doubt as the defendant's guilt. He said it was incumbent on the government to prove the allegations contained in the indictment by evidence sufficient to satisfy the jury as to the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Continuing, he said:

doubt. Continuing, he said: A "reasonable doubt" does not mean every doubt that may fill through your minds in the consideration of this case, but a doubt for which you could give a reason if called upon to do so. If, after carefully considering the evidence and the law as the court shall give it to you, you ind a doubt which leaves your minds un-satisfied, that will be a doubt to which the defendants are entitled to the benefit of any doubts which may not have a reasonable foundation in the evidence and in the cir-cumstances of the case. You are the sole judges of all questions of fact, and in this respect the court can-not be of any aid to you. You have had an opportunity of observing the conduct of the witnesses while on the witness stand, as well as the interest which any witness may have had in the transaction about which he may have testified, and these are matters which should be considered by you in determining the quession as to the n determining the quasion as to the unount of weight that you are to give the vidence of any witness who may have been introduced by either the governmen or the defense.

Apply Hule of Common Sease. It is your duty to arrive at a conclusion in considering the facts and circumstances of this case the same as you would come minutes when they came into court with more of them. One Cannot be Guilty Alone. "But, ' he added, "before you can return verdice of guilty you must find that at east two of the defendants are guilty of the conspiracy as charged in the indictment; that is to say, you cannot find one defendant guilty and return a verdict of of guilty as to all the others. He urged the jury not to be influenced by rejudice or be moved by sympathy. "Yo hould give these defendants a fair and mpartial trial," he said, "according to the idence as testified by the witnesses, a pore respond, and energizes the te law as given to you by the court."

"The case," he continued, "should tried on its merits and without regard what effect the verdict would have on public mind." He concluded as follows public mind." He concluded as follows: It is proper that the government should prosecute all parties charged with crime, and the fact that the government may have amployed special counsel in this case should not influence your minds one way or the other, and it is equally essential to the proper administration of the law that the detendants should be represented by counsel in the conduct of this trial, as it is that the government through its counsel should be permitted to present its conten-tions as to the issues that are raised by the allegations contained in the indictment. I am sure, therefore, when you come to decide this makter you will consider solely the question as to whether or not the de-fendants are guilty as charged in the in-dictment.
