TRYING TO FIX BLAME FOR THE DISASTER

Twisted and Tumbled Mass Makes Task of Extrienting Bodies from Darlington House Debris Trying One.

NEW YORK, March 3 .- Investigation was begun today by the coroner, the district attorney, the building department and the police for the purpose of placing the responsibility for the collapse yesterday of the Darlington apartment house building at 57 West Forty-sixth street and the accompanying loss of life.

The number of dead cannot yet be stated, even approximately, though twenty hours have pessed since the buildings fell, so slowly has the work of removing the wreckage proceeded, but the list of known dead has reached nine, two of the bodies being still pinned fast under plies of debris though plainly visible to the searchers.

Five men are known to be missing, and as the tangled and interlaced masses of beams and masonry are cleared away the bodies of these and possibly others, it is anticipated, will be recovered.

Sixteen injured men were taken to the hospitals last night, several of whom are reported to be seriously hurt.

Amid the pile of twisted iron girders masses of stone, brick and debris that mark's the spot where the big iron frame stood the police and employes of the building department, assisted by firemen, are working to extricate the burled bodies. Chief Croker of the fire department and Coroner Scholer being in charge.

One of Proprietors Missing.

Coroner Scholer said today that Charles R. Allison, head of the Allison Realty company, the general contractors for the building, has disappeared. He was seen last night, but since then, the coroner said, he has disappeared and efforts of the police and the coroner's office to find him are fruitless.

Foreman Halpin, who was in charge o the iron construction work, is the only man 000,000, carried by the bill as excessive now under arrest.

At daybreak a hoisting engine and derrick were secured and with their aid the work went on more rapidly.

Three additional bodies were uncovered before daylight, but for several hours it was impossible to extricate any of them, so tightly were they pinioned beneath heavy beams of iron. The first one rewas identified as that of Adam Durwalder, the boss plumber for the firm which had the plumbing contract. His wife and 7-year-old son had remained on the steps of a neighboring house all night, walting for news of the husband and father and when the body was identified Mrs. Durwalder became hysterical and collapsed.

Bodies in Plain Sight.

The other two bodies, though in plain sight, had not been extricated at 10 o'clock. One of them, which was lying in that part of the ruins nearest the street, was clothed in garments of good material and better cut than those worn by laborers and was thought to be that of Frank Allison, the missing member of the Allison.
