The testimony of several witnesses to the effect that money actually was paid for the indictment by the federal grand jury of William Estelle of Pender, who is now being tried on the charge of selling liquor to Indians, served to blast the monotony of court routine in the United States district court yesterday. This case is being vigorously pushed by W. S. Summers, district attorney, but it was observed that he did not cross-examine any of those witnesses who gave this tostimony. Frank Johnson and James Allen, farmers lving near Estelle's place, twenty-five miles | Vaudeville at the Creighton-Orphenm. outhwest of Pender and three miles from the Omaha agency, both testified that about two weeks before the election last fall they saw Estelle near Little Deer's place about 6 o'clock in the morning. The night before a number of Indians were at yelling and whooping. The witnesses said they saw Estelle that morning, but that he him give the Indians any liquor. The Indians were still drunk the following morning they said. Allen stated:

An interesting feature of the evidence pro duced in this case Saturday morning was Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Illinois for malicious destruction of property. The bill for this week at the Creighton Orpheum is entitled to a place among the really good ones, for it fairly bulges with merit. Three of the acts are of the acro batic kind, and any one of them would ordinarily be esteemed a "headliner" in Little Deer's place in a drunken carousal, the press agent's category. They differ so radically that neither detracts from the had no liquor with him nor did they see any impression of a winter circus. Cordus other, and are so distributed as to remove and Maud present a hand-balancing turn offering some new feats, each requiring great strength and absolute control of perves and muscles, all being gracefully accomplished. The Silvas, father and son offer a decided novelty in equilibristic undertaking, their evolutions being accomplished at the top of an unsupported lad der, the father keeping the ladder balanced while he and the lad perform a number of difficult tricks. The very danger of thi feat renders it fascingling to that element of the public that likes to see performers risk their necks. The Welson troupe consists of four muscular men, who perform a number of new and difficult feats on th flying rings, showing tremendous physica development and matchless agility. Each of these acts was rewarded with much applause by the large houses in attendance at yesterday's performances.

Myles McCarthy and Aida Woolcott offer a little sketch, 'The Race Tout's Dream,' in which the idiom of the race track is mingled with the clear-cut English of Fifth venue, and some genuine sentiment is neatly expressed amidst the excitement of beating two races at the longest sort of Lena F. Carillo in Judge Altstadt's justice odds. The sketch is eleverly constructed and admirably presented. Mr. McCarthy is a good actor, and finds in this a chance for much legitimate fun making. His efforts are well supported by Miss Woolcott, and the pair were enthusiastically rewarded last night. Wesson, Walters and Wesson present a little one-act farce that was well received, and Jack Gardner makes some fun in black face. Simmonds and White have a sketch that reminds one of Peder Pederson, Omaha... which went very well yesterday. The kino drome has some good pictures agala this
