$2.50, $3 and $4.00.

It's an actual fact that you'll find more styles here at these prices than many stores can show you at a dozen different prices—you'll find here Double Breasted Suits and Norfolk Suits, Sailor Suits and Buster Brown Suits, all lined well and gotten up tasty and snappy.

SAYS JURY WAS INFLUENCED

J. Laurie Wallace, Foreman, Advises Court of Fraud in Wiseman Case.

JUDGE DAY AND MR. ENGLISH ON GUARD

Boys' Efforts at Once to Apprehend Person Charged with Tampering with Juries and Administration Law.

That there is a tremendously stiff rod in pickle for a certain resident of this city, whose identity is at present shrouded in mystery, is a fact that cannot be disputed, and it is equally true that the cause of his jeopardy, whoever he may be, is due to his having tampered with the jury that recently sat in judgment in the trial of the case of the State against Wesley Wiseman, charged with having committed a criminal assault on Alice Gard.

Judge Day, who presided at this trial, will give absolutely no information concerning what the crooked work consisted of, and County Attorney English is equally reticent upon the subject, but neither one will deny that outside influence was brought to bear upon the jury, or that such influence was attempted, in favor of the accused and they hope to get hold of the guilty party.

The jury that considered this case was engaged for twenty-seven hours in its consideration. On the first ballot it stood seven for conviction to five for acquittal. On the tenth ballot the standing was eight for conviction to four for acquittal. On the next ballot it again stood seven to five and so remained until discharged by Judge Day. During the six days of the trial, before the case was argued, the jury was not kept under surveillance, but the members were allowed to go to their homes at night. During this time it is known that certain one of the panel were approached by a young man, a friend of Wiseman, and put in possession of facts concerning his alleged assault upon Alice Gard which did not and probably would not have been allowed to appear in evidence. Whether this information had anything to do with bringing about the disagreement of the jury does not yet appear.

Crooked Work Suspected.

After having been out all night on the case J. Laurie Wallace, 212 North Eighteenth street, foreman of the jury, sent a communication to Judge Day, a portion of which was in substance: "If the justice of the juryman in question that the jury had been tampered with previous to having been given the case and that he was persuaded an agreement would never be reached. Judge Day immediately sent for the jury and after instructing it very emphatically as to its duty sent it out for further consideration of the case. This, however, did not result in any change of its attitude in regard to the matter under consideration. Several hours later the jury reported that it was unable to agree on a verdict and was discharged by the court.

At the time the county attorney at once took steps to apprehend the party who had communicated with the jury during the trial. When pressed to make a statement with regard to it Judge Day said: "I do not think it would be proper for me to say anything now and would be glad in the future to state if the matter of irregularity had not become public at this time. This I will say, that the matter of tampering with a jury in a case of this kind, or any other, is a most serious offense. If such things occur they will result in all juries being locked up, and under surveillance throughout the trial of the cases on which they are sitting. The worst of course is a lie, but one that such things as this will make necessary."

It is believed the identity of the person who was guilty of the offense of tampering with the Wiseman jury will be disclosed in the near future and further details as to what his acts consisted of will be made public. Mr. Wallace, when interviewed on the subject, made no secret of the fact that the jury had been tampered with and that he had so notified the court, but he declined to make any further statement on the ground that he had been requested not to do so by Judge Day, for fear that, through the publicity thus given the matter, the guilty party might make good his escape before he could be apprehended. Mr. Wallace intimated that had it not been for outside interference a different verdict might have been returned.

Announcements of the Theaters.

The last two performances of the vaudeville program for this week will be given at the Orpheum, matinee and night, today. On the new bill, opening Sunday, Julia Kingler, and gifted and beautiful comedienne, and Nelson Lewis, presenting their most prominent success, "Her Uncle's Niece," a comedy, will be the headline attraction. Ray and Buckley will dispense their unique comedy and render a varied instrumental program, as both are accomplished musicians. A rarely seen sort of "stunt" will be contributed by Roberts and Wilfredo, their specialty being the manipulation of rubber balls. A. O. Duncan is a ventriloquist. He has a funny layout in automobiles and dialogue. The man who wrote "Down Went McGinty," Joe Flynn, will entertain with song and story, while in the terpsichorean line a novelty is promised by Abbas Ben Omar, who calls his turn "A Night in Persia." "The Great Train Robbery," the kinodrome picture that attracted so much attention about a month ago, will be brought back to meet a popular and widespread demand.

Que Sun's American minstrels, said to be one of the best of the kind, will give a performance on the road, will be at the Krug Sunday matinee and night only. Regular Krug theater prices, with the usual matinee rate.

Seats are now on sale for Joseph Murphy, the favorite Irish comedian, who comes to the Krug for the first of next week. Mr. Murphy will present "The Kerry Gow" Monday and Tuesday nights and "Sham Rhue" Wednesday afternoon and night. This will be his first time here at popular prices.

On Sunday afternoon and evening "Are You a Mason?" one of the funniest farces ever written and played by a splendid company, will be the attraction at the Boyd. Popular prices will prevail.

On Monday evening Miss Marie Wainwright will open an engagement of two nights, with a special matinee on Tuesday, at the Boyd. Miss Wainwright has signalled her return to the legitimate from the vaudeville stage by a revival of "Twelfth Night." As she won her greatest triumphs in the role of Viola, it is only reasonable to expect a fine performance of this dainty comedy. She is said to have an excellent company supporting her.

DOG DIES BY COURT'S ORDER

Unruly Canine Put to Death and

Certificate of Death is Read

to the Judge.

Samuel Baxter, 3115 Lindsay avenue,

owned a dog that took a dislike to William

Parker, trustee official. Parker alleges that the canine jeopardized his life and clothes

by jumping at him and behaving as no respectable dog should.

The dog now is dead, or at least a certificate to that effect has been produced

in police court to show that the purposes of justice have been served. The case was set for hearing in police court, at which time Baxter was to produce the dead dog

in court or documentary evidence to show that the judicial mandate had been carried out. Baxter said he did not like to carry a dead dog around with him, so he brought a certificate of death, duly signed by an executioner and witness. The paper stated that Garfield Baxter, a brother of the owner of the dog, performed the "last and rites," as Samuel did not have the heart to do the deed himself.
