OMAHA KEEPS VISITORS BUSILY AT WORK

Shows Lack of Practice Against the Sharpened Points of American Leaguers-Owen on the Sinb.

To be sure Comiskey's American league players took Rourke's Omaha team into camp at the Vinton street grounds yesterday afternoon to the tune of 7 to 4, but had the local team had the practice this season that has been taken by the White Sox braves from Chicago, the score may have been turned the other end to.

This was the third game Omaha har played this year on its own grounds, and the first chance the Omaha rooters have had to see the team play up to its limit, while the visitors have been playing under Samity southern skies every day for a And as it was the Chicago men had to keep going all the while to bring about the desired result. It was not an errorless game on either side, but it was snappy all the way along, and though the crowd didn't have a chance to get as hoarse as it would could Omaha have managed to tie or lead in the scoring, it enjoyed the game to the extent of nearly

The winter weather of Saturday gave place to an atmosphere that was sunny and warm, and a large percentage of the spectators were women togged out in all their spring finery.

Green, the heavy hitting rightfielder for the Chicago team, was the first man up and Henderson promptly struck him out, which put a good taste in the mouth of the tans and made them long for more. Callahan got his eye on the ball, however, and sent a soft one down to Jack Thomas. who was cavorting around the first bag. Callahan didn't have to run six steps. Donahoe gave it a boost over into the left garden for two bases and the dance was on in good eafnest. Dundon lined it out, too, but was caught at second by a pretty throw by Carter, and it was all over for that half. Plake and Downs made singles for the home team in the first and fourth, respectively, but other than this the men went out in one, two, three order, and no one were made up to the sixth. Meantime Green had made a three-bagger in the second that was productive of three runs, so that at the beginning of the sixth the score was 3 to get some. Two costly errors, one by Henderson and one by Plake, let in two more rune for Chicago in this inning and Omaha went to bat with five runs to Carter popped a little fly to Tannehill and sat down. Plake sent one too hot to handle down to second and got his base. Then Dusty Miller proceeded to bang it down to the center field fence for three bases and as Plake trotted home with his run a wild shout of joy rent the heavens. Miller scored on Welch's hit, though the latter was thrown out at first. Downs went the same way. Comiskey's men made two more in the eighth by virtue of a three-bagger by Sullivan and an error by Thomas. Omaha scored another run in the seventh on Dundon's fumble and an earned run in the eighth when Plake hit it up for two bags. Neither team scored in the last inning.

Henderson, who pitched the first three innings for Omaha, and Liebhardt, who pitched the latter part of the game, both showed good points that practice will sharpen up. Owen, who was in the box for the visitors, was in splendid form and pitched the entire game in hurricane hot liner off Downs' bat in a manner that to both Henry Clay and Rutherford B. won the plaintits of the crowd.

No boats were to be found in time to aid effort being made to reach the drowning man by swimming. Almost before those watching had time to decide upon a single plan of action, the benumbed unfortunate lost his hold and disappeared beneath the surface of the water.

Around this trunk the water was rushing with considerable force, in some manner engulfing the boat. The man grasped one of the dead limbs of the tree, which gave way and man and limb floated rapidly down stream.

Several men, attracted to the bank by the cries, followed on the run, shouting encouragement and advice, but to no avail, although the stranger seemed cool enough under the circumstances. No attempt has yet been made to recover the body. The man had no one with him in the boat and as yet no information as to who he was has been gathered. Some claim that they have reason to believe him to have been a resident of Omaha.

> Succeeds in Harnessing the Wind. Inventors have recently turned their attention to cheap power for lifting water. Demosthenes Phronimos, a Greek electrical engineer, residing temporarily in San diately rowed to it and found it to be Francisco, has just taken out an American patent upon a system of wind motors, which seems to solve the problem of obtaining great power (say from 100 to 200 horse-power) from this ever present source of supply.

Heretofore the power obtainable from wind wheels has not exceeded fifteen horsepower for the reason that even to obtain this limited force it was necessary to build tall towers and to employ wheels of great length and spread. There are obvious limitations to such structures, both with respect to the original expense and especially The invention of the Greek engineer con

Movable vanes govern the direction of impact of her remains last winter and all the ice the wind as it issues from this structure in the vicinity of the place where she was and passes through the wind wheel. If these vanes are adjusted so as to be parallel to the wheel blades the wheel will stand still for the reason that the wind will pass through it without exercising any driving force. Then, by altering the adjustment of the vanes, the wind can be caused to strike the wheel blades with greater force and greater directness of impact, so as to bring it up to any desired speed, or again bring ft to rest, no matter how strong the wind may be blowing. The protection which the wheel receives by reason of its independent support with respect to the wind-receiving structure, and also the fact that this latter structure is provided with safety valve flaps in its top, all contribute to practically eliminate danger of wrecking the structure even n severe storms. When to this are added the exactness of regulation as to speed of which the motor is capable, and the high horse-power attainable, it reems unquestionable that the system has a promising

Extensive Deposit of Coal.

The coal fields lie behind the Controller bay oil because of their liability to become wrecked | fields at the foot of the Chugach mountains. The coal and oil were found to be in two distinctly separate formations that lie in roughly parallel belts. The coal area, as at present recognized, includes about eighty-five square miles. The coal resembles the harder bituminous coals of the east more than it does anthracite. Obstacles to Irrigation.

> The progress made in the irrigation work of the government is re lewed in a publication issued by the geological survey. which points out the secessity of great caution and conservatism in the extension of reclamation work. It says that of the irrigation projects favorably reported in 1903, which included those on the Truckes river in Nevada, on the Salt river in Arizona, on Milk river in Montana, on Sweetwater river in Wyoming and on Gunnison river in Colorado, the Nevada and Arisons projects have been found leastble and construction on the engineer works along the Truckee and Salt rivers has progressed to a resonable extent. The Montana project however, has presented unexpected engineering difficulties as well as complications regarding water rights, so that progress is slow. It has been found necessary to modify the first place in order to achieve early results. The Wyoming project, as first outlined, has been found impracticable. A bet ter reservoir site than that on the Sweetwater river, however, has been discovered on the North Platte, so that a larger scheme of development may be worked out there in the future. Very great engineering difficulties are encountered in the accomplishment of the Colorado project. The amount of arid land thereby reclaimed is less, too, than was anticipated.

Conduct Memorial Services. Pursuant to a special order, the house of representatives today conducted mem orial services in memory of the late Representatives Forederer and Burk of Pennsylvania. Randall district, for ages had been misrepresented in congress and had been a blot on the city of Philadelphia because it did not represent the sentiment of the people nor the doctrine on which its vast manufacturers were dependent for success. He declared, however, that the district had been redeemed by Mr. Burk from democratic con-
