Four Submarine Boats.

The entrance into the service of four su marine boats at Port Arthur means the addition of a new and formidable weapon for the defense of that stronghold. The dispatch of the boats in sections over the railroad has been shrouded in secrecy and even today many in St. Petersburg are inclined to doubt the report by officials of their presence at Port Arthur or to accept the information as trustworthy. An effort now to close or block the er trance to Port Arthur will be too dangerms for Admiral Togo to atttempt. The defenders will be able now to guard against Japanese submarines entering the harbon and attacking the Russian ships at anchor. The submarine boats may soon have an opportunity to demonstrate the value of their type in war, as the Japanese fleet is reported at Che Foo and the interval st it is usually absent from Port Arthur has about expired.

It would be well to put an obelisk in front of the admiralty inscribed "Remember Makaroff." His death should be the signal to destroy the old order of things of which he fell a victim after heroically doing his best with the defective weapons at his disposal. COCKRAN'S POLITICAL HISTORY AIRED

Mr. Dalzell Charges that His Opponent Accepted Republican Campaign Funds and Cockran Denies Accumation.

WASHINGTON, April 26.-The "heavyweights" had another bout in the house to day with Messrs. Dalzell and Cockran as the combatants. The speeches were a renewal of last Saturday's debate, but were more personal in character. As on Satur day the speakers were greeted with vociferous applause by their respective colleagues, and the bitterness of party feeling ran-

Mr. Dalzell had Mr. Cockran on the rack for nearly two hours, during which time he dealt largely with that gentleman's political history, which he said showed him to have been consecutively a greenbacker, a sound money man and a free silver man.

He reverted to his statement of last Saturday that he had been informed that Mr. Cockran had accepted money to support the sampalgn of McKinley and read items from several newspapers to show that that was the general impression at the time. A man, he said, who would not have replied to Mr. Cocaran as he did on Saturday would have been a poltroon and a coward.

Mr. Dalzell closed amid wild republican applause with a most bitter denunciation of Mr. Cockran. He referred to that gentleman's speech before the democratic con vention which sent him to congress, in which Mr. Cockran said:

"We have reached a point where the country is regarded as an international hoodlum

Warm One for Cockran. Facing the democratic side and looking directly at Mr. Cockran, Mr. Dalgell declared that that utterance was of as much interest to them as it was to himself. "If there be any hoodlums amongst us," he said, speaking with much vehemence, "they are not the product of American civilization." He was interrupted with loud and prolonged republican applause.

Continuing he said: They are to be found rather amongst those adventurers who, having left their own country for their country's good, find in the fields of American politics prolific source of notoriety, men who without conscience and without conviction, find an opportunity now with one party, now with another, to find a market for their peculiar wares, among which is not respectability. He took him seat amid another storm of He took his seat amid another storm of republican applause.

Mr. Cockran, thoroughly indignant a times, denied the accusation of Mr. Daizell, whom he arraigned for making statements which could not be substantlated. If what Mr. Dalzell had said were true, he declared he was unworthy of membership.

In emphatic and positive language Mr Cockran denied that he had received money from the Palmer and Buckner campaign committee or that he had ever received made his first public reference to the going money for supporting McKinley in 1896. If Mr. Dalzell, he said, believed the charges against him it was nothing but a confession of the republican party's corruption and proof that the presidential election had been purchased.

The climax came when he offered a resc lution providing for the appointment of a select committee of five members of the house to investigate the charge which had been made against him by Mr. Dalzell. He nd other democrats, including Mr Williams, the minority leader, demanded immediate consideration, but the speaker declined to pass on a point of order against the resolution until he had examined prece-

The Queen and the Alexandra Trust. "The Times," London, says: The queen takes a deep interest in the Alexandra Trust Dining Rooms, which are named after her, and yesterday she paid a surprise visit to the institution, as she did in 1900. Sir Thomas Lipton was the only one who knew of the queen's intended visit, as she wished to see the dining rooms and diners under normal conditions. Her majesty, accompanied by Princess Victoria and some soil, American institutions or American attendants, drove in a plain carriage with out escort and were received at the main entrance by Sir Thomas Lapton. Of course the identity of the royal visitors soon became known and they were cheered with true East End heartiness.

They repaired to the manager's little room and dined, faring exactly as ordinary diners, the queen sitting at the head of the table. The royal party began with ox-tail soup, took roast lamb with mint sauce as a second course, badatwo vegetables and finished with plum pudding. The queen took Apollinaris with her dinner, and the whole party afterwards drank coffee out of "Alexandra" cups.

The queen and the princess, always wel received, have rarely received in any part of London so vigorous and enthusiastic a send-off as that which marked the close of their kindly visit.

Johnson of Michigan This concluded the opening formalities and the business of the session began with reports of the year's work at home and abroad.

The first of these was made by Mrs. Ma tiida E. Kline, the treasurer. This showed the society was not in debt. The total sum appropriated for foreign work was $42,121.62. Of this the Burman mission, with twenty missionaries in eleven districts, cost $17. 449.89; the Assamese mission, with two missionaries, cost $1.606.13; the Telugu mission, with five missionaries and school work in five districts, took $5,012.66; the Chinese mission, with eleven missionaries in four districts, totalled $7,517.51; the West China mission, with four missionaries, $1,156.56; the Japanese mission, six workers at three places, $9,669.67; the Philippine mission, one missionary, $62.03, and the African mission $100. The home expenses for printing, traveling and office expenses and salaries, etc., aggregated $18,579.65. The home for mis sionaries' children was found to be in good condition with a balance on hand of $133.8

General, Growth of Society. The home secretary, Miss Julia L. Austin, told of the general growth of the society with the changes due to death and removal and other similar information. Mrs. Fred erick Clatworthy, the foreign secretary, made a report comprising sixty-three closely printed pages. These booklets were distributed and Mrs. Clatworthy after her introductory remarks went over the descriptions of the various mission fields. In her summary of the foreign department she said it contained forty-three mission aries, two under appointment, 108 Bible women, 197 schools with 7,981 pupils, 218 teachers and 973 baptisms. In the medical department were two hospitals, two dispensaries, seven helpers and eleven medical students. There were treated 1,065 in-patients, 19,068 dispensary patients and 300 outpatients were visited in their homes. Six thousand prescriptions were filled and 527 operations performed.

"Our Literature and How to Use It." was the subject of Miss Cora B. Kim ball. She said it was the irea of the publisher to show the wonderful facts of ern missionary work. Few understood the life and deeds of the missionary workers in foreign lands. Few people knew the missionaries personally, but the literature would give them a knowledge of the personal surroundings and conditions of the missionary life

Past and Present in India. Mrs. W. E. Hopkins of Secunderabad, India, told of "One Hundred Years Ago and Today in India." She made a strong plea for workers for these mission fields. Speaks of the Vast and Valuable Accomplishments Resulting from a

Nonpartisan Statesmanship. SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 26.-Secretary of the Treasury Leslie M. Shaw was the guest of honor and chief speaker at the annual banquet of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce tonight. Secretary Shaw spoke on "Nonpartisan Statesmanship." He said:
Some of the best work of the republic has been accomplished nonpartisanly.
During the administration of James Madison a law was passed giving the American shipbuilder and the American shippowner a monopoly of our coastwise trade. While this law has been many times assembled no party has ever dared repeal it. As a result we have the largest and most prosperous, the cheapest and the best coastwise trade in the world.

By nonpartisan votes large grants of land and large appropriations of money were offered as an inducement to the construction of trans-state and transcontinental railroads. As a result of these roads and their tributaries the entire west has become the most profitable market for the manufactured products of the eastern states, and in turn the greatest producers of food products, which comprise over @ per cent of our exports.

For more than 100 years statemen have dreamed and taiked and plarged for an nerce tonight. Secretary Shaw spoke o isthmian canal, and now the hope of a century bids fair to be realized.

I wish nonpartisanly the parties would be as enthusiastic in their efforts to create a merchant marine to the end that American material producers and American shipbuilders and American sailors might get their fair proportion of the world's carrying trade.
