Omnha Team Take Toras at Making Errors When the Millionaires Are Not Hitting Them

COLORADO SPRINGS, April 27.—(Special Telegram.) - The Jimmies carried off their fourth game from the Rourkes today by superior batting and outfleiding. The vistors' field playing was bad. McNeeley outclassed Liebhardt and there was little to the contest but the Ryanites.

Thornton missed Howard's grounder in the first and the runner sailed to third beore the ball was fielded.

The locals got two in their half on gift to Nill, a field play and an error by Dolan. A steal and Radeliff's triple brought in the other. The locals came again in the third with three singles, a two-base hit, a wild pitch, a gift, an error and a steal, landing four runs. In the eighth the locals smashed the ball for three more

After the first inning the Roukettes could not make enough hits to scratch more than two tallies, making their total three. The locals did good work in the third, when Dolan's errors, Congalton's steal, a hit by Radeliff, a wild pitch, Kahl's double and singles by Blake, Messitt and McNeeley formed a combination that gave the locals a quartet of the coveted ones. Dolan's work at short was poor,

In the fifth Miller did a turn that helped put the rollers under Omaha. He missed Messitt's fly and put the ball ever the Robinson Snatches Victory from Doubt fence when he threw to the infield. Score: COLORADO SPRINGS.

DES MOINES, in., April 37.—Before an audience composed of the representative men of the state of lowa, Justice Peters B. Grosscup of the United States circuit court delivered an address tonight before the Grant club on "Liberty and Corporations." The occasion was the celebration of Grant's birthday amiversary.

Hon. Frederick C. Windler of Milwaukee and Nathan E. Kendall of Albis, member of the lowa house of representatives from Mouroe county, were the other speakers. An elaborate banquer praceded the addresses. Judge Grosscup said:

Industrial Magnificence of America. I have pointed out the industrial ten-dencies of the past thirty or forty years; how from an agricultural people living in the open air, we have become largely a people who dwell in towns and cities; how that nearly one-half of our population is engaged in mechanical trades, or de-pendent on those who are thus engaged; how that property owned by corporations, should an inventory be taken on any one engaged in mechanical trades, or dependent on those who are thus engaged; how that property owned by corporations, should an inventory be taken on any one day in the year, would be found to exceed by billions the value of all the agricultural lands between the two oceans, increased by the live stock upon them, the farming utensils, the machinery and this farm products not yet marketed; and how that this vast dumain under corporate ownership must, in the nature of things, not diminish, but go on increasing through the years of our national future.

I have referred to what I may call the atmosphere of corporation we now go for almost every help in life. The farmer turns up the soil with the corporation-made plow; the rains may mellow the soil, but a corporated rollers and baked into trachouse, transported to the mills over an incorporated railway, ground into douby incorporated rollers and baked into bread in corporation overs. Danger in Corporations.

Danger in Corporations.

We hear on all sides of danger to the people from the great corporations. The paramount danger of the corporate policy prevailing in America lies not so much in what specific thing a corporation may do, as in the fact that, in its practical operation, that policy excludes from participation in this already wide and increase, ng field of American property the ordinary American citizen as an owner. I speak now not of the cause, but of the fact. I know, as well as any one, that under the law, corporate ownership, like the ownership of real estate, is open alike to all. But I know also, as does every observer of events, that in the face of existing conditions, this vast portion of our country's property, already more than one-fourth in value, and probably one-half in its influence upon the citizenship of the country, is, as an opportunity to proprietorship, a field closed to those not educated in the intricactes of corporate organization and management.

intricacles of corporate organization and management.

The paramount aim in any solution of this great problem must be to fit this new form of American ownership to the industrial life of a republic. Ours is a government of the people, for the people. The policies that relate to proper the people. The policies that relate to proper the people instincts. A government themselves to the people instincts. A government by the people sannot long endure whose property laws, either purposely or incidentally, create a distinctive property holding class. I hope to see the day when this new form of American property will invite, and worthly invite, the participation of all; when corporate ownership will be diversified as widely among the people at large, and with as much safety to them, as other forms of property; when the salesman will aspire to own an interest in the incorporated mercantic company; when every turn of the wheels of the locomotive will mean so much increment to the interest of the engineer and fireman in the cab; when every bar pulled out of the furnace will add a little to the possessions of the men who handle the tongs; when the clerk will be interested in the things that lie behind the counting house; when corporation ownership from one end of the country to the other, will be safe from industrial pirates, and open to such honest venture, on the part of all, as gives to the life of the American a patriotic and conservative interest.
