Great Battle Anticipated.

The opinition prevails here that the Russtans will make no further stand south of their fortifications near Feng Weng Cheng. They are concentrating a large force there, where a great battle will soon take place. The passage of the Yalu by the Japanese was effected by the excellent work of the naval and land forces, which was made possible by the previous naval successes giving Japan control of the Yellow sea

The Japanese losses in the last five days of fighting are comparatively small, while the Russians have suffered badly, a tribute to the excellence of the Japanese marksmanship.

Rear Admiral Hosoya, commanding the third Japanese squadron, reports that on April 29 the cruiser Naya shelled the Russian entrenchments along the Yalu near Antung without drawing the enemy's fire. In the meantime torpedo boats similarly engaged the Russians further up the river. and after an hour's severe fighting drove the enemy from the trenches to shelter in an adjacent mountain. The Russians suffered heavily. There were no casualties on the Japanese ships.

Flank Attack Effective.

SEOUL, May 3 .- In the fighting between the Japanese and Russians on the Yalu, all the Russian guns posted to oppose the crossing of the river were put out of action before the actual crossing took place. For two hours, from 7 until 9 o'clock, continuous fighting went on, the Japanese steadily pressing forward and the Russians chagrined over the miscarriage of his plans falling back before the weight of men and guns opposed to them. The Japanese infantry, with brilliant dash, captured the fortified heights northwest of Kullen Cheng, and the pressure was kept up until afternoon, a portion of the Russian forces being driven toward the front probably was deceived in his Antung. There was furious fighting the antire distance.

At Antung the Russians found that in addition to the force confronting them they were threatened by strong detachments on either flank. Their retreat then became so hurried that there was no time to replace the artillery horses shot down by the

and men, were captured. The Russians were able to carry off all their wounded. The Russian troops fied panic-stricker by Japanese cavalry and infantry over the hill country toward Feng Wang Cheng from 1:50 p. m. until 8 o'clock at night. The Russian army engaged was composed of the Third division, the Twenty-second and Twenty-fourth regiments of the Sixth division, and General Mistchenkos' cavairy origade, supported by forty field and light machine guns. The wounded, including General-in-Chief Zassalitch and General Kashtalinaky, reached An Tung, whence the Russians were eventually forced to retire after twenty-five minutes' fierce fight ing.

Japanese Pursue Enemy

It has been learned here that after the fighting of Sunday on the Yalu the Japa ness on Monday morning started to pursu the enemy through the mountains. The Russian forces are said to number 10,006 men. They sustained heavy losses.

block Port Arthur early this morning: as the Russian guns were of a light field pattern, with some mountain pieces. It is admitted by the general staff that the Japanese flanking move affected the whole of the twelve battalions and three batteries at Klu Lien Cheng and Litzavena, which accounts for the desperate character of the fighting. The Twelfth and Twentysecond regiments suffered the most. A great number of officers were killed or wounded and the gunners of the captured pleces were either killed, wounded or made prisoners. One battery had every man killed. Batteries of Russian horse artillery have 226 men in war time, horse mountain batteries have 245 and Cossack artillery batteries have from 25 to 324 men.

Russian Officers Surprised to Think They Put Up a Fight.

Two Torpedo Boats Destroyed. After 4 o'clock a. m. the batteries and warships ceased fire, subsequently firing only at intervals on the enemy's torpedo boats, which were visible on the horizon. All the fire ships carried guick-firing guns, with which they maintained a con-stant fire. Up to the present thirty men, including two mortally wounded officers, who took refuge on a haunch, or were rescued from the fire ships by is, have been picked up. The inspection of the road-stead and the work of saving the enemy's men were hindered by the heavy sea run-ning. We suffered no casualites, with the exception of a seaman belonging to the tor-pedo boat destroyer Boave. On the appearance of the first fire ship, accompanied by the enemy's torpedo boats I boarded a haunch and proceeded to the Otvashal to take immediate measures for repuising the fire ships. PETERSBURG, May &-The emperor is understood to be deeply grieved over the losses sustained on the Yalu. Those who have seen his majesty say that he was dumfounded when he was informed of the heavy fighting which attended the passage of the river. As is well understood here General Kouropatkin's program did not contemplate such resistance to the Japanese advance. It is said, moreover, that Kouropatkin himself was equally surprised and so that he sent his first telegram to the general staff and not direct to the emperor. The understanding here is that General Zassalitch had specific orders to avoid anything like a general engagement, and it is believed that the Russian commander at estimate of the strength of General Kuroki's artillery, being in entire ignorance that 4.2 guns had been posted, and got into a position from which he had the greatest difficulty in extricating his men. The only consolation for the loss of the guns is that being without their breech locks they are of no value to the enemy. THINKS UNITED STATES IS WISE
