Will Have a Vinduct.

The city council of Des Moines has aproved plans for a great vinduct over the Seventh street for a distance of over 2,000 feet. The plans were made long ago, but under the law there was found to be no way that the city could get money to pay damages to the owners of abutting property along the approach to the viadue hence the work was stopped. Now, under a new law, all these matters can be attended to and the work will soon begin. The railroad commissioners must first approve the plans for the viaduct.
