

MEMORIAL DAY IN SCHOOLS

Speeches Made by Veterans of Civil and Indian Wars. MANDERSON THE PRINCIPAL ORATOR. Children Do Their Share Toward Honoring Nation's Heroes by Decorating Schools and with Patriotic Songs.

Special Memorial day exercises were held in all the schools of the city yesterday. The schools were very generally decorated with national colors. The particular features of the day were the patriotic addresses at the schools by veterans of the civil war.

Most of the addresses were delivered during the afternoon and in conformity with the program published in The Bee Thursday evening. The exercises at Columbian school were of a specially interesting character. General Charles F. Manderion being the principal speaker.

Palmer Speaks Twice. Postmaster Palmer made interesting addresses at the Sacred Heart and Mount St. Mary's academies, his theme being the Indian wars in the northwest from 1854 to 1890.

Judge Lee Estelle spoke at Pacific school along general lines of the lessons of loyalty and patriotism and urged that the cause for which over half a million men died shall not have been in vain.

NOT THE LAND HE INTENDED. Forty Acres Left by Joseph Creighton in Dispute Between Heirs and Orphanage.

A rather unusual case now being heard in Judge Sutton's court is that of the St. James orphanage, which asks that the will of Joseph Creighton be reformed to correct a misdescription. The petition is being resisted by the daughters of Mary B. Sedley, who are the grandchildren and natural heirs at law of the testator.
