Omaha Assessment. The Commercial club will meet tomorrow and it is understood that the matter of the Omaha assessment will be discussed. Asseasor Reed of Douglas county has answered his critics from Lincoln, but this, it seems, has not satisfied the merchants down here and they want to discuss the matter further.

Crippled Flagman Robbed. Robert Kelly, an aged flagman in the employ of the Burlington, has reported to the police that some one entered his room and stole $70 from the pockets of his trousers. Kelley is a cripple, having been injured in a wreck many years ago and is over 70 years of age. The police have no clue to the robber.

Ministers Entertain Each Other. The ministers of Lincoln and their wives spent the evening at a real humorous banquet given at the First Presbyterian The occasion was the annual min-Merial banquet and the toasts delivered ware certainly unique. Poverty at Osceola.

OSCEOLA, Neb., May 30.-(Special.)-Osceola's Degree of Honor lodge have just held at the Auditorium building what they called a poverty social, and for all the outlandish poverty that has ever been exhibited in Osceola that lodge takes the cake and whole bakery, and the most poverty-stricken person that showed up was Miss Clara Milis, and she took the first prize as being the maid all foriors, who from head to foot was all tatters and torn. The second prize went to the McCormick young man, and taking the whole outfit together it required pretty good judgment to decide who was tattered the most. The women gave a nice supper and realised a good sum of money from the crowd, notwithstanding their poverty.

OLD SOLDIERS IN THE LEAD EVERYWHERE

Friends Pay Loving Tribute to the Dead Gone Before.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, May 30 .- (Special.)-Lincoln' oldier dead were honored today by their former comrades and the people of the town generally. Everywhere was flown the flag, offices and stores were closed during entire afternoon and every condition was favorable to making this a most memorable memorial day. Members of the Grand Army of the Recoin; presentation of diplomas; "no flowpublic and of the Women's Relief Corps met at the hall at 9 o'clock and went to the cemetery in a body, where they were met by throngs of children with flowers for the graves. After the assembly call by C. O. Bell a female chorus sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee." "America" was sung by the entire assembly. A volley was fired by a firing squad from Lincoln Light infantry under command of Lleutenant Dean.

formed a part of an immense audience

In his address this afternoon, among other things, Rev. Mr. Batten said:

other things, Rev. Mr. Batten said:
Our past is glorious and it is secure.
Our future is unknown, but we face it with brave hearts. We rejoice in the heritage that is ours. We rejoice in the flag that has never known a stain. We accept this heritage that has been purchased by tears and blood as a sacred trust. We lift up our bands in holy resolve to keep that flag from any dighonor.

There is from in our land for white men and black men, for Saxon born and Latin born: but there is no room in our land for plotters and anarchists. There is shelter beneath our flag for the poor and oppressed of every nation, but there is no shelter beneath that flag for the tyrant and slave driver.

Our fathers wrought nobly in their day; they solved the problems that confronted them in grave and reverent spirit. We must work no less nobly in our day; we must have a spirit no less reverent and heroic. The American idea is a heroic idea and it calls for a breed of heroic souls, for a generation of brave-souled, large-minded and great-hearted men; for great, heroic, hopeful men who fear God and love one another. nd love one another. Men of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Men of the Grand Army of the Republic, you have given us a splendid interpretation of our American idea. You have taught us the meaning of clizenship and of patrictism. You have toiled that every star might forever keep its place in our glorious fiag. You have taught us how to love that flag and guard it from all dishonor. Day at Fremont.

FREMONT, Neb., May '30 .- (Special.)-Decoration day was more generally observed here than usual. Flags were displayed on all public buildings and from nearly all business houses and many dwellings. At 9:30 this morning McPherson post, Grand Army of the Republic, the Woman's Relief corps and a firing detachment of the Signal corps took carriages and drove out to the cemeteries, where the graves of the soldiers were strewn with flowers, including those of three who fought in the Confederate army. This afternoon the two cannon which were donated by the government to the post were placed in position in the park. The guns, which have been standing in front of Grand Army hall, were escorted to the park by the post, signal corps and relief corps, Commander E. N. Morse of Mc-Pherson post being in charge. A brief history of the guns was read by J. W. Goff. They were cast in Boston, Mass., in 1847. From that time to 1860 there is no trace of them. In 1860 they were taken to Fort Vernon, Ala., and later were mounted on the defences at Mobile where they saw hard service. When the city of Mobile was finally captured in 1864, they were in a battery which caused heavy igss to the Federal forces. Two members of McPherson post, M. Owen and J. T. Bender of this city, were in the brigade which captured the battery. Mr. Bender was present with gregational church yesterday afternoon the post today, while Mr. Owen was very sick and unable to be present. Prof. F. H. delivering the sermon. Great crowds were present from the country and seemed to graves at the cemetery and the services in the opera house this afternoon. The Tekamah band and Company E, Nebraska National guard, participated with Boomer post, Grand Army of the Republic in the Rev. A. J. Markley of Te samah and Judge Barnes of Norfolk were the speakers and infused and pleased the great audience with their pathos and patriotism. Judge Barnes especially reached a warm spot in the hearts of the veterans The day was grand and everybody was satisfied.

Union Services at Edgar EDGAR, Neb., May & .- (Special.)-Mcnorial Sunday was observed by union services in the opera house at 11 o'clock a. m. Rev. A. C. Crosthwaite preached the sermon and was assisted in the services by the pastors of the Presbyterian and Baptist churches. Excellent singing was furnished by Prof. Fuller's special choir. A large audience was present, the post and corps being present in a body.

Observance at Beatrice. BEATRICE, Neb., May 30 .- (Special Tele gram.)-Decoration day was fittingly observed here. In the forenoon members of Rawlins post No. 35, Grand Army of the Republic, Woman's Relief corps, Spanish-American war veterans and others visited the cemeteries where the graves of the dead comrades were strewn with flowers. Exercises were held at the Auditorium in the afternoon, the address being delivered by Hon. Charles H. Sloan of Geneva, Neb. At the close, those assembled marched to the Court street bridge where the waters of the Blue river were strewn with flowers in memory of the dead soldiers and sailors Ceremonies at Wayne. WAYNE, Neb., May 30 .- (Special Telegram.)-Business houses, public buildings and school buildings were arrayed in flags and bunting, and many of the business houses were closed this afternoon. Farmers in general are through planting and hundreds of them were in the city. Three or four thousand people visited the cemetery which had been better arrayed than ever before, and the decorations were most elaborate. The exercises were under the auspices of the Casey post No. 5, Grand Army of the Republic. The post, with a hand of little flower girls, marched to the opera house at 1:30 p. m., where hundreds of people were unable to gain admission. Short addresses were made by Mayor Britton and Prof. Snodgrass, interspersed with excellent music. The speaker of the day was P. E. Taylor of Tekamah, who presented an eloquent and able address which received marked attention. At the conclusion of the exercises one of the largest processions ever seen in this city formed and marched to the cemetery where the graves of departed comrades were decorated with flowers under the leaders of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Memorial exercises were held at the Methodist church yesterday under the auspices of Casey post, and were attended by several hundred people. Rev. T. J. White, pastor of the church, delivered an address which was given close attention through out. The old soldiers marched in a body to the church.

Bervices at Allance. ALLIANCE, Neb., May 30 .- (Special Telegram.)-Memorial day was fittingly observed in this city today. All business was suspended at noon and the city throughout was very beautifully decorated Services began at 1:10 p. m. at the Methodist church, where had been collected by the school children the flowers used to strew the heroes' graves. A procession was then formed and a visit paid the cemetery here and over the graves of seventeen old soldiers a touching service was performed

Dedicate Laird Monument

HASTINGS, Neb., May 30 .- (Special Telegram.)—The memorial services held here years. This was caused by the dedication of the Laird monument in connection with the usual services. In the forenoon the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Woman's Relief corps, the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic and citizens decorated the graves of the departed heroes in the old cemetery and in Parkview cemetery. The unveiling and dedication services of the Laird monument followed, with Senator Charles H. Dietrich presiding. He spoke in part as follows:

Beneath this sod lie the remains of James Laird. I knew him well. He was the bravest of the brave and the gentlest of the gentle. He was a leader upon the field of battle, in the halls of congress and as a lawyer at the bar. He had faults. Who has them not? But his faults were few and his virtues many. Laird's conception of his duties toward his country were most patriotic and lofty, duties which he performed so well. Beside him loving friends have placed a rugged boulder, once the apex of a mighty mountain, around which soared the American eagle and upon which it rested, gazing upon the beautles of nature, listening to the song of the birds and the music of the falling waters. There also lies a monster cannon which once dealt death and destruction to those who would have destroyed that emblem of liberty. This instrument of warfare, once a terror, is now the refuge of the robin and the thrush. presiding. He spoke in part as follows:

The Laird monument is a colosual boulder which weighs forty tons, and the cannon which lies beside it weighs four tons. L. A. Payne delivered a most eloquent memorial address, in which he eulogized James Laird in the most glowing terms and referred to him as having been not only a true soldier, but an ever-constant and loyal friend to every comrade who wore the blue.

The principal address was delivered the Kerr opera house in the afternoon by Charles J. Greene of Omaha, who delivered a glowing eulogium. He said: There are few churchyards that hold the ashes of a truer and braver man than James Laird, and the spot that contains his treasured dust is worthy to be a classic shrine at which to rekindle our devotion to our country and to our love for liberty and justice.

Star Cole rendered Lincoln's Gettysburg address in quite a masterly way and also delivered a short address.
