Babcock, deputy state treasurer, this afternoon and the day was in both well observed by the Grand Army keeping with the sad occasion, remaining posts of our city, as well as the people generally, who made it an occasion to recloudy until the appointed hour of the funeral, when a gentle rain began to fall and increased as the cortege wended its way to the cemetery. The services, which were simple, in keeping with the life of the deceased, were held at the family residence, 1304 J street, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. An hour before that time, however, scores of friends and associates filed through the room where the body lay in a casket, profusely covered with floral offerings, and gazed a last time at the familiar features. Gray-haired veterans and young people thronged the yard public post and the Woman's Relief corps and filled the neighboring houses which were thrown open to them when the rain began to fall. To further attest the esteem in which

Mr. Babcock was held by his former assoclutes at the state house, every office was closed for the afternoon, the flag flew at the half mast and on the door of the treasurer's office crepe was hung. The state officers, Governor Mickey, Auditor Weston, Secreand Woman's Relief corps posts, which tary of State Marsh, Treasurer Mortensen, Land Commissioner Folimer, Attorney General Prout acted as honorary pall bearers and led the procession to the cemetery. The active pall bearers were chosen from the old comrades and they were: John M. McClay, Brad P. Cook, E. C. Lawrence, O. C. Bell, George M. Plumb and J. H. Ager.

The sermon was preached by the Rev Dr. Swearingen, pastor of the Presbyterian church and he reviewed the life of the dead man and spoke words of comfort and sympathy to the living. The music was furnished by a Lincoln quartet, and was particularly beautiful and appropriate to the occasion. The interment occurred at Wyuka cemetery.
