This plan also contemplates the construc-tion of a storm sewer in the old creek bed below Bryant street to take the sur-face water that flows down Broadway and Washington avenue that cannot be carried into the creek. The old creek can then be filled in as this sewer is extended. But three city bridges will be necessary on this cut-off, whereas there are now twenty-one city and twenty-four railway bridges between Bryant street and Six-teenth avenue. As this cut-off will dis-pose of all the surface drainage east of Main street, our sinitary sewers which empty into the creek at Nincteenth avenue composition had set in. Coroner Treynor pose of all the surface drainage east of Main street, our sanitary sewers which will be free from back water, and with the creek dredged from Nineteenth avenue to the river, as now proposed, will give the much needed relief to the property owners in the sanitary district west of Main street. Badly Cut in Fight. William Smith, a roomer at the Chicago house on South Main street, was severely cut about the face and neck in a fight between him and two other roomers about 2 o'clock yesterday. No arrests were made, as Smith informed the police that he would not prosecute.

According to Smith's version of the fracas, he had retired for the night when two other roomers, who had been out late, returned and on passing to their room hammered at his door. He told them to let him alone and he says they replied by applying a vile epithet to him. This incensed him and he followed the fellows to their room and they turned, attacking him with a piece of a broken bicycle pump, with which they struck him a number of times over the head.

Smith, with his face and neck bleeding profusely from a number of jagged cuta was taken to the city jall where in the absence of City Physician Tinley, he was attended by Dr. Lane, While Smith's injuries are painful they are not thought to be serious and he was around yesterday with his head swathed in bandages. He is a laborer in the employ of Contractor Wickham.
